4. All suits or proceedings which, before the commencement of this Act, shall have been instituted before any Deputy Commissioner or other officer having jurisdiction under any enactment hereby repealed shall be heard and decided, so far as may be, under this Act.

5. Every ryot is entitled to receive, from the person to whom the rent of the land held or cultivated by him is payable, a pottah containing the following particulars :—

The quantity and boundaries of land; and where fields have been numbered in a Government survey, the number of each field; the amount of annual rent; the instalments in which the same is to be paid; and any special conditions of the lease.

If the rent is payable wholly or partially in kind, the proportion or quantity of produce to be delivered, and the time and manner of delivery.

6. Every ryot, who has cultivated or held land for a period of twelve years, has a right of occupancy in the land so cultivated or held by him, whether it be held under pottah or not, so long as he pays the rent payable on account of the same; but this rule does not apply to the classes of lands locally known as majhahas, man, or saika; nor to khamar, nijjote, or seer land belonging to the proprietor of the estate or tenure, and let by him on lease for a term, or year by year.

Right of occupancy of ryot cultivating or holding land for twelve years.

The holding of the father, or other person from whom a ryot inherits, shall be deemed to be the holding of the ryot within the meaning of this section.

7. Nothing contained in the last preceding section shall be held to affect the terms of any written contract for the cultivation of land entered into between a landholder and a ryot when it contains any express stipulation contrary thereto.

8. Ryots having rights of occupancy are entitled to receive pottahs at fair and equitable rates. In case of dispute, the rate shall be deemed to be fair and equitable, unless the contrary be shown in an enquiry under section 24.

9. Ryots not having rights of occupancy are entitled to pottahs only at such rates, and on such conditions, as may be agreed on between them and the persons to whom the rent is payable.

10. Every person who grants a pottah is entitled to receive from the person to whom the pottah is granted a kubooliyet or counterpart engagement in conformity with the terms of the pottah.

The tender to any ryot of a pottah, such as the ryot is entitled to receive, shall be held to entitle the person to whom the rent is payable to receive a kubooliyet from such ryot.

11. Every under-tenant or ryot, from whom any sum is exacted in excess of the rent specified in his pottah, or payable under this Act, whether as abwab or under any other pretext, and every under-tenant, ryot, or cultivator from whom a receipt is withheld for any sum of money paid by him as rent, shall be entitled to recover from the person receiving such rent, damages not exceeding double the amount so exacted or paid.

12. Receipts for rent shall specify the year or years on account of which the rent is acknowledged to have been paid; and any refusal to make such specification shall be held to be a withholding of a receipt.

13. If any under-tenant or ryot shall, at the mal kutcherry for the receipt of rents, or other place where the rents of the land held or cultivated by him are usually payable, tender payment of what he shall consider to be the full amount of rent due from him at the date of the tender to the zemindar or other person in receipt of the rent of such land; and if the amount so tendered shall not be accepted, and a receipt in full forthwith granted, it shall be lawful for the under-tenant or ryot, without any suit having been instituted against him, to deposit such amount in the court of the Deputy Commissioner having jurisdiction to entertain a suit for such rent (hereinafter referred to as the Deputy Commissioner) to the credit of the zemindar or other person aforesaid; and such deposit shall, so far as the under-tenant or ryot, and all persons claiming through or under him are concerned, in all respects operate as and have the full effect of a payment then made by the under-tenant or ryot, of the amount deposited to such zemindar or other person.

14. The Deputy Commissioner shall receive such deposit on the application of the under-tenant, or ryot, or his agent, made in writing upon paper bearing a stamp of such value as would be necessary on the institution of a suit for arrears of rent for an amount equal to that which it is intended to deposit; and on the under-tenant, or ryot, or his agent, making a declaration in the form, or as nearly as circumstances will admit in the form set forth in Schedule (B) hereto annexed, the Deputy Commissioner shall give a receipt for the same. The provisions of section 51 shall apply to all such declarations. Upon receiving the money so deposited, the Deputy Commissioner shall issue a notice to the person to whose credit it has been deposited, in the form set forth in the Schedule (C) hereto annexed, and such notice shall be served by the Deputy Commissioner, without the payment of any fee, either upon the person to whom it is addressed, or upon his naib, gomastah, or other agent, and in the absence of any such agent, it shall be served by sticking up a copy of the same in the office of the Deputy Commissioner, and another copy at the mal kutcherry for the receipt of rents, or other place where the rents are usually paid for the land in respect of which the money has been deposited. If the person to whom such notice is issued, or his duly authorized agent, shall appear and apply that the money in deposit be paid to him, it shall be immediately made over to him.

15. Whenever such deposit shall have been made, no suit shall be brought against the person making the same or his representatives, on account of any rent which accrued due prior to the date of the deposit, unless such suit be instituted within six months from the date of the service of the notice in the last preceding section mentioned.

16. The power heretofore vested in zemindars and other landholders of compelling the attendance of their tenants for the adjustment of their rents, or for any other purpose, is withdrawn, and all such persons are prohibited from adopting any means of compulsion for enforcing payment of the rents due to them other than are authorized by this Act.

17. If payment of rent, whether the same be legally due or not, is extorted from any under-tenant or ryot by illegal confinement or other duress, such under-tenant or ryot shall

19. No tenant of lands known as bhuinhari or khoodkatti shall be liable to any enhancement of the rent previously paid by him for such lands, unless it be shown that the tenure has been created within twenty years before the institution of the suit to enhance the rent of the said lands; and where enhancement of the rent of such holding is decreed, the rent assessed shall not exceed one half of the rent paid by an ordinary ryot with a right of occupancy on the same class of land with similar advantages.

20. No tenant of lands known as korkor, baee-bullah, khundwut, sujhut, jalsasun, and ariat shall be liable to any enhancement of rent, except in accordance with the general custom prevailing with respect to such lands in the village in which the said lands are situated.

21. No other under-tenant or ryot having a right of occupancy shall be liable to any enhancement of the rent previously paid by him except in the manner provided by the two next succeeding sections.

22. Any person wishing to enhance the rent previously paid to him by any such under-tenant or ryot may present a petition to the Deputy Commissioner to measure the land in respect of which such enhancement is sought, and to assess the rent thereon.

23. Such petition shall specify the present rent of the under-tenant or ryot against whom the application is made, the general rate prevailing in the village for different classes of lands, the date (as nearly as it can be ascertained) when the rate was last adjusted in the village, the rate which the applicant desires to demand, and the general grounds on which he considers that he is entitled to enhancement. The provisions of sections 49, 50, and 51, shall apply to all such applications.

24. On receipt of such petition the Deputy Commissioner shall forthwith give notice of the contents thereof to the under-tenant or ryot holding the land in respect of which enhancement is sought, and may order the same to be measured, and may do all things necessary for the assessment of rent thereon, and may, upon consideration of all the circumstances, and after hearing any objection which may be advanced against the proposed enhancement by the said under-tenant or ryot, fix such enhanced rent, or may otherwise alter or vary the rent for the said land as to him may seem fair and reasonable for such period, not exceeding twenty years, as he may think fit; and the rent so fixed or varied shall be payable by such under-tenant or ryot from the commencement of the local year following the year in which the order is passed, and may be recovered in any suit preferred against him for arrears of the same.

25. When lands are held subject to any conditions or services other than or besides the payment of a rent in money, it shall be lawful for the tenant of such lands, or the person who has the right to receive the rents and services issuing from such lands, to apply in writing to the Deputy Commissioner for the commutation of all such conditions or services.

26. The Deputy Commissioner shall thereupon cause a notice to be served on each of the persons who, under the last preceding section, would have a right to make such application, and shall fix a date for considering the same; and on such date or any date thereafter to which the hearing may be postponed, shall proceed to enquire into the matter and to determine the amount of rent fairly and equitably payable in commutation of such conditions or services to which such lands may be subject.

27. Every ryot having a right of occupancy shall be entitled to claim an abatement of the rent previously paid by him, if the area of the land has been diminished by diluvion or otherwise, or if the value of the produce, or the productive powers of the land, have been decreased by any cause beyond the power of the ryot, or if it should be shown in the course of an enquiry held under section 24 that he is for any good and sufficient reason entitled to an abatement.

28. Any ryot, who desires to relinquish the land held or cultivated by him, shall be at liberty to do so, provided he gives notice of his intention in writing to the person entitled to the rent of the land, or his authorized agent, in or before the month of Chait (or of Magh, where the Sambut era is commonly used) of the year preceding that in which the relinquishment is to have effect. If he fail to give such notice, and the land is not let to any other person, he shall continue liable for the rent of the land.

If the person entitled to the rent of the land or his agent refuse to receive any such notice and to sign a receipt for the same, the ryot may make an application on plain paper to the Deputy Commissioner, who shall thereupon cause the notice to be served personally on such person or his agent.

29. 31. When an arrear of rent remains due from any ryot at the end of the Bengal year, or at the end of the month of Jeth of the Fussy or Sambut or Willayuttee year, as the case may be, such ryot shall be liable to be ejected from the land in respect of which the arrear is due, but only in execution of a decree or order passed under the provisions of this Act.

32. When an arrear of rent shall be adjudged to be due from any farmer or other leaseholder not having a permanent or transferable interest in the land, the lease of such leaseholder shall be liable to be cancelled, and the leaseholder to be ejected.

Provided that no such lease shall be cancelled nor the leaseholder ejected otherwise than in execution of a decree or order under the provisions of this Act.

33. When rent is payable by an under-tenant or ryot at a certain rate or rates according to the quantity of land held or cultivated by him, or when any written engagement conditioned for the payment of a certain amount of rent on account of land held or cultivated by an under-tenant or ryot has expired or become cancelled by the sale for arrears of revenue or rent of the estate or tenure in which the land is situate, the person to whom the rent is payable has a right to measure such land for the purpose of ascertaining the quantity of land actually held or cultivated by such under-tenant or ryot, and every proprietor of an estate or tenure has a right to make a general survey or measurement of the lands comprised in such estate or tenure, unless restrained from doing so by express engagement with the occupants of the lands.

If any person intending to measure any land which he has a right to measure is opposed in making such measurement by the occupant of the land, or if any under-tenant or ryot, having received notice of the intended measurement of land held or cultivated by him which is liable to such measurement, refuses to attend and point out such land, such person may make application to the Deputy Commissioner, and the Deputy Commissioner shall thereupon proceed to enquire into the case in the manner provided for suits under this Act, and shall pass an order either allowing or disallowing the measurement, and, if the case so require, enjoining or excusing the attendance of any such under-tenant or ryot.*

Application for the registration of all such successions as may have occurred previously to the commencement of this Act shall be made within two years from the commencement thereof, and for future successions within one year from the date on which the succession occurred: and if such application be not made within the period herein specified, the zemindar or superior tenant may apply to the Deputy Commissioner to put him in possession of the talook or tenure.

On receipt of such an application the Deputy Commissioner shall issue a notice to the talookdar or tenure-holder in possession requiring him to register the transfer within three months from the receipt of the notice, and if he should still neglect or refuse so to register, the Deputy Commissioner, on proof to his satisfaction being given of the service of the notice, may put the zemindar or superior tenant aforesaid in possession of the talook or tenure.

35. The provisions of the last preceding section shall also be applicable to transfers by sale of such undertenures as are mentioned in section 127.

36. If any zemindar or superior tenant refuse to admit to registry or otherwise to give effect to any such transfer by succession, the successor may make application to the Deputy Commissioner, and the Deputy Commissioner shall thereupon proceed to enquire into the case in the manner provided for suits under this Act, and if no sufficient grounds are shown for the refusal, shall pass an order enjoining the zemindar or superior tenant to admit to registry and otherwise give effect to such transfer by succession.*

Provided that no zemindar or superior tenant shall be required to admit to registry or give effect to any division or distribution of the rent payable on account of any such tenure, as is mentioned in section 34, nor shall any such division or distribution of rent be valid and binding without the consent in writing of the zemindar or superior tenant.

but no order shall be passed in such case, unless the officer making the same is satisfied that all parties have had an opportunity to appear and make objection to any claims preferred against them; and if at any time it shall appear to the Deputy Commissioner that the question between any two of the parties, of whom one is so joined with others, cannot conveniently be so jointly tried, the Deputy Commissioner may order a separate trial to be held.

40. Every order passed in any such case as is mentioned in the first clause of the last preceding section shall specify the extent to which each of the ryots or other tenants named in the order shall be affected thereby.

Provided that, if the person having the right to sue shall, by means of fraud, have been kept from the knowledge of the receipt of any such money by the agent, or if any fraudulent account shall have been rendered by the agent, the suit may be brought within one year from the time when the fraud shall have been first known to such person; but no such suit shall in any case be brought at any time exceeding three years from the termination of the agency.

46. Suits under this Act shall be instituted by presenting to the Deputy Commissioner a statement of claim which shall contain the name, description, and place of abode of the plaintiff; the name, description, and place of abode of the defendant, so far as they can be ascertained; the substance of the claim, and the date of the cause of action.

52. If the plaintiff rely in support of his claim on any document in his possession, he shall deliver the same to the Deputy Commissioner at the time of presenting his statement of claim. Unless such document be delivered or its non-production be sufficiently excused, or unless the Deputy Commissioner see fit to extend the time for producing the same, it shall not afterwards be admitted.

53. If the plaintiff require the production of any document in the possession or power of the defendant, he may, at the time of presenting his statement of claim, deliver to the Deputy Commissioner a description of the document in order that the defendant may be required to produce the same:

54. If the statement of claim do not contain the several particulars hereinbefore required to be specified therein, or be not subscribed and verified as hereinbefore required, the Deputy Commissioner may return the statement to the plaintiff, or at his discretion allow it to be amended.

The day to be specified in the summons shall be fixed with reference to the state of the file and the distance that the defendant may be or be supposed to be at the time from the place where the court is held, and the summons shall order the defendant to produce any document which he may have in his possession, of which the plaintiff demands inspection, or upon which the defendant may intend to rely in support of his defence. It shall also enjoin him to bring with him his witnesses if they are willing to attend without issue of process, and shall be in the form contained in Schedule (D) hereto annexed, or to the like effect.

57. The summons shall be served by delivering a copy thereof to the defendant personally when practicable, or if the summons cannot be served on the defendant personally, by delivering it to any male member of his family residing with him, or by affixing a copy of it to some conspicuous part of his usual place of abode, and also affixing a copy of the same in the Deputy Commissioner's office.

If the said amount be not so deposited (except in cases in which the Deputy Commissioner may allow the issue of summons free of cost under the discretion reserved to him in section 136,) the case shall not be brought on the file of suits: but in such case the plaintiff may present another plaint at any time within the period allowed by the rules for the limitation of actions.

61. If in any suit against an under-tenant or ryot for the recovery of an arrear of rent, or against an agent for the recovery of any money, papers, or accounts, the plaintiff desires a warrant of arrest to be issued against the defendant, such defendant being resident within the district in which the suit is instituted, he shall present with his statement of claim an application for the issue of such warrant.

When such application is presented, the Deputy Commissioner shall examine the plaintiff or his agent, on his oath or affirmation or otherwise according to the law for the time being in force for the examination of witnesses; and inspect the documents adduced by him in support of his claim, and if there be prima facie grounds for believing the claim to be well-founded, and that, if a summons be issued, the defendant will abscond instead of appearing to answer the claim, the Deputy Commissioner may issue a warrant for the arrest of the defendant.

If the defendant shall appear in pursuance of the proclamation, he shall be dealt with as provided in the last preceding section.

69. If the defendant shall appear on any subsequent day to which the hearing of the suit may be postponed under the last preceding section, the Deputy Commissioner may, upon such conditions, if any, as to costs or otherwise as he may think proper, allow the defendant to be heard in answer to the suit as if he had appeared on the day fixed for his attendance.

70. No appeal shall lie from a judgment passed ex parte against a defendant who has not appeared, or from a judgment against a plaintiff by default for non-appearance. But in all such cases, if the party against whom judgment has been given shall appear, either in person or by agent, if a plaintiff within fifteen days from the date of the Deputy Commissioner's order, and if a defendant within fifteen days after any process for enforcing the judgment has been executed, or at any earlier period, and shall show good and sufficient cause

133. If the immoveable property against which execution is applied for be a house or other building, process shall be issued in the same manner as for the attachment and sale of moveable property, and the provisions of sections 115 to 121 (both inclusive) shall, so far as may be practicable, be applicable to the execution of such process.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE peculiarities of the tenures and customs prevailing in the Chota Nagpore Division require that the relations of landlord and tenant in that part of the country should be regulated by special procedure.

The existing rent-law of the province is contained in Act X of 1859, and the present Bill is based upon that measure, the omissions and alterations of importance being as follows:—

The grounds of enhancement specified in section 17 of Act X are considered inapplicable to the districts of Lohardugga, Hazareebagh, and Singbhoom, and are therefore omitted from the Bill.

Tenants of lands known as bhuinhari, khoonkatti, korkor, bacebullah, khundwut, &c., are protected from enhancement except under certain circumstances and conditions.

A special procedure is laid down for the enhancement of the rents of other occupancy ryots.

The provisions of Act X relating to distraint are omitted, as unsuitable to the circumstances of the province.

It being advisable to continue the restriction on the sale of landed property observed in the province, it is declared that no sale shall take place under sections 105, 108, and 109 of Act X without the consent of the Commissioner of the province.

An appeal is given from the Deputy Commissioner to the Judicial Commissioner, and, when the amount in dispute exceeds Rs. 5,000, to the High Court.

34	Purneah. " 29 "	Nil	Weather—hot for the time of year. Some rain would be beneficial to the wheat. The crop of mustard is good. Tobacco is very good.
35	Maldah. " 29 "	Nil	Weather—fair, but unreasonably warm. State and prospects of the crops are satisfactory. Cholera has much abated, but fever of a bad type is very prevalent in many parts of the district.
36	Sonthal Pergas. " 30 "	Nil	Weather—not cold for the time of year. No change in the state and prospects of the crops since last report.
ORISSA.

38	Pooree. " 27 "	Nil	Weather—warm for the season; sky clear. The harvesting of the lagha crop has been completed; the outturn is estimated at three eighths of an average crop. The saradh crop is being harvested. The miscellaneous winter crops, i.e. moong , arhar , kala , and mustard promise fair. Mugarrane is being cut. Dalua rice continues to be sown. 39	Balasore. " 28 "	Nil	Weather—rather warm for the season. The winter crops are doing well and some are being harvested. The outturn of the saradh crop has been an average one. A few cases of small-pox and fever have been reported from the interior.
CHOTA NAGPORE.
South-West Frontier Agency.
40	Hazareebagh, Dec. 28 '77	Nil	Weather—fair. No change to report in the state and prospects of the crops. The present prospects of the rains are favorable.
41	Lohardugga. " 28 "	Nil	There has been no rain throughout the district during the past week, and the prospects of the rubber crops are indifferent in consequence.
42	Ringbhoon. " 28 "	Nil	Weather—seasonable. Nothing to report about the paddy crop. The cold-weather crops are doing well, and would be better if the usual Christmas rain would fall. There is a good deal of fever reported from Dhalbhoon.
43	Manbhoon. " 29 "	Nil	Weather—pleasant, but the wind is unusually high, and the absence of the usual Christmas showers may result, as it seemed to do last year, in a too early fall of rain further on, and in an unfavorable distribution of the fall between June and October. Nothing new to report. Generally there has been a good harvest in the south, and a poor one in the north, of the district. Rain is wanted in one pergunnah, where wheat and gram have been grown.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from observations made at 6h., 10h., 16h. and 22h.; the maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard (Newman's No. 86) formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction and movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

2. No ryot having a right of occupancy shall be liable to have his rent enhanced in the course of any settlement proceedings under Regulation VII of 1822, except on some one of the grounds specified in section 18 of Bengal Act VIII of 1869, or where Act X of 1859 is still in force in section 17 of the latter Act.

3. The following words shall be added to section 15 of Bengal Act VIII of 1869, and to section 14 of Act X of 1859 :—
Provisoes added to section 15, Bengal Act VIII, 1869, and section 14, Act X, 1859.

“ Provided that, where the rent of any under-tenant or ryot has been enhanced in the course of any settlement proceedings under Regulation VII of 1822, and has been confirmed by the Revenue authorities to whom the officer making the enhancement is subject, such rent shall be deemed to have been correctly enhanced until the contrary is proved.

“ Provided also that any suit by such under-tenant or ryot to contest his liability to pay the enhanced rent shall be instituted within three months from the date of the service on him of the notice of enhancement, and provided also that, unless he has instituted such suit within such period, he shall not contest the said liability in answer to any suit preferred against him for recovery of arrears of enhanced rent after the expiration of three months from the date of service on him of such notice, anything in this Act to the contrary notwithstanding.”

4. A notice in writing served on an under-tenant or ryot by, or by the authority of, a settlement officer, calling on him to attend and sign the jummalundi, shall be deemed a notice within the meaning of section 14 of Bengal Act VIII of 1869, and section 18 of Act X of 1859.

POWERS OF SETTLEMENT OFFICERS WITH RESPECT TO ENHANCEMENT OF RENT.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THERE being at present no specific provision of law regulating the principles on which settlement officers are to act in determining rates of rent, it is proposed to lay down authoritatively that they must invariably proceed upon the principles prescribed by the rent-law for the enhancement of rent. The probability of the correctness of a settlement officer's fixation of rent, considering the advantages he has in his inquiry, is such that it is thought advisable to enact that the rates ascertained by him and approved by the superior Revenue authorities shall be presumed to be correct until the ryot shows the contrary to the satisfaction of a civil court. It is hoped that if the settlement rates are held prima facie correct much useless litigation will be saved, and that proprietors and intending farmers will not be deterred, as is sometimes the case at present, from readily accepting settlement through fear of inability to realize the rents assessed until long after they themselves have incurred liability to pay the Government revenue.

And as the ryot, if he does mean to contest the settlement, ought to contest it within a reasonable time, the Bill imposes on him a limitation of three months within which he may do so.

THE following Bill was read in the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 6th January 1878, and was referred to a Select Committee who are to report thereon in one month:—

A Bill for the Licensing of Trades, Dealings and Industries within the territories subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.

WHEREAS, in order to provide means for defraying the public expenditure from time to time incurred and to be incurred for the relief and prevention of famine in British India, it is necessary to effect a permanent increase of the revenue available for provincial purposes; and it is therefore expedient that persons carrying on trades, dealings and industries in the territories administered by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal should take out licenses and pay for the same; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. This Act shall be called "The License Tax Act, 1878," and it shall come into force from the date on which it may be published in the Calcutta Gazette with the assent of the Governor-General.

2. In this Act, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context—

"Section." means a section of this Act:

"Collector." means the Chief Officer in charge of the revenue administration of a district:

"The Commissioners," except in section 28, mean the Commissioners defined in Bengal Act V of 1876, and in section 28 the Commissioners defined in Bengal Act IV of 1876.

3. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to affect the tax on professions, trades, and callings imposed for municipal purposes by Bengal Act IV of 1876.

4. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to apply to persons earning their livelihood solely by agriculture, or to any cultivator of land as such in respect of the sale of the produce of his land, when he shall not regularly keep a shop or stall for the sale of such produce.

Every person who, on or after the 1st day of April 1878, falls under any of the heads of the Schedules hereto annexed, and carries on (whether on behalf of himself or any other person) his trade, dealing or industry shall take out a license under this Act, and shall pay for the same the annual fee specified in the same Schedules as payable by persons of the class to which he belongs.

6. Every license under this Act shall be granted by the Collector of the district in which the person requiring such license carries on his trade, dealing or industry, or by such officer as the Collector may appoint in this behalf. Provided that if the person requiring a license carries on his trade, dealing or industry in more than one district or place, the license shall be granted by the Collector having jurisdiction in the place in which the applicant's principal place of business is situated. The local Government shall have power to declare, in case of doubt, what shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be such principal place of business.

7. Every such license shall specify—

- (a) the date of the grant thereof;
- (b) the name, father's name, caste, if any, and the trade, dealing or industry of the licensee;
- (c) the fee paid for the license;

Commencement and expiration of licenses.

9. Every person to whom any such license has been granted, and who desires to continue to carry on his trade, dealing, or industry after the expiration thereof, shall take out a fresh license for that purpose for the following year, to expire on the day appointed in the last preceding section, and shall renew the same so long as he desires to carry on such trade, dealing or industry.

Renewal of license.

List of Licensees.

10. As soon as may be after the commencement of this Act and the first day of January in every subsequent year, the Collector shall prepare a list of the persons in the district or place aforesaid to be licensed under this Act for the year commencing on the 1st April following. Such list shall state—

Collector to prepare annual list of licensees.

- (a) the trade, dealing or industry of each of the persons therein named;
- (b) the class under which he is charged; and
- (c) the fee to be paid for his license.

Such list shall be in such language as the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal may direct, but a copy thereof in the language of the district shall be filed in the Office of the Collector, and shall be open to public inspection at all reasonable times without any payment. The Collector may, if he think fit, instead of preparing a fresh list each year, amend the existing list, which shall then be taken to be the list for the year commencing on the 1st of April next following such amendment.

11. The Collector shall from time to time determine under which of the classes mentioned in the Schedules hereto annexed every person to whom a license may be granted by him as aforesaid shall be charged, and shall amend the said list accordingly.

Collector to determine class under which license is to be charged.

12. The list, or such part or parts thereof as the Collector thinks fit, shall be published in the principal bazars, and at all police-stations of all towns, and at all sub-divisional offices, police-stations, and outposts in the district, and at some conspicuous place in all villages concerned, together with a notification setting forth the Schedule of this Act applicable to the place, and directing that if any person mentioned in the said list, or coming within the meaning of the said Schedule (whether he be mentioned in the list or not), continues his trade, dealing or industry, payment of the amounts specified in the said list or Schedule must be made by him within thirty days of the 1st April of each year.

13. The Collector may by a notice in writing require the occupier of any house or shop to forward to him a statement in writing signed by the occupier of the names of all persons residing in such house or working in such shop, and of their respective trades, dealings, industries, or occupations. Whoever, being the occupier of any house or shop, fails to forward such statement when required to do so under this section, shall on conviction before a Magistrate be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred rupees.

14. Any person mentioned in the list referred to in section 10 and objecting to the class in which he is charged, may within thirty days after its publication, or within such further time as the Collector may in each case think fit, apply by petition to the Collector in order to establish his right to have his name transferred to another class, or altogether removed from the list. The statements contained in every such petition shall be verified by the petitioner or some other competent person in the manner required by law for the verification of complaints. Whoever makes a statement in any such petition which is false, and which he either knows or believes to be false, or does not believe to be true, shall be deemed to have intentionally given false evidence in a stage of a judicial proceeding.

15. The Collector shall fix a day for the hearing of the petition, and on the day so fixed, or on such subsequent day, as he may from time to time direct, shall hear the same and pass such order thereon as he thinks fit.

There shall be no appeal from an order under this section.

16. The Collector may, for the purpose of enabling him to determine under which of the said classes the petitioner should be charged, summon and enforce the attendance of witnesses and compel them to give evidence, and compel the production of documents by the same means, and as far as possible in the same manner as is provided in the case of a Civil Court by the Code of Civil Procedure.

Provided that if, in his judgment, the petitioner is able to shew that the fee which has been charged exceeds two per cent. upon his annual earnings, such excess shall, for the purpose of section fourteen, be deemed a valid objection. The Collector may also on this ground reduce the amount of tax payable by any person under Class V of Schedule A, hereto annexed, to the tax payable under Class VI or Class VII, or the tax payable by any person under Class VI to the tax payable under Class VII, or may remit the tax payable by any person altogether.

Provided also that the Collector shall not, in the course of any proceedings under this section, call for any evidence except at the instance of the petitioner, or in order to ascertain the correctness of facts alleged by him.

17. The Collector may, subject to such rules as the local Government may lay down, remit the whole or any part of the fee payable under this Act by any person who has carried on his trade, dealing or industry for a portion of the year only.

18. The Collector may also, if the circumstances seem to warrant him, and subject as aforesaid, raise the tax payable by any person under Class VII of the said Schedule to the amount of tax payable under Class VI or Class V, or the tax payable by any person under Class VI to the amount of tax payable under Class V.

Power to increase fees payable by two lowest classes.

Power to remit fee.

19. A person carrying on several trades, dealings, or industries and coming under more than one of the designations in the said Schedule, shall be chargeable only under one of the said designations at the discretion of the Collector.

20. If after expiry of the period mentioned in the notification published under section 12 for payment of the amount specified therein, any person carries on his trade, dealing or industry without having taken out a license as required by this Act, he shall be liable, by order of the Collector, to pay a fine not exceeding thrice the amount payable by him in respect of such license, exclusive of the amount so payable; and on receipt of such payment the Collector shall grant him a license.

All sums due under this section, and all fees payable under this Act, shall, where the amount exceeds Rs. 50, be recoverable either as if they were arrears of land revenue or by distress and sale of the movables of the person liable at the discretion of the Collector. In all other cases they shall be recoverable by distress and sale of the movables of the person liable.

21. Every person required by this Act to take out a license who without reasonable excuse neglects or refuses to produce and show his license when required so to do by an officer generally or specially empowered in writing by the Collector to make such requisition, shall, on conviction before a Magistrate, be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred rupees.

Save so far as is provided in section 26, no person shall be proceeded against for any such offence except at the instance of the Collector.

22. Courts of Wards and receivers and managers appointed by any Court in British India shall be chargeable under this Act in respect of any trade, dealing or industry of which the income is officially in their possession or under their control.

23. When any trustee, guardian, curator, committee, or agent is charged under this Act in such capacity, or when any Court of Wards or receiver or manager appointed by any Court is charged under this Act, every Court and person so charged may, from time to time, out of the money coming to its or his possession as such trustee, guardian, curator, committee, or agent, or as such Court of Wards, receiver, or manager, retain so much as is sufficient to pay the fee charged.

Every such person or court is hereby indemnified for every retention and payment made in pursuance of this Act.

Municipalities.

24. The Collector may require the Commissioners, and the punchait of any union constituted under Bengal Act V of 1876, or any village punchait appointed under Bengal Act VI of 1870, to furnish, within a period to be specified under the orders of the local Government, returns showing the names and numbers of persons chargeable under this Act resident within the limits of their municipality or union, together with the class under which they respectively fall and the fees payable by them respectively.

If the Commissioners or the punchait fail within the period prescribed to make such returns, or if they make such returns and the Collector has reason to doubt their accuracy, he may at any time cause a return showing the names, numbers, and classes aforesaid to be prepared in such manner as may be prescribed by the local Government.

25. When the return mentioned in the last preceding section has been furnished or prepared for any municipality, station, or union, the local Government may call upon the Commissioners, or may direct the Magistrate in the case of a union, to pay to the Collector, within a period to be named by the local Government, a sum calculated on such return in accordance with the provisions of this Act. The Commissioners, and any Magistrate so called upon, shall have the same powers of recovering the fees chargeable under this Act within the limits of their town, station, or union that they have for the realization of municipal taxes under Bengal Act V of 1876.

26. The Commissioners and Magistrate as aforesaid may also take proceedings under sections 20 and 21 for the recovery of any penalties and fines; and all such penalties and fines shall, when so recovered, be credited to their Municipal, Station, or Union Fund, as the case may be.

27. The Commissioners and the Magistrate, in the case of any union, may appropriate any part of the revenues of their municipality, station, or union to defray any sum leviable from it under section 25; and if the sum so leviable is not defrayed at due date, the local Government may order it or any part of it to be deducted from any funds standing to the credit of the municipality, station, or union in any Government treasury.

Calcutta.

28. From every person who shall within the town of Calcutta exercise any of the trades, dealings, industries or callings included in the classes specified by Schedule B hereto annexed, the Commissioners shall levy the fees shown in the said Schedule, and shall pay to the local Government annually a sum to be fixed by such Government and calculated on the proceeds of such fees. Provided that it shall be in the power of the Chairman of the Commissioners to reduce the rate of tax payable by any person under this section to the tax payable under any lower class than that to which such person belongs, on it being shown to his satisfaction that the said rate amounts to more than two per cent. on the annual earnings of such person.

All the powers of a Collector under this Act, save as aforesaid, shall be exercised by the Chairman of the Commissioners, or some other officer authorized by him in that behalf. Section 26 shall apply to all penalties and fines incurred within the town of Calcutta.

Miscellaneous.

29. All taxes levied and penalties recovered under this Act (other than those assigned to Municipal, Station, and Union Funds under section 26) shall be paid to the credit of the local Government.

31. The following report of a Select Committee, with the Bill as amended by them, is published for general information:—

We the undersigned Members of the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal to whom the Bill "to extend the provisions of Bengal Act VII of 1873 (the Labor Districts Emigration Act) to the district of Chittagong and to the Chittagong Hill Tracts" was referred, have the honor to make the following report:—

The only substantial alteration that we have made in the Bill is in Section 3, now Section 4. As the laborers now serving in the district of Chittagong and the Chittagong Hill Tracts have not been conveyed there under contracts, but have contracted subsequent to their arrival, we have changed the wording of the section accordingly.

We recommend that the Bill as amended be passed.

NEW MEMBERS.

The Hon'ble MR. MACKENZIE and the Hon'ble MR. PRINSEP took their seats in Council.

HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT said:—"Before we proceed to the business of the Council as specified in the list which has been circulated, it will perhaps be convenient that I should attempt to bring together the threads of legislation in respect to this Council as they were broken off at the last meeting in the summer, and to point out what Bills we now have to consider in Council. First of all there is the Excise Law which we passed last session, but which was vetoed by the Governor-General, on the ground that section 40 of the Act passed by us interfered with the jurisdiction of the High Court and was therefore ultra vires of this Council. This is an objection which is unfortunately capable of application to nearly every Act which comes before us, and the interpretation which has been put upon the Indian Council's Act, though no doubt correct, is one which really restricts the authority of the local Councils so much that their powers have become exceedingly limited. The objectionable section in the Excise Bill has now been amended, but there are other parts of the Act which are considered to require examination and amendment, and I propose to refer the Bill back to a Select Committee.

The next Act passed by the Council which has been vetoed is the Court of Wards' Act. This Bill also I propose to refer back to a Select Committee, as there are certain points connected with it which seem to require further consideration.

The Ghatwali Police Bill is still before the Council. It, like the Excise Bill and the Court of Wards' Bill, has been vetoed by the Governor-General, and will require a considerable amount of alteration.

The Ferries Bill which has been before the Council I do not propose to proceed with. I cannot say that the principle upon which the Bill was based is in accordance with my view, and, under existing circumstances, it is not deemed advisable to bring it forward, and I think the subject may be dropped.

Next in order comes the Irrigation Bill. The Council will recollect that we postponed the consideration of this Bill for two reasons: partly because it was deemed necessary that investigations should be made on the spot as to the rights and interests of tenants and cultivators; and secondly, because it was not expected that much could be done until the cadastral surveys had been completed. These surveys have not yet been finished in Orissa; and in the meantime the agricultural classes in Behar have shown so thorough an appreciation of the scheme, and are so sensible of the benefits to be derived from canal irrigation, that I think it will be better, at present at least, to leave things as they are, as we shall perhaps get more under the voluntary system of working than under that contemplated in the Bill; while it is of course fairer in principle that the supply of water should be a matter of bargain between the Government that has the water to let and the people who wish to buy. I have lately been in communication with the leading zemindars of that province, and it appeared to be their wish to enter into contracts with the Government to take the water from the canals and thus to guarantee a certain amount of return to the State; whilst they themselves would distribute the water to their tenants, and recover the money which they advanced from their tenants. Several of the zemindars expressed a wish to do this, and a few days ago there was a meeting of several of the influential residents of Shahabad with Colonel Haig, the Chief Engineer in the Irrigation Department, and he seemed to think that a scheme of this sort might be carried out with advantage. I may mention that the Maharajah of Dumraon, who was greeted by the opponents of the irrigation scheme last year as being fully conscious of the ill-effects of irrigation, has applied for the services of an engineer whom he proposes to pay himself, in order that he may lay out in the whole of his estates village distributaries to carry the water; and things are on the whole so promising, that our difficulty is rather to supply sufficient water than to get rid of the water we have. I forget the exact quantity of water which has been thrown on the fields during the present rubbee season, but it approaches 200,000 acres of land, which was more than we expected to have been able to supply in the present condition of the canals. Similarly there was a large demand also for the khareef crop. With regard to Orissa the state of things is not so promising. Still even there there has been some inclination to enter into leases to take water, and I hope that by degrees something more may be done. But it is possible that with regard to Orissa we may have eventually to proceed with a scheme for an irrigation cess; but the cadastral survey has not gone far yet, and I do not intend to propose any measure for Orissa this year.

The next Bill is the Labour Districts Emigration Bill for Chittagong and the Chittagong Hill Tracts. We have not yet received the report of the Select Committee on this Bill, but I hope it will be brought forward at an early date, though the matter is not one which presses.

The Chota Nagpore Rent Bill has been drafted, and has been set down in the list of business to be read in Council this day.

The Bill relating to tolls on rivers and in market places is a Bill which I do not approve, and I propose to strike it out from the list of our current business.

I next come to the Rent Bill. As regards this Bill, I must explain to the Council that this subject is also one which, under the recent decision as to the powers of the local legislatures, is beyond the scope of the powers of this Council, and therefore it can be said to be no longer in the list of current business. I alluded to this subject last year, and pledged myself to give increased facilities for the recovery of rent, and accordingly I think it my duty to state how the matter stands. During the past year I have travelled over a good deal of the country; I have made careful inquiries, and have endeavoured to ascertain as far as possible the views of the officials and of the native community on the point. There are one or two principles on which all are agreed, and these we propose to embody in a Bill in such a form and shape as may be alike acceptable to the Council of the Governor-General, before which it will have to go, and to all classes of those concerned. The Bill will have, as heretofore, the duty of deciding rent suits in the hands of the civil courts. But with regard to all that class of cases which has respect to the recovery of rent at existing rates, some more speedy remedy will be proposed. We shall be careful to guard against mixing up demands for rent and matters involving, by implication or otherwise, questions of right or title to land; and what is now being discussed by the gentlemen to whom I have entrusted the duty of considering the subject, is how to do this in such a manner as to get rid of serious difficulties in the summary administration of the present rent law in respect to questions of right to land, which are often screened under applications of recovery of rent. However, as far as I have been able to gather from them, they appear to see their way to provide a speedy and summary process in the decision of cases and the execution of decrees in respect to what are purely demands for rent at existing rates, which shall not interfere with questions of right or title to land.

Then comes the Bill to define and limit the powers of settlement officers with respect to the enhancement of rent. The Bill has been revised, and I think is in a form which will get rid of all the objections which were raised to the late Bill, and it will be shortly laid before the Council.

There are questions which have been raised in various parts of the country in connection with the Road Cess Act. No doubt that Act requires amendment, but the amendments which have been suggested are hardly sufficiently definite to be put into the form of a Bill; but in the course of the winter I may have to ask the Council to consider these questions.

The only other measure which I propose to bring before the Council is a proposal which I am compelled to make, as I explained on Thursday last in the Council of the Governor-General, for a license tax on trades, dealings, and industries, in order that we may be in a position to meet a requisition to increase local taxation to such an extent as shall enable the local Government to pay the sum of thirty lakhs of rupees annually, in common with other provinces, to a fund which is to be raised by taxation throughout the whole of India for famine purposes. It is admitted by all, I think, that some such fund must be raised, and I hope no opposition will be advanced to the Bill. I have considered the subject with reference to local taxation generally; and of all the proposals made and schemes submitted from a number of sources, I see none which is likely to be so applicable to, and to fall so fairly on, the classes which pay the least to the revenue as a license tax on trades, dealings, and industries, the nature of which will be explained, by my hon'ble friend Mr. Mackenzie, who will to-day ask for leave to introduce a Bill for that purpose."

AMENDMENT OF THE RENT LAW (CHOTA NAGPORE).

THE HON'BLE MR. REYNOLDS moved that the Bill to amend the procedure in suits between landlords and tenants in Chota Nagpore be read in Council.

He said that it would be in the recollection of the Council that leave to introduce this Bill had been given so long ago as November 1876. It was found, however, that the measure required to be carefully elaborated in communication with the local officers; and in the end it had proved impossible to get the Bill drafted in time to allow of its introduction during the last session. The Bill had now been drafted and was in the hands of hon'ble members; the details of it had been very carefully considered, and he believed it would be found that the measure in its present form was such as would commend itself to the approval of the Council, and would be likely to work in a satisfactory manner in the districts to which it was intended to apply.

In moving last year for leave to introduce this Bill, he had briefly referred to the special circumstances which made it desirable, and indeed necessary, that a separate rent law should be passed for Chota Nagpore. It would, however, be seen that it was proposed to restrict the operation of the Bill to the three districts of Lohardugga, Hazareebagh, and Singbhoom. It was not desired that the special legislation required for these districts should be extended to any part of the province which could safely be left to the operation of the ordinary law, and it was accordingly provided that the Bill should not extend to Manbhoom. The district of Manbhoom, both in the character of its population and in the nature of its local tenures, assimilated very closely to an ordinary Bengal district, and rent proceedings in it might very well be conducted under the ordinary law.

The condition of things in the other three districts was very different, and the necessity for a special law had been strongly urged upon the Government in 1875 by Colonel Dalton, whose intimate acquaintance with the province of Chota Nagpore was well known. The suggestion was approved by Sir Richard Temple in a Minute recorded by him, and the details of the measure were then discussed with the Board of Revenue and the local officers. He might mention in particular that the Government were specially indebted to the late Judicial Commissioner, Colonel Davies, and the present Judicial Commissioner, Mr. Oliphant, for some very valuable remarks and suggestions on the proposed legislation.

It appeared that in Chota Nagpore generally Act X of 1859 was recognized as the rent law in force. But in practice, several important modifications had been made which rested on no specific legal basis, but upon orders of the executive authorities. He did not at all mean to imply that there was anything illegal in these orders. The districts of Chota Nagpore, ever since the province was constituted as a separate administration under Regulation XIII of 1833, had always formed part of the non-regulation districts, or, as they were now termed, "scheduled districts;" and Act XIV of 1874 described these districts as territories which were not subject to the general Acts and Regulations. But it was one of the objects of that Act gradually to replace this undetermined state of things by the issue of notifications which should declare precisely what laws were and were not in force in each of the districts referred to. If this Bill should pass into law, the result would be that it would be notified as embodying the rent law for the three districts to which it applied, and Act X of 1859 would be similarly notified as containing the rent law in force in Manbhoom, unless, indeed, it should be thought desirable to bring the district of Manbhoom under the operation of Act VIII of 1869 of that Council.

Coming now to the special modifications of the rent law, which were found to exist in the districts to which the Bill applied, the first point to which he would ask the attention of the Council was with respect to the section of Act X of 1859, which referred to the right of occupancy. It did not appear that there was any special order making this section inoperative in Chota Nagpore. But, as a matter of fact, it was found that the right was never claimed, and that the ryots, or at least the great majority of them, were entirely in ignorance of its existence. This being the case, it had been a matter for consideration whether it was desirable legally to recognize this occupancy right. But there appeared to be no good reason for excluding the Chota Nagpore ryot from this privilege, and accordingly the section of the rent law relating to the right of occupancy had been substantially reproduced in section 6 of the Bill before the Council.

Admitting that occupancy rights were to be recognised, the next question was regarding the conditions under which the rent of an occupancy ryot might be enhanced. On this point there was an unanimous consensus of opinion that the conditions laid down in section 17 of Act X of 1859 were entirely inapplicable to the special circumstances of the Chota Nagpore province. He need not trouble the Council with the details of the several points in which these conditions were inapplicable. The question was fully discussed in a note on the subject by Mr. WHEATLEY, who was well acquainted with the country, and was for some time manager of the Chota Nagpore estate. His opinion was acquiesced in by all the officers who were consulted. They said that the provisions of Act X of 1859 in respect of this matter could not be applied, and that some special procedure must be put in force; and this was provided by sections 21--24 of the present Bill.

The next question related to the power of distraint; and it was to be observed that in Chota Nagpore this power had never been recognized as a means of enforcing the payment of rent, and there was reason to apprehend that serious agrarian difficulties and complications might result if the levy of rent by that process were to be legally authorized. This point had been strongly insisted upon by Colonel Dalton, and it was also noticed in the Minute of Sir Richard Temple, and accordingly the provisions of Act X of 1859 relating to distraint had been omitted from the Bill. It might be thought that the absence of this power would involve some hardship to the zemindars, who were required to pay the Government revenue under the same penalties of sale as were in force in the regulation districts. But it would be found that this argument did not really apply to Chota Nagpore, in which the land revenue of the province was so lightly assessed, and bore so small a proportion to the rental as to render it unnecessary that landholders should be vested with that summary power of distraint which was required in other districts.

The Bill further provided that the right to eject a non-occupancy ryot should not be exercised except under a decree of court. This provision was in accordance with the uniform practice of the province, and was declared by all the local officers to be a necessary provision.

The sections of the Bill which referred to the sale of property in executions of decrees had been wrongly quoted in the Statement of Objects and Reasons; the reference should have been to sections 127, 131, and 132. It was provided by those sections that sales of landed property should be made only with the sanction of the Commissioner of the division, and this was in accordance with the practice at present in force. Indeed, if we looked to the history of the question, it might be doubted whether these sales should be allowed at all. These were really feudal tenures or fiefs, granted by the zemindar to a certain person and his heirs, with a reversion to the zemindar in the event of the failure of heirs of the grantee. They thus conveyed a qualified, and not an absolute, property; and it would have been reasonable to enact that the tenures themselves should not be sold, but only the rights and interests of the holders. It appeared, however, that sales of these tenures, subject to the sanction of the Commissioner, had been generally recognized, and it was thought that there would be some hardship in either declaring such sales invalid in the past, or in prohibiting them for the future. It was accordingly provided that sales of land in execution of decrees should be permitted subject to the approval of the Commissioner of the division; and the local officers agreed in recommending this procedure.

The provisions to which Mr. BARNARD had referred were for the most part in limitation of the powers exercised by zemindars under the ordinary law. As some set-off to these, it was to be observed that section 84 of the Bill contained some special and rather stringent provisions for enforcing the registration of the transfers of under-tenures. These were intended for the protection of the zemindars in their rights as superior landlords, and the necessity for these provisions had been very strongly urged by the late Judicial Commissioner Colonel Davies.

MR. REYNOLDS did not think there were any other points in the Bill which demanded the special attention of the Council. It would doubtless be remembered that, in passing a rent law for Chota Nagpore they were legislating for a territory, the conditions of which differed in many important particulars from those of the Lower Provinces in general. In Chota Nagpore they had the peculiar phenomenon of a society which was not only of a very primitive and conservative type, but in which the landlords in general belonged to one race and the tenants to another. The zemindars were, or at least claimed to be, Rajpoots: the tenants were for the most part men of the aboriginal race. The present Bill was an attempt to hold the balance evenly and fairly between the interests of these two classes, and, as such, he desired to commend it to the favorable consideration of the Council.

With these remarks he begged to move that the Bill be read in Council.

The motion was agreed to, and the Bill referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Baboo Isser Chunder Mitter, the Hon'ble Nawab Meer Mahomed Ali, and the Mover, with instructions to report in four weeks.

SETTLEMENT OFFICERS' POWERS OF ENHANCEMENT AS TO RENT.

THE HON'BLE MR. REYNOLDS moved for leave to introduce a Bill to define and limit the powers of settlement officers in respect to the enhancement of rent. He said that the necessity for legislation on this question was brought to the notice of Government in the course of the extensive settlement operations which had lately been undertaken in the district of Midnapore. These operations embraced the Government estate of Balarampore, and also the two large private estates of Jellamootah and Majnamootah, which were under temporary settlement, and which together comprised no less than twenty-one pergunnahs of the district.

The wording of Regulation VII of 1822 empowered settlement officers to determine the rates of rent to be paid by any cultivating ryot whether he possessed a right of occupancy or not, if he did not hold a permanent and transferable interest in the land. But it had been held by the civil courts that when this determination of the rate of rent by a settlement officer involved, as it generally did involve, an enhancement of the rent previously paid, the Regulation did not dispense with the necessity for serving a notice of enhancement, and that the ryot was just as much entitled to contest his liability to pay the enhanced rent fixed by a settlement officer, as he had to contest enhancements made by landlords under the ordinary law. And further, the Civil Court would not even accept any presumption that the rate fixed by a settlement officer was prima facie fair and reasonable. The burden of proof was thrown on the party who claimed the enhanced rent, and the court reserved to itself the right to decide upon the correctness of the rate which the settlement officer had fixed.

If this was a correct interpretation of the law, he need not remind the Council that the condition of things in Bengal was very different from that in the North-Western Provinces. In the North-Western Provinces, under the Revenue Act XIX of 1873, a settlement officer had full power to determine the status of any ryot, and the rate of rent to be paid by him during the term of the settlement; and the decision of the settlement officer on these points was only liable to be reviewed by the superior revenue authorities, the civil courts being debarred from dealing with such questions. It had been suggested by the Board of Revenue that it would be desirable to assimilate the law in Bengal to that in the North-Western Provinces. But on consideration the Government thought that it was unnecessary to ask the Council to invest settlement officers with such extensive powers, involving the determination of questions of right and title which seemed rather to belong to the cognizance of the civil than of the revenue courts.

It would consequently be found that the object of the Bill was rather to define and limit, than in any way to extend, the powers of settlement officers. It seemed doubtful whether, under the wording of Regulation VII of 1822, a settlement officer, in enhancing the rent of an occupancy ryot, was limited by the conditions of section 17 of Act X of 1859. But the Bill proposed to declare that no ryot having a right of occupancy should be liable to enhancement of his rent, except in accordance with some one of the conditions specified in that section; and when that was done, it seemed fair and reasonable that it should be presumed that the rate of rent so fixed by a settlement officer was a proper rate, until the contrary should be shown to the satisfaction of the court; and that any ryot who desired to contest an enhancement of rent, should be required to do so within a reasonably moderate period, which the Bill proposed to fix at three months from the ryot's receiving notice to attend and sign the settlement jumabundee.

These were the provisions of the Bill. It was a short measure, and had been drafted, but had not yet been circulated, and therefore for the present MR. REYNOLDS would only ask for leave to introduce the Bill.

The motion was put and agreed to.

LICENSE TAX ON TRADES, DEALINGS, AND INDUSTRIES.

THE HON'BLE MR. MACKENZIE asked the President, under Rule VII of the Rules for the conduct of business, to grant him leave to move for permission to bring in a Bill for the licensing of arts, trades, and dealings in the provinces subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal. On leave being given he said:— "Before describing to the Council the details of the proposed measure, I desire to explain as briefly and clearly as I can its origin and history, and the place which it is intended to occupy in our provincial finance. In doing this, I cannot altogether avoid reiterating statements that have been made elsewhere; but it is essential that the proceedings of this Council should be complete in themselves, and we have to examine things here from the view-point mainly of the local Government.

I must ask the Council, then, to recall to mind the beginning and objects of the policy of which this measure is the final outcome. In December 1870 the Supreme Government announced that imperial resources were no longer adequate to the growing wants of the country; that they had indeed ceased to be adequate even to existing and sanctioned demands. Local Governments, we were told, like leeches' daughters, sent up one constant cry of "give"—supporting their pleas by such admirable argument that the Government of India had fairly beggared itself in a vain endeavour to meet their wishes. That Government had now therefore placed these well-meaning prodigals upon a fixed allowance, and required them to supply their further wants otherwise than by inroads upon the parental purse. In official phraseology, it was determined "to enlarge the powers and responsibilities of local Governments in respect of the public expenditure," and to inaugurate a system of "local taxation for local purposes" throughout the various provinces of India.

The extent of the relief required by the Imperial Exchequer was at one time, it may be remembered, matter of very serious doubt. It was feared that nothing less than the equivalent of the income tax at $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. would satisfy imperial needs; that the services to be transferred to provincial management would be made over with grants reduced by that amount; and that new provincial taxation to that extent would have been necessary at the very outset of the scheme. Eventually, however, the control of seven great spending departments was made over to the Government of Bengal with an assignment about 7 per cent. less than the reduced budget allotments of 1870-71. We were at the same time warned—and the warning was then but little noticed—that fiscal misfortune, such as a failure of the opium revenue, or national disaster, such as war or famine, would involve a reopening of the terms of these provincial contracts.

The Government of Bengal under these arrangements began the year 1871-72 with an apparent deficit of 8½ lakhs of rupees, and Sir George Campbell hesitated long whether to pinch the departments or to tax the public. On the one hand were the facts, tempting to taxation, that Bengal was by far the richest province in India, by far the most lightly taxed, and by far the most backward in local improvements. On the other hand frowned the difficulties,—the entire absence of co-ordinated local agency, the vastness of the tracts and populations to be dealt with, the multiplicity of villages, and the paucity of towns. The difficulties were gross and palpable, and the Lieutenant-Governor shrank from facing them. Economy, and not taxation, was the policy adopted: and so stern (I had almost said, so Scotch) was the economy, so relentless the saving, that the first year of provincial finance wrung from the imperial allotment an unexpected surplus of 14 lakhs of rupees. Doubtless this was in some degree eked out by windfalls and adjustments of account; but it had involved what was felt to be a partial paralysis in many important branches of administration—a paralysis most uncongenial to the temperament of him who ruled us, and never contemplated or desired by the Government of India. The reaction was speedy, complete, and necessary. New schemes and old services were clamant for funds, and it was impossible long to stifle the just demands of great departments. The money was distributed almost as soon as saved.

Nevertheless we were still able to avoid all fresh provincial taxation. The development of local taxation, properly so-called, had by this time begun to relieve our Exchequer of many new demands. Indeed it was Sir George Campbell's hope that the road cess in the country, and revised municipal arrangements in towns, would together blend into a system of local rating, which would make general taxation unnecessary for any ordinary ends. And although the Bengal Municipal Bill as passed bears only a remote resemblance to the Municipal Bill as originally framed, we can still say that, but for forces beyond our own control, the Government of Bengal would probably have continued solvent and saving, able to pay its honest way and reap a modest surplus, though perhaps it could never have undertaken many new and important works. This is clear from the fact that but for the scarcity of 1874, our balances at the close of the following year would have aggregated full 20 lakhs of rupees, notwithstanding all our outlay upon Burdwan fever, primary education, and subordinate executive establishments.

Famine, however, both here and elsewhere, has played havoc with higher finance than ours, and Bengal has to bear its share of the heavy burden that has fallen on the State at large. It is not for me to criticise the policy which the Imperial Government has under these circumstances adopted, for it commands, I believe, the approval of all thinking men. Here we have only to deal with facts, and to carry out loyally the policy of the Crown. There can, Sir, be no question as to the duty of a Provincial Government in a juncture of this kind. There should be no question as to the attitude of the provincial public. I am not myself disposed to speak evil of provincialism. I believe in the virtues of strong healthy local feeling. If men take no interest in what is nearest them, any interest they profess in things remote is mostly sham. But there are occasions when sympathies must take a wider range. We in Bengal may well be proud of our province, of its growing enlightenment, of its marvellous trade, and its advancing wealth. We may feel at times, like all elder sons, that the younger brethren get too many of the plums and less than their share of crust. But at a strait like this we must rise to our position as the premier province of the Empire, and consider how much, and not how little, we can do to help the State. Then, duty done, we may for the rest, and on being occasionally overlooked, console ourselves with the thought—

"How the best State to know? It is found out,
Like the best woman, that least talked about."

To meet all unremunerative expenditure out of income, and to establish a permanent surplus for the future—this was, in fewest words, the object kept in view in the Financial Statement of the 15th March. Leaving the question of famine for future consideration, the Government of India sought to obtain that surplus by a bold and threefold extension of the decentralisation plan. The income of the empire was, in the first place, to be increased by transferring to provincial control certain great branches of improveable revenue; secondly, expenditure was still further to be checked by multiplying the services under provincial management; and lastly, those extraordinary works which serve a chiefly local end were in future to be maintained by local or provincial funds. Now this last change, to Bengal at least, meant new taxation. Suggestions as to the character of this taxation were authoritatively given us. We were advised to redistribute the charges laid upon us, so as to adapt the burden locally to the benefits received. Compulsory local rating for canals was shown to satisfy this condition. Again, so far as general taxation might be required, expansion of existing cesses was declared preferable to new and unfamiliar imposts. This Council therefore, at its last session, was asked to consider a Bill for the imposition of a compulsory rate upon irrigable lands, and a Bill for the levy, through the road cess machinery, of a cess for the construction and maintenance of provincial public works. The last of these measures has become law, and imposes, chiefly on the agricultural and landed classes, an annual burden of some 30 lakhs of rupees. If the Irrigation Bill eventually passes, it too will affect only persons interested in lands, within certain limited areas.

So far the Government of India had only provided in a general way for a moderate improvement of departmental revenues, for a further check upon departmental expenditure, and for the charges on account of maintaining remunerative public works. The problem of providing financially against recurrent famine was, as I have said, reserved in March last for future consideration. The mode in which the Government of India proposes to meet this question has, within the last few days, been clearly explained to the public. We have here simply to accept the fact that Bengal must raise for the common weal a further subsidy of some 30 lakhs.

We cannot give this of our existing means. The public works cess will, for some years to come, at best do little more than meet the interest and working charges on existing railways and canals. It will certainly not enable us to meet the interest on the capital required for that complete and improved system of railway communications which Bengal still sadly needs. On the other hand, the margin of surplus to be earned by improving our revenues is as yet unknown, and will in any case come nowhere near the sum that I have named. Not only have we from this source to make good to the Supreme Government the assumed normal increment of our stamp and excise receipts, but we have to meet a further reduction of about 4 per cent. upon the already reduced allotments of 1871-72, besides a gross reduction of $1\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs upon the allotments of two of the heads of service last made over to us. Again, it must always be remembered that no great reductions of expenditure are possible to the local Government if it does its duty properly. It may practice small economies, re-distribute allotments, and avoid needless increase of expenditure, but it is bound to maintain provincial services on the lines laid down by higher authority. It can neither change the system nor starve the departments. To obtain the funds that we require, then, fresh taxation is our only standby.

We have been allowed considerable latitude of discussion with reference to its shape. So long as we did not attempt an income tax, or trench on imperial resources, we might probably have had any tax that suited us, though of course uniformity with other provinces was most desirable. At any rate we gave this question of the shape of the tax much consideration. All the canons of taxation laid down in the books, and all the canons of taxation deemed special to India, have been duly paraded and duly pondered. "Indirect taxation," say some, "is the only form of taxation suited to this country." This is one of the canons usually now-a-days deemed axiomatic. And indirect taxation is, I admit, in many respects a delightful mode of raising money. You take away a large percentage of a man's earnings, and he is not one whit the wiser, and (what is better still) never cares to ask about how you spend it. If only those who are so fond of enunciating the canon would go on to show us in detail how we, as a local Government, can raise 30 lakhs of rupees by indirect taxation, they would confer on us an inestimable benefit. To bring in the sum that we require such a tax must be laid upon some article or articles of very extensive consumption. We cannot tax grain any more than air or drinking-water. Salt it is beyond our province to touch. Sayer, in the shape of internal duties on commodities in general, we would not if we could revive. A tax on tobacco and pān is the only indirect tax properly so called that deserves serious consideration. But after careful scrutiny we (I speak here only for Bengal) have come to the old conclusion that, save perhaps by organising a great imperial monopoly, no revenue of moment could be raised from tobacco either by a tax on cultivation or a tax on sales save at such a cost of collection, and with such an amount of prevention and interference with the people, as would make the tax a piece of sheer financial madness. From pān by itself only a trivial revenue could be had. (I need not weary the Council by discussing the question of a tobacco monopoly, though some go so far as to think that such a scheme might rehabilitate our Indian finance, and enable us in time, by improved manufacture and so on, to command the custom of all smoking Europe. The question is imperial, and the idea of a monopoly is not likely to find favor at home. Moreover, we want this money speedily, and arguments on principles take years to settle.) Then again we are told that sumptuary and optional taxes are the best form of taxation. But to each and all of these is the objection that they would not be sufficiently productive in a country of poor men. A marriage tax in Bengal at any reasonable rates would probably yield not more than 4 or 5 lakhs of rupees, could only be worked through the police, and is open to various objections when affecting Mahomedans. The question of a succession duty was disposed of in the Gazette of India of the 8th February 1868. Taxes on footmen, powder, crests, and plate, are hardly feasible as yet, and their Indian equivalents would yield but little to the State. But it may be asked why not, by a combination of small sumptuary and indirect taxes, raise what you require? To this we reply that we know of no combination of unobjectionable taxes that would give us the money; and, after careful consideration, we have thought it best to avoid multifarious measures of taxation, and to raise the sum we want without distracting the same classes of the people by taxes of different kinds coming upon them at the same moment, even though some of these might appear to be either optional or indirect.

We require, to cover the famine subsidy, with costs of collection, and to give a small margin for risk and trouble, something like 35 to 37 lakhs of rupees. We propose to raise this sum by a direct license tax upon arts, trades, and dealings. We can at present lay no further burden upon the land. We prefer rather to remove the invidious exemption that, since the repeal of the income tax, trade and commerce have enjoyed. Looking to the amounts raised from land under existing cesses, the demand now to be made upon industry and trade is not, we submit, excessive. The trade of Bengal is year by year receiving fresh developments. It has profited by the misfortunes of our own agriculturists. It benefits by every calamity in neighbouring provinces. It shares in the improving condition of both peasant and landowner, but contributes less than either of them to the Exchequer of the State. The import and export trade of this Presidency, excluding Government transactions, was, in 1876-77, 17·43 per cent. greater than in the year preceding. The gross exports alone were 26 per cent. in excess of those of 1875-76. The trader is everywhere, as Mr. Massey once remarked, though a valuable, still a very expensive, member of the community. To enable him to carry on his business large sums are spent in public works. It is he who benefits most by good police and all the paraphernalia of protective administration. In Europe, traders were the earliest class subjected to special tax. In India, direct taxes upon trade were a normal feature under native rule, are consonant with both Hindu and Mahomedan law and practice, and have been common under our own legislation, both local and imperial. But at present, with the exception of his individual share of the duty on salt, and his individual share of the import duties on articles consumed by him, the trader and the artisan in Bengal pay nothing to the public Exchequer for the benefits they enjoy. We propose to remedy this anomaly.

The Lieutenant-Governor has explained elsewhere why the tax we now propose is not upon the model of those of 1867 and 1868. By no possibility could we raise the sum required by any reasonable rate of tax upon trade incomes of Rs. 200 and upwards, such as Mr. Massey's license tax and certificate tax affected. A country where, though the craving for land is as strong as in Ireland, 80 per cent. of the suits about real property are valued at less than Rs. 100, is not a country with many wealthy men. It is a mere truism to say that any tax in India, to be largely productive, must go down in some way or other to the masses, and be adapted to the general circumstances of those who form these masses. It's "mony a mickle that mak's the muckle" in Indian finance, and we feel the less hesitation in taxing the petty trader and the artisan, because we see every ryot in the country contributing to cesses according to his rental.

There are, according to the census, about 4 millions of adults carrying on arts, trades, and dealings other than agricultural throughout Bengal. We assume that probably one-fourth of these will be able to pay tax, and we propose to levy on them a light general license tax at rates ranging from Rs. 1 to Rs. 200 annually. We have sought to grade the tax for Bengal so as to make anything like minute perquisition into income or profits unnecessary. Local officers should, for instance, have no difficulty in settling whether a man should pay Rs. 32 or Rs. 100: whether he should pay Rs. 10 or Rs. 32. The most general knowledge of a trader's style and means will enable the Collector to grade him according to those rates. We may by our rules prescribe that the Collector's general aim should be so to classify as not to impose upon incomes, so far as known or proved, more than a certain percentage of tax, but nothing of the nature of an income tax is at all intended. The highest fee of all (Rs. 200) will be paid only by certain specified wholesale traders, bankers, companies, and the like. Substantial retail traders will pay Rs. 100, Rs. 32, or Rs. 10, according to class. In the lower grades the normal rate of tax will be settled by considerations of locality. In first class municipalities Rs. 4, in smaller towns and unions Rs. 2, and in mofussil villages Rs. 1, will be the normal rates. But Collectors will have power to make a well-to-do man pay Rs. 4 or Rs. 2 wherever he may be found, and to reduce or remit the rates in cases where poverty makes the normal tax unduly heavy. We have tried, however, to leave as little as possible in the power of assessors. We propose also, in framing the lists of licensees, to make as much use as we can of existing local agencies, such as municipalities and union punchayets. These already possess lists of individuals residing within their limits, and can, with proper supervision, easily do the work of selection and classification. The Council will consider whether village punchayets under Bengal Act. VI of 1870 can be similarly used. The Bill, as framed, assumes that they can. In the work of collection, we propose again to make use of municipal and union machinery, making it worth while for those agencies to act as our collectors. For the rest of the country Government must provide an agency, and I will only say that it will be our object in all arrangements to reduce to a minimum the harassment of individuals by providing for collection at local centres and for strict supervision of the subordinate agency. The tax is in its nature so simple that it is hoped all liable to it will easily understand their obligations, and thus anything like illegal exaction be next to impossible. I attach much importance in this connection to the fact that the tax will be paid in one annual instalment. If any licensee cannot possibly pay up the tax to which he is assessed in one sum, he will have a claim to be put in a lower grade. If a man cannot possibly pay one rupee he ought not to be taxed at all. There will be no half-yearly, quarterly, or monthly dunnings. The tax is not, it will be seen, a tax upon households, firms, or partnerships, but upon individuals. Any other arrangement would in the interior give rise to endless disputes as to liabilities. But we shall lay down rules for reducing the gross assessment of a family when its members are living and working together. Our object in all our proposals has been to minimise as far as possible the ordinary evils of direct taxation. We are not without hope that we have to some extent succeeded.

In conformity with the principle of avoiding multifarious imposts, those persons who pay license tax will be relieved of the house cess which they now pay under the Road Cess and Public Works Cess Acts. This will be recognised in the mofussil as a very substantial boon. That the house cess is a thoroughly unpopular tax is, I believe, beyond doubt. The disputes as to liability and as to correctness of valuation, the claims to exemption, the constant changes in the lists from death and desertion, the inefficiency of the collecting machinery, and the repeated periodical demands, all combine to make the exaction hateful to both Collectors and Assessors. It would realize, at best, but about 1½ lakhs per annum, and the collections are always persistently in arrear. Its abolition should alone reconcile the mofussil trader to this license tax.

The arrangements proposed for Calcutta are in some degree special, in order to work the tax upon existing lines and avoid conflicting demands. Briefly, we adopt the third schedule of the Calcutta Municipal Act, under which a license tax is already levied on professions, trades, and callings; raising the rates for a few of the wealthier trades to those proposed for the mofussil; and tacking on at the bottom the arts and industries not at present touched by the Calcutta schedule. We have not excluded the few professions that are in Calcutta affected by the present schedule. They are flourishing and well-to-do, and have shared in the special prosperity of Calcutta as a town. Generally, however, and in the interior, we do not intend to tax professions, or those earning their living by service on fixed salaries. These classes suffer from the undoubted rise of prices without being able to recoup themselves, and the Europeans among them have been specially mulcted by the fall in exchange. But our main reason for excluding them is that we are not proposing an income tax upon all classes, but an ordinary trade license tax for a specific purpose.

We estimate the proceeds of the license tax at from 35 to 37 lakhs of rupees. It may bring less; it may bring more. Experience only can show. The number of taxable persons is at present to a great extent matter of conjecture. The Government will regulate the demand hereafter by the results of the first year's working. If it turns out to be very productive, we may be able to remit other forms of taxation, and we can always utilize any unappropriated balance for provincial improvements.

This, then, is the Bill which we have to submit to the Council. That it will be received by the country at large with acclamation, or that it is beyond all reach of criticism, we do not expect.

"He that expects a faultless tax to see, Expects what never was, nor is, nor e'er shall be!"

The Government is fully sensible of the difficulty of the task before it, but it believes that the measure is difficult rather from its magnitude than by its intricacy; and we are encouraged to go on by the opinion of the most experienced officers, both now and when a similar measure was proposed in Act XVIII of 1861, that a tax of the kind is feasible even in Bengal. The Government relies upon the energy and devotion of its officers to bring about in the end a successful issue. It relies at the same time upon the loyalty and intelligence—shall I not say, the patriotism—of the people of Bengal. These taxes are not required by us to bolster up unholy war, or carry carnage through a neighbour's land. We do not wring from toil its tribute to satisfy a sovereign's lust, or raise in far off capitals memorials of conquest. We seek to save the lives and not to filch the earnings of the poor, and we demand from the people of Bengal the means of warding from their doors that famine spectre that has slain already so many of their brethren, and may, for aught we know, be knocking at their own homes in the early future. Whether our object will be understood by all we cannot tell. But we do trust that educated natives, by their speech and by their writings, will lead their countrymen to the truth in this important matter, and rise superior to paltry cavil, recognising the urgency and greatness of the need. But whatever be the view taken by the people as a whole, the sympathies and aid of this Council will not be wanting to the head of this Government, into whose hands was put but yesterday what (if I may quote Carlyle) "seemed to be the rudder of Government, but has for the present turned out rather the spigot of taxation, wherewith he must tap, and the more cunningly the nearer the lees."

With these remarks I beg to move for leave to bring in the Bill.

The motion was agreed to.

POWERS OF SETTLEMENT OFFICERS AS TO ENHANCEMENT OF RENT.

THE HON'BLE MR. REYNOLDS moved that the Bill to define and limit the powers of settlement officers in respect to the enhancement of rents be read in Council. He said in moving that the Bill be read, it would not be necessary to add very much to what he said at the last meeting of the Council in moving for leave to introduce the Bill: The Bill was a short and simple measure, and hon'ble members could easily satisfy themselves that it was framed in accordance with the outlines which he had sketched on the previous occasion. The object of limiting the powers of settlement officers was effected by section 2, which provided that no settlement officer should enhance the rent of any ryot who had a right of occupancy except on some one of the grounds prescribed in the Rent Law; in other words, in the cases in which landlords themselves might enhance. But when this had been done, and when the registers had been confirmed by the superior revenue contractors, it seemed only reasonable that the rate of rent fixed by the settlement officers should be presumed correct until the contrary was shown to the satisfaction of the Civil Court, and that if a ryot desired to contest the proceeding of the settlement officer, he should be required to do it within a reasonable period of time. Mr. Reynolds did not think he need detain the Council any further.

THE HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL said, in supporting this Bill, he wished to make one or two suggestions. The object of the Bill was to reduce litigation, and he thought the provisions of the Bill would apply equally well to wards' estates and attached estates in the hands of Government, which were practically administered by the Collector during the minority of the ward, or the time during which the estate was under attachment. He would also suggest that where the zemindar should be willing to avail himself of the agency of the revenue authorities in making settlements, he should be allowed to petition the Collector for the employment of such agency, on behalf of the zemindar, provided he found the cost of such agency. In all cases the right of the ryot to contest the decision of the settlement officer in the Civil Court would of course be given. If the principle of the Bill were extended in this general way, Baboo Kristo Dass Pal thought it would help greatly to reduce litigation between landlord and tenant, and relieve the Civil Courts to a considerable extent. He threw out these hints for the consideration of hon'ble members and the Select Committee to whom the Bill would be referred.

The motion was agreed to, and the Bill referred to a Select Committee, consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Prinsep, the Hon'ble Baboo Ram Shunker Sen, and the mover, with instructions to report in two weeks.

LICENSE TAX ON TRADES, DEALINGS, AND INDUSTRIES.

THE HON'BLE MR. MACKENZIE said that in moving that this Bill be read in Council he had but little to add to the lengthy statement that tired the patience of the Council at its last meeting. On that occasion, although the Bill was not formally introduced, he was able to place in the hands of hon'ble members a proof copy of its provisions. In the Bill as now before Council, some few alterations have been made to which he might be permitted briefly to refer.

In the first place the title and phraseology of the Bill had been slightly modified, so as to show more clearly the intent and incidence of the taxation proposed. Instead of a tax upon "arts, trades, and dealings," the wording would be in future a tax upon "trades, dealings, and industries." He need hardly say that this modification involved no change of plan. Government used the word "arts" originally in the simple sense of métier, and not with any reference to the fine arts (if such there were in India), the art of medicine, the art of making the worse appear the better reason, or other arts of the nature of professions. But to avoid any misunderstanding they had amended the phrase to one about which no doubt could arise.

Then, again, some of his native friends, with keen prevision of possible abuses, had expressed a fear lest, under the Bill as it stood, some zealous canongo or heartless sub-deputy should seize and tax those poverty-stricken old ladies who lived by peddling odds and ends at country markets. Government had no desire to tax these dames or any others, male or female, who were similarly afflicted and distressed in worldly estate. Accordingly they had inserted a provision that the tax should not be more than two per cent. upon the earnings of any one brought under it. The lowest rate of tax being one rupee, hon'ble members would see that all incomes of less than fifty rupees would thus be able to claim exemption.

This introduction of the principle of percentage was, it would be observed, not a surreptitious recurrence to the close assessments of the income-tax, but merely the provision of an ultimate standard to which the assessee, and he only, might appeal if he disputed the rough classification of the Collector. It might be desirable, however, with reference to this change, to revise the rates of tax proposed in the schedule, so as to assimilate them more closely to some of the rates in the Bills now before the Supreme Council. The local Government did not propose to abandon their own principle of widely distinct grades, but perhaps instead of Rs. 100, Rs. 32, Rs. 10, and Rs. 4, they might take Rs. 100, Rs. 50, Rs. 15, and Rs. 5, rates affecting respectively incomes of and over Rs. 5,000, Rs. 2,500, Rs. 750, and Rs. 250 per annum.

To discourage more positively all inquisitorial procedure, they had adopted also the proviso of the North-Western Provinces Bill that no evidence should ever be called for by the Collector save at the instance of a petitioner, or in order to test facts alleged by an objector to the Collector's assessment.

Lastly, they had both in the preamble and in the section regarding the disposal of the proceeds of the tax made it clear that the object of the measure was to enable provincial resources to meet charges incurred, or to be incurred, here or elsewhere, on account of famine.

With these remarks he begged to move that the Bill be now read in Council.

THE HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL said, he believed he spoke the sense of the Council when he said that they felt greatly beholden to the hon'ble mover of the Bill for his able, elaborate, and eloquent exposition of the circumstances which had led to the proposed measure. There could not be a single member of this Council who was not fully alive to the gravity of the present crisis, to the sacredness of the cause which the Government had advanced for raising fresh taxes, and to the obligation resting upon himself, as upon the community at large, to assist the Government in the discharge of this difficult and disagreeable task. The Government of India had performed a noble work; and whatever differences of opinion might exist as to details, there could be but one opinion as to the humane and benevolent motive which actuated it in throwing open the national treasury for the salvation of the lives of the famine-stricken millions, the devotion and self-sacrifice with which His Excellency the Viceroy headed the famine campaign when it was at its worst, and the indefatigable industry and uncomplaining patience and perseverance with which one and all engaged in this mission of mercy had fulfilled their appointed duties. The people of India felt profoundly grateful to the British Government and to the great British nation, which had manifested its sympathy with the suffering subjects of the Queen in India by a spontaneous outburst of national charity, the like of which was not known in history. Remembering these circumstances, there could hardly be any section of the Indian community which would not cheerfully bear its legitimate burdens to meet the vast expenditure which had been incurred in coping with this national calamity.

There were, as the hon'ble the finance minister said elsewhere, two courses open to Government for meeting the famine expenditure—by reducing expenditure or by raising fresh taxes. BAROO KRISTODAS PAL was one of those who thought that the first was perfectly feasible, but it required time, consideration, and determination. His Honor the President lately indicated in another place the directions in which economy might be justly and safely enforced; and so long as there was the slightest room for retrenchment, the Government would not be true to itself, to the millions whose destinies had been committed by a beneficent Providence to its charge, and to the Crown which it represented, to let slip any opportunity for effecting it. A penny taken from the people, where it could be saved, was, he respectfully submitted, a penny taken wrongfully. But as he had said, economy, though perfectly feasible, could not be effected in a day, and in the meantime money must be had. Additional taxation had thus become inevitable. But it would have been gratifying to the people if the Government, while laying new burdens upon them, had given them an assurance that they would be temporary—that they would be remitted say at the end of three or four years, when the necessary retrenchments had been made. If the rules of this Council would permit him, he would suggest that the Council, while recognizing its duty to respond to the call of the Government of India to provide means for additional revenue, should urge upon it with due emphasis the imperative necessity of enforcing economy wherever practicable in justice to the tax-payers.

He now turned to the proposed scheme of taxation and the mode of its application. He at once admitted that the trading and professional classes did not contribute to the necessities of the State in proportion to their means or to the benefits which they had derived from British rule. He had, he confessed, a repugnance to direct taxation in this country, because, as he humbly conceived, it was not suited to its circumstances; but he could not deny that he could not think of any mode of indirect taxation by which the trading and professional classes could be successfully reached and the revenue would be productive.

As regarded the Bill before the Council, he must, in justice to the hon'ble member in charge of it, say that it had been prepared with great care, and that its leading object had been to produce a maximum of revenue with a minimum of oppression. Although the hon'ble member had informed the Council at the outset that the Government of India was not disposed to sanction an income-tax, the proposed license-tax was to all intents and purposes a rough income-tax. It was true that there would not be that inquisitorial inquiry incidental to assessments under an income-tax, but the schedule had been so devised that a Collector in assessing persons must have regard to the earnings of the assessee. In fact, in the revised Bill which had been circulated, a section had been introduced with a view to prevent abuse of power, providing that no person should be assessed at a higher rate than 2 per cent. upon his earnings. So, however we might frame a license-tax, it could not but have the appearance and the character of a rough income-tax; and if there was to be an income-tax in some form or other, perhaps it would have been better to have it in the right form. He could not deny that the schedule as framed distributed the incidence of taxation very unequally. The maximum figure was Rs. 200, which at the rate of 2 per cent. covered incomes of Rs. 10,000 annually. Now, all persons having profits or earnings from any trades, dealings or industries above Rs. 10,000 would pay Rs. 200 annually; so that the higher classes of merchants, bankers, and mahajans would be assessed at an almost nominal sum. On the other hand, on coming down to the minimum, we found that any person who had an income of Rs. 50 per annum, or a little over Rs. 4 per mensem, would be assessed with a 2 per cent. tax, although the amount he would have to pay—one rupee—would be very small. Now a person with Rs. 4 per month barely lived from hand to mouth. In fact, his existence was a struggle, and yet he would be called upon to pay one rupee per annum; while all persons who earned from any trade or dealing more than Rs. 10,000 per annum would be liable to pay Rs. 200 per annum, which became less and less in proportion to their incomes as the amount of incomes increased. He for one was of opinion that in order to be just to the poorer classes of persons who would come under the Bill, the maximum should at any rate be raised to Rs. 500, which was the maximum amount of the license-tax of Mr. Massey in 1867.

Then he would suggest a revision of the schedule. The hon'ble member in charge of the Bill had anticipated him in saying that the gaps in the grades or classes were too wide. For instance, from Rs. 32 to 100. Well, an assessment of 2 per cent. upon an earning or income of Rs. 5,000 per annum would give Rs. 100 as the amount of the tax. On the other hand, an income of Rs. 1,600 per annum would carry, under class 3, Rs. 32, all incomes or earnings between Rs. 5,000 and Rs. 1,600 being rated at Rs. 100 as the schedule stood. This gap, he took it, was very wide. It would press very severely upon a very large class of people whose earnings fell within this limit. The same remarks applied to class 4, the fee of which was given at Rs. 10. A fee of Rs. 10 would cover an income of Rs. 500, and a fee of Rs. 32 would cover an income of Rs. 1,600; so that all incomes between Rs. 1,600 and Rs. 500 would be covered by a fee of Rs. 32. The gap here again was very wide. In fact, the practical effect of the schedule as it stood would be that earnings of the humbler classes of traders and dealers would be subject to a much heavier duty than those of first class merchants, bankers, and mahajans. This was an inequality which he was sure the hon'ble member in charge of the Bill did not contemplate, and which, BABOO KRISTODAS PAL hoped, would be remedied in Select Committee. He was aware that this inequality could not be wholly removed under any scheme of a license-tax, for the incidence would not be in proportion to the amount of incomes; but so far as it might be practicable it ought to be redressed.

He next turned to the mode of assessment. In the first place the Collector was required to prepare lists of all persons liable to the tax. The Collector would be assisted by municipalities and chowkidari unions in the preparation of these lists. The Collector would have the power of compelling municipal committees and unions to furnish him with returns. He might adopt these returns or he might not. Where the agency of the municipality or chowkidari union was not available, the Collector might employ his own agency to prepare these lists. He would then publish these lists, or cause so much of the lists to be published in certain villages as might be necessary, and if a person within 30 days did not file an objection, the assessment entered in the list should be considered final. If any assessee objected, the Collector would decide, but it was not stated whether the objection was to be on plain or on stamped paper. No appeal was to be allowed from the decision of the Collector. The system, so far as he could judge, was simple and speedy; but he thought it would give greater satisfaction to the people if provision were made, in some form or another, for an appeal. Under Mr. Massey's license-tax an appeal was allowed from the decision of the Collector to the Commissioner of Revenue. It struck him that the circumstances with which they had to deal would not admit of an appeal to the Commissioner in all cases; for if it was made obligatory on the Commissioner to hear appeals from assessments in all cases, he was afraid that that officer would not find time for other work. But as the Bill provided that municipalities were to prepare returns for the Collector, might not the object be attained by allowing the objector to file his objections, in the first instance, before the Municipal Commissioners or a bench of Commissioners, and if he was dissatisfied with their decision, he might be allowed to appeal to the Collector? One appeal BABOO KRISTODAS PAL thought would be desirable for many reasons. In the first place, if it was the District Collector who was to do all the work with his own hands, it would be a different thing altogether; but as the Bill provided, and as it might be well imagined, the District Collector could not have the necessary time for the performance of the details of the work; the details would necessarily devolve upon the Deputy Collector, or some other subordinate officer whom the Collector might nominate. Now, the Deputy or the Sub-Deputy Collector might be very naturally desirous of showing as good a financial return as he could, and in his zeal for revenue he might be led to sacrifice justice. But if an appeal was allowed from the decision of the assessing officer to the District Collector, there would be less room for injustice. Even in Calcutta, under a vigilant public press, and with a public which was well able to take care of itself,—even here, he said, an appeal was allowed from the assessment of the Chairman in license cases to a bench of Commissioners; and if there was necessity for an appeal in a place like Calcutta, such necessity certainly existed in a much greater degree in the mofussil. He had incidentally alluded to the question of stamps, and he was not unaware that this Council had no power to interfere with the stamp duty; but he submitted it would be exceedingly hard if an objector, who was assessed under the last class at Re. 1, or under class 6 at Rs. 2, was made to file his application on a stamped paper of eight annas. Perhaps the Government of India would not refuse to consider this matter if a proper representation was made on the subject by the local Government.

He then found that sections 25 and 27, particularly the former, provided for a sort of hukamnamah to municipalities to pay in the full amount of the tax whether realized or not. It did not say that the amount of the tax as realized should be paid into the Collectorate, but that within a certain time a certain amount must be paid in, and if it was not paid in, under section 27 Government would have the power of deducting the amount from any fund or funds standing at the credit of the municipality. Now such a provision, he was afraid, would hamper the action of municipalities. They were charged with the duty of preparing lists, then of making assessments, then of collection, and even if the full amount was not collected, they would have to make it good. And what was the consideration they would receive? Not even the expenses incurred in realizing the tax: for if he understood section 27 aright, it provided that the Commissioner and Magistrate might appropriate any sum the municipality might have at its credit to defray any sum leviable from it under section 25. He did not clearly understand this part of the section, whether it meant that the municipal revenues might be applied to the payment of the tax, realized or not, or whether the same might be appropriated to the defrayal of the cost of assessment and collection, if any. He thought that municipalities ought to be allowed the necessary charges for assessment and collection of the tax, and that they should be required to pay in the amount of the tax as realized, and not whether realized or not.

Then he turned to the schedule for Calcutta. He was afraid that the imposition of this tax on persons engaged in trades and professions, particularly on persons coming under the lower grades, would press very severely on them. If it were open to him, he would suggest that the lower classes in this schedule should be knocked off, so that only the richer class should be made to pay. He knew from his own experience, both as a Municipal Commissioner and as an Honorary Magistrate, that the license-tax did press very heavily on the poorer classes of traders in this town, particularly the occupiers of stalls in markets and itinerant dealers, and other persons in that position. But the Calcutta schedule suggested another consideration. In this schedule persons who were usually denominated as professional persons were included within the scope of taxation; for instance, barristers, attorneys, pleaders, physicians, and the like. Now, if it was consistent with the object of the Bill to include these professional persons within the scope of taxation, he did not see any reason why the same principle should not be extended to persons pursuing professional avocations outside Calcutta, in mofussil towns and stations. If any class of the community had thriven more than another under British rule, it was, he must confess, the legal profession, and he could not see any reason why a pleader of the High Court should be taxed, and the pleader of the district or subordinate Court should not be taxed. If it was the duty of the community to bear the charges of meeting the famine expenditure which had been lately incurred, or which might be hereafter incurred, he thought those classes which were able to bear the charge most easily, such as the legal and medical professions, which had prospered most under British rule, should be called upon to pay.

The last point was the mode of application of the revenue, which would be raised under the Bill. His friend the hon'ble mover of the Bill had last week told the Council that this measure was the final outcome of the policy of decentralization which was inaugurated in 1870. BABOO KRISTODAS PAL understood the policy of decentralization to be that the local Government should have the liberty to apply its own resources to the benefit of its own province. This Council had some discussion on this point last year when the Public Works Cess Bill was before it. He then took the liberty to point out to the Council the great injustice which had been done to Bengal from the early connection of the British Government with it, inasmuch as the revenues of Bengal had been to a great extent applied to the benefit of other provinces, and local works of permanent utility and local improvements had been absolutely starved. His Honor the President was then pleased to point out that whatever might have been the policy in the past, it would be changed in the future; that if Bengal had been the milch-cow before, it would now be allowed to use its own milk; and on that ground the Council was asked to agree to the Provincial Public Works Cess Bill, because the principle of the Bill was that the revenue derived from it would be applied to works which were in existence, or which might be constructed within the territories subject to His Honor's government. BABOO KRISTODAS PAL could understand the object of that Bill so far. But in this Bill it was expressly provided that the revenue derived under it might be applied at the discretion of the Governor-General in Council either to famine purposes connected with these provinces, or with the other provinces of British India. Now, he respectfully and humbly contended that that was not carrying out the policy of decentralization in the spirit in which it had been promulgated and in the way in which it had been hitherto understood, and in which it had been interpreted in this Council last year. It might be said that the famine expenditure of 1877 was fairly chargeable to the whole empire, and that Bengal as a part of the empire ought to bear a portion of that expenditure. He bowed to that opinion. But what was the amount of the famine expenditure? The total expenditure on account of the Bombay and Madras famine came to about 9½ millions sterling, and if that amount were to be raised by means of a loan, the interest-charge upon it would not exceed 40 lakhs of rupees; and if Bengal were called upon to bear a fair proportion of this charge, its share would be considerably less than the revenue to be derived under this Bill. The Government of India had been pleased to remit two annas in the salt duty in Bengal. His Honor had rightly pointed out that this sacrifice of revenue was a concession to sentiment. In Bengal they did not in the slightest degree feel the pressure of the salt duty, but a two-anna remission of the salt duty involved a sacrifice of about ten lakhs of rupees per annum, and the relief per head would scarcely come to one pice per annum. Now, if the Government of India had transferred these two annas to the local Government, perhaps the proceeds would cover Bengal's quota for interest-charge. But let that pass. He found from the statement made by the hon'ble member in charge of the Bill that the produce of the license-tax would be somewhere about 40 lakhs of rupees. Even if they had paid ten lakhs of rupees as their quota for interest, there would be to their credit 30 lakhs of rupees; and if they applied this surplus to purposes which would benefit them, the taxpayers would have some satisfaction. But the Bill provided that the Governor-General in Council might apply the revenue to the benefit of any other province. Where then, he asked, was that local freedom, that local self-reliance, on pretext of which they were asked to impose these local taxes? Within the last seven years Bengal had been burdened with a local taxation of about a million sterling. The road cess, the provincial public works cess, and the present license-tax would yield in the aggregate about a million a year, and all this heavy taxation had been imposed on the assumption that Bengal alone would benefit by this system of taxation. In fact, when His Grace the Duke of Argyll sanctioned the present scheme of local taxation for Bengal in his road cess despatch, he remarked that he sanctioned it because he hoped that the benefits to be derived would be direct, immediate, and palpable. But the tendency of this taxation had been simply (he spoke under correction) to relieve the Imperial Exchequer. Roads in Bengal were hitherto maintained from imperial funds, and they were now for the most part maintained from the Road Cess Fund; railways and canals were hitherto maintained from imperial funds, now they were to be maintained from the Provincial Public Works Cess Fund; and now that another heavy tax was to be imposed, although no works were specified for the application of the tax, they were told that the revenue might be applied just as the Governor-General in Council might think fit. He admitted that in financial matters this Council had no independence; that it must carry out the orders of the Government of India on that subject. But if the Government wished to be consistent in its policy of provincial finance, he thought they had every right to ask it to allow them to spend the revenue for the benefit of their own province. He did not think that the members of the Council would accept the position that they sat there simply to register the decrees of the Government of India for the imposition of taxes, without satisfying the people that the taxes proposed to be levied from them would be applied to their benefit. He would therefore suggest that due provision be made in this Bill, that after paying whatever sum the Government of India might call upon Bengal to pay as fair and equitable for the interest-charge on account of the famine loan, the surplus might be applied to works or purposes which might be considered needful as an insurance against the famine in Bengal.

HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT said that the cordial support which had been given to the principle of this Bill by his hon'ble friend who had just spoken was precisely of that character which he should have expected from him as representing the educated opinion of Bengal. But, when dealing with the details of the measure, he seemed rather to have departed from his original approval of that principle. HIS HONOR did not propose to follow the hon'ble member in all his remarks on the Bill, because the bulk of them related to questions of detail which would have to be considered by the Select Committee of which HIS HONOR hoped he would consent to be a member. He felt sure that the Committee would give their fullest consideration to any suggestions in reference to the framing of the schedule, to returns, and to the mode of assessment which the hon'ble member might bring before them. But there was more than one point just raised which really affected the principle of the Bill rather than its details. The hon'ble gentlemen objected to the Bill on the ground that it partook of the nature of an income tax. Having done that, he proceeded to criticise it practically on the ground that it was not an income tax, and complained of the very steps which Government had taken to prevent its having any appearance of being an income tax as being the weak points of the measure. Take for instance the first class in the schedule, the maximum of which was a tax of Rs. 200, his hon'ble friend objected to that as being an inadequate assessment on the incomes of the richer classes of merchants, and proposed to fix a rate of Rs. 500. Originally the Government had intended to fix a rate of Rs. 500, and even at one time thought of fixing the maximum at Rs. 1,000. But they rejected it, because they wished to avoid anything which had the slightest appearance of an assessment upon income, involving any inquiry or analysis of a man's profits, though of course the schedule was a very rough form of assessments upon incomes to the extent to which it went; but it was so graded that men could be assessed by one class or the other of the graduated scale without any sort of inquisition. In addition to this, it was found that this higher scale of assessment of Rs. 500 would produce an infinitesimal amount of revenue compared to the revenue which was expected from the lower grades, and would be open to all the objections to inquisitorial proceedings which the hon'ble member raised to an income tax. HIS HONOR was very much surprised to find how little they should get by raising the highest grade from Rs. 200 to Rs. 500, and how very much less they would derive from a grade above Rs. 500. He had not got the figures before him, but he believed his hon'ble friend Mr. Mackenzie would be able to satisfy the Committee that the amount to be obtained in this way would be quite insufficient to warrant such a heavy increase of the rate which would cause great dissatisfaction, and must also lead to much annoyance in investigating the incomes of merchants and others. Practically, as he had already said, his hon'ble friend's it was at its worst, and the indefatigable industry and uncomplaining patience and perseverance with which one and all engaged in this mission of mercy had fulfilled their appointed duties. The people of India felt profoundly grateful to the British Government and to the Great British nation, which had manifested its sympathy with the suffering subjects of the Queen in India by a spontaneous outburst of national charity the like of which was not known in history. Remembering these circumstances, there could hardly be any section of the Indian community which would not cheerfully bear its legitimate burdens to meet the vast expenditure which had been incurred in coping with this national calamity.

There were, as the Hon'ble the Finance Minister said elsewhere, two courses open to Government for meeting the famine expenditure—by reducing expenditure or by raising fresh taxes. BABOO KRISTODAS PAL was one of those who thought that the first was perfectly feasible, but it required time, consideration, and determination. His Honor the President lately indicated in another place the directions in which economy might be justly and safely enforced; and so long as there was the slightest room for retrenchment, the Government would not be true to itself, to the millions whose destinies had been committed by Providence to its charge, and to the Crown which it represented, to let slip any opportunity for effecting it. A penny taken from the people, where it could be saved, was, he respectfully submitted, a penny taken wrongfully. But as he had said, economy, though perfectly feasible, could not be effected in a day, and in the meantime money must be had. Additional taxation had thus become inevitable. But it would have been gratifying to the people if the Government, while laying new burdens upon them, had assured them that they would be temporary—that they would be remitted say at the end of three or four years, when the necessary retrenchments had been made. If the rules of this Council would permit him, he would suggest that the Council, while recognizing its duty to respond to the call of the Government of India to provide means for additional revenue, should urge upon it with due emphasis the imperative necessity of enforcing economy wherever practicable in justice to the tax-payers.

He now turned to the proposed scheme of taxation and the mode of its application. He at once admitted that the trading and professional classes did not contribute to the necessities of the State in proportion to their means or to the benefits which they had derived from British rule. He had, he confessed, a repugnance to direct taxation in this country, because, as he humbly conceived, it was not suited to its circumstances; but he could not deny that he could not think of any mode of indirect taxation by which the trading and professional classes could be successfully reached and the revenue would be productive. As regards the Bill before the Council, he must do the hon'ble author of it the justice to say that it had been prepared with great care; that its leading object had been to produce a maximum of revenue with a minimum of oppression.

As regarded the Bill before, then he must, in justice to the hon'ble member in charge of it, say that it had been prepared with great care, and that its leading object had been to produce a maximum of revenue with a minimum of oppression. Although the hon'ble member informed us at the outset, that the object of the Government of India was not to sanction an Income-tax, the Bill was to all intents and purposes to raise an Income-tax. There would not be that inquisitorial inquiry incidental to assessments under an Income-tax, but the Schedule had been so devised that a Collector in assessing persons must have regard to the earnings of the assessee. In fact, in the revised Bill which had been circulated, a section had been introduced with a view to prevent the abuse of power, providing that no person shall be assessed at a higher rate than 2 per cent. upon his earnings. So, however we might frame a License-tax, it could not but have the appearances and the character of a rough Income-tax, and if there was to be an Income-tax, in some form or other, perhaps it would have been better to word it in the right form. He could not deny that the Schedule as framed distributed the incidence of taxation very unequally. The maximum figure was Rs. 200, which at the rate of 2 per cent. covered incomes of Rs. 10,000 annually. Now, all persons having profits or earnings from any trades, dealings or industries above Rs. 10,000 paid Rs. 200 annually, so that the highest classes of merchants, bankers, and mahajans were assessed at almost a nominal sum. On the other hand, when we came down to the minimum we found that any person who had an income of Rs. 50 per annum, or a little over Rs. 4 per mensem, would be assessed with a 2 per cent. tax, although the amount he would have to pay, one rupee, would be very small. Now a person with Rs. 4 per month barely lived from hand to mouth. In fact, his existence was a struggle, and yet he was called upon to pay one rupee per annum; while all persons who earned from any trade or dealing Rs. 10,000 or upwards per annum were called upon to pay Rs. 200 per annum, which became less and less in proportion to their incomes as the amount of incomes increased. He for one was of opinion that in order to be just to the poorer classes of persons who would come under the Bill, the maximum should be raised to Rs. 500, which was the maximum amount of the License-tax of Mr. Massey, in 1867.

Then he would also suggest a revision of the Schedule. The hon'ble member in charge of the Bill had anticipated him in saying that the gaps in the grade and classes were too wide. For instance, from Rs. 32 to 100. Well an assessment of 2 per cent. upon earning of Rs. 5,000 per annum would give Rs. 100 as the amount of the tax. On the other hand, an income of Rs. 1,600 per annum would give under class 3, Rs. 32, all incomes or earnings between Rs. 5,000 and Rs. 1,600 being rated at Rs. 100 as the Schedule stood. This gap, he took it, was very wide. It would press very severely upon a very large class of people whose earnings fell within this limit. The same remarks applied to class 4, the fee of which was given at Rs. 10. A fee of Rs. 10 would cover incomes of Rs. 500, and a fee of Rs. 32 would cover incomes of Rs. 1,600, so all incomes between Rs. 1,600 and Rs. 500 would be covered by a fee of Rs. 32. The gap here again was very wide. In fact, the practical effect of the Schedule, as it stood, would be that earnings of the humbler classes of traders and dealers would be subject to a much heavier duty than those of the first class of merchants, bankers, and mahajans. This was an inequality which he was sure the hon'ble member in charge of the Bill did not contemplate, and which, BABOO KRISTODAS PAL hoped, would be remedied in Select Committee. He was aware that this inequality could not be wholly removed in any scheme of a License-tax; for the incidence would not be in proportion to the amount of incomes, but so far as it might be practicable, it ought to be redressed.

Then he turned to the mode of assessments. In the first place the Collector was required to prepare lists of all persons liable to the tax. The Collector would be assisted by municipalities and chowkeedaree unions in the preparation of these lists. The Collector would have the power of compelling Municipal Committees and unions to furnish him with returns. He might adopt these returns or he might not. Where the agency of the municipality or chowkeedaree unions was not available, the Collector might employ his own agency to prepare these lists. He would then publish these lists, or cause so much of the lists to be published in certain villages as might be necessary, and if a person within 30 days did not file an objection, the assessment entered in the list should be considered final. If any assessee objected, the Collector would decide, but it was not stated whether the objection was to be on plain or on stamp paper. No appeal was to be allowed from the decision of the Collector. The system, so far as he could judge, was simple and speedy; but he thought it would give greater satisfaction to the people if provision were made, in some form or another, for an appeal. Under Mr. Massey's License-tax an appeal was allowed from the decision of the Collector to the Commissioner of Revenue. It struck him that the circumstances with which they had to deal would not necessitate an admission of appeal to the Commissioner in all cases, and that if it was made obligatory on the Commissioners to hear appeals from assessments in all cases of this kind, he was sure the Commissioner would never find time to work. But as the Bill provided that municipalities were to prepare returns for the Collector, might not the object be attained by allowing the objector to file his objections in the first instance before the Municipal Commissioners or a bench of Commissioners, and if he was dissatisfied with their decision, he might be allowed to appeal to the Collector. One appeal BABOO KRISTODAS PAL thought would be desirable for many reasons. In the first place if it was the District Collector who was to do all the work with his own hands, it would be a different thing altogether, but as the Bill provided, and as it might be well imagined, the District Collector could not have the necessary time for the performance of the details of the work; that would necessarily devolve upon the Deputy Collector or some other subordinate officer whom the Collector might nominate. Now the Deputy or the Sub-Deputy Collector might be very naturally desirous of showing as good a financial return as he could, and in his zeal for revenue he might be led to sacrifice justice. But if an appeal was allowed from the decision of the assessing officer to the District Collector, there would be less room for injustice. Even in Calcutta, under a vigilant public Press and with a public which was well able to take care of itself, even here, he said, an appeal was allowed from the assessment of the Chairman in license cases to a Bench of Commissioners, and if there was necessity for an appeal in a place like Calcutta, such necessity certainly existed in a much greater degree in the mofussil. He had incidentally alluded to the question of stamps, but he was not aware that this Council had power to interfere with the stamp duty; but he submitted it would be exceedingly hard if an objector, who was assessed under the last class at Re. 1 or under class 6 at Rs. 2, was made to file his application on a stamp paper of eight annas. Perhaps the Government of India would not refuse to consider this matter if a proper representation was made on the subject by the local Government.

He then found that sections 25 and 27, particularly the former, provided for a sort of Aukamnamah to municipalities to pay in the full amount of the tax whether realized or not. It did not say that the amount of tax as realized should be paid into the Collectorate, but that within a certain time a certain amount must be paid in, and if it was not paid in, under section 27 Government would have the power of deducting the amount from any fund or funds standing at the credit of the municipality. Now such a provision, he was afraid, would hamper the action of municipalities. They were charged with the duty of preparing lists, then of making assessments, then with the duty of collection, and even if the full amount was not collected they would have to make it good. And what was the consideration they would receive? Not even the expenses and trouble and charges incurred in realising the tax; for if he understood section 27 aright, it provided that the Commissioner and Magistrate might appropriate any sum the municipality might have at its credit to defray any sum leviable from it under section 25. He did not clearly understand this part of the section whether it meant that the Municipal revenues might be applied to the payment of the tax, whether it was realized or not, or whether the municipal revenues might be appropriated to the defrayal of the cost of collection and assessment, if any. He thought that municipalities ought to be allowed the necessary charges for assessment and collection of the tax, and that they should be required to pay in the amount of the tax as realized, and not whether realized or not.

Then he turned to the Schedule for Calcutta. He was afraid that the imposition of this tax on persons engaged in trades and professions, particularly on persons of the lower classes, would press very severely on them. If it were opened to him, he could suggest that the lower classes in this Schedule might be knocked off, so that only the rich in the town be made to pay. He knew from his own experience, both as a Municipal Commissioner and as an Honorary Magistrate that the License-tax did press very heavily on the poorer classes of traders in this town, particularly the occupiers of stalls in markets and itinerant dealers, and other persons in that position. But Calcutta Schedules suggested another consideration. In this Schedule persons who were usually denominated as professional persons were included within the scope of taxation; for instance, barristers, attorneys, pleaders, physicians, and the like. Now, if it was consistent with the object of the Bill to include these professional persons within the scope of taxation for the purpose before us, he did not see any reason why the same principle should not be extended to persons pursuing their professional avocations outside Calcutta, in mofussil towns and stations. If any class of the community had thriven more than another under British rule, it was, he must confess, the legal profession, and he could not see any reason why a pleader of the High Court should be taxed, and the pleader of the district or subordinate Court should not be taxed. If it was the duty of the community to bear the charges of meeting the famine which had been lately incurred, or which might be hereafter incurred, he thought those classes who were able to bear the charge most easily, such as the legal and medical professions who had preferred most under British rule, should be called upon to pay.

The last point was the mode of application of the revenue which could be raised under the Bill. His friend the hon'ble mover of the Bill last week told the Council that this measure was the final outcome of the policy of decentralization which was inaugurated in 1870. BABOO KRISTODAS PAL understood the policy of decentralization to be that the local Government should have liberty to apply its own resources to the benefit of its own province. This Council had some discussion on this point last year when the Public Works Cess Bill was before it. He then took the liberty to point out to the Council the great injustice which had been done to Bengal from the early connection of the British Government which it enjoyed, inasmuch as the revenues of the British Government had been to a great extent applied to the benefit of other provinces and local works of public utility and improvement in this province had been absolutely starved. His Honor the President was then pleased to point out that whatever might have been the policy of the past, it would be changed in the future; that if Bengal had been the milch-cow before, it ought now to be allowed to use its own milk, and on that ground the Council was asked to agree to the Provincial Public Works Cess Bill, because the principle of the Bill was that the revenue derived from it would be applied to works which were in existence, or which might be constructed within the territories subject to His Honor's Government. BABOO KRISTODAS PAL could understand the object of that Bill so far. But in this Bill it was expressly provided that the revenue derived under it might be applied at the discretion of the Governor-General in Council, either to famine purposes connected with these provinces, or with the other provinces of British India. Now, he respectfully and humbly contended that that was not carrying out the policy of decentralization in the spirit in which it was recently promulgated in the way it had been hitherto understood, and in which it had been interpreted in this Council last year. It might be said that the famine expenditure of 1877 was expenditure incurred for the whole Empire, and that Bengal as a part of the Empire ought to bear a portion of the famine expenditure incurred. He bowed to that opinion. But what would be the amount of that famine expenditure? The total expenditure on account of the Bombay and Madras famine came up to about 90 millions sterling, and if that amount were to be raised by means of a loan, the interest charged upon it would not exceed 40 lakhs of rupees, and if Bengal were called upon to bear a fair proportion of this charge, its share would be considerably less than the revenue to be derived under this Bill. The Government of India had been pleased to remit two annas in the salt duty in Bengal. His Honor rightly pointed out that this sacrifice of revenue was consistent but sentimental. In Bengal they did not in the slightest degree feel the pressure of the salt duty, but a two-anna remission of the salt duty involved a sacrifice of ten lakhs per annum, and the relief per head would scarcely come to one pice per annum. Now, if the Government of India had transferred these two annas to the local Government, perhaps the proceeds of that would have covered the amount. Bengal might be called upon to contribute as her quota for interest upon the famine loan of 1877. But let that go. He found from the statement made by the hon'ble member in charge of the Bill that the produce of the License-tax would be somewhere about 40 lakhs. Even if they had paid ten lakhs as their quota, there would be to their credit 30 lakhs, and if they applied that to purpose which would benefit them, the tax-payers would have some satisfaction. But the Bill provided that the Governor-General in Council might apply the revenue to the benefit of any other province. Where then, he asked, was that local freedom; that local self-reliance on which they were asked to impose these local taxes? Within the last seven years Bengal had been burdened with a total taxation of about a million sterling. The Road Cess, the Provincial Public Works Cess, and the present License-tax would yield in the aggregate about a million a year, and all this heavy taxation had been imposed on the assumption that Bengal alone would benefit by this system of taxation. In fact, when His Grace the Duke of Argyll sanctioned the present scheme of local taxation in Bengal, in his Road Cess despatch he remarked that he sanctioned it, because he hoped that the benefit to be derived would be direct, immediate, and palpable. But the tendency of this taxation had been simply (he spoke under correction) to relieve the Imperial exchequer. Roads in Bengal were hitherto maintained from imperial funds, and they were now maintained from provincial funds; railways and canals were hitherto maintained from imperial funds, now they were to be maintained from the provincial Public Works Cess funds; and now that fresh taxes were to be imposed, although no works were specified for the application of the tax, they were told that the revenue might be applied just as the Governor-General in Council saw fit. He admitted that in financial matters this Council had no independence, that it must carry out the orders of the Government of India on that subject. But if the Government wished to be consistent in its policy of provincial finance, he thought they had every right to ask it to allow them to spend the revenue for the benefit of its own province. He did not think that the members of the Council would allow that they sat there simply to register the decrees of the Government of India for the purpose of raising taxes without satisfying the people that the taxes proposed to be levied from them would be applied to their benefit. He would therefore suggest that due provision be made in this Bill, that after paying whatever sum the Government of India might call upon Bengal to pay for interest charged on account of the famine loan, the surplus might be applied to works which might be considered needful for famine purposes in Bengal.

HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT said that the cordial support which had been given to the principle of this Bill by his hon'ble friend who had just spoken was precisely of that character which he should have expected from him as representing the educated opinion of Bengal. But, when dealing with the details of the measure, he seemed rather to have departed from his original approval of that principle. His Honor did not propose to follow the hon'ble member in all his remarks on the Bill, because the bulk of them related to questions of detail which would have to be considered by the Select Committee of which His Honor hoped he would consent to be a member. He felt sure that the Committee would give their fullest consideration to any suggestions in reference to the framing of the schedule, to returns, and to the mode of assessment which the hon'ble member might bring before them. But there was more than one point just raised which really affected the principle of the Bill rather than its details. The hon'ble gentlemen objected to the Bill on the ground that it partook of the nature of an income tax. Having done that, he proceeded to criticise it practically on the ground that it was not an income tax, and complained of the very steps which Government had taken to prevent its having any appearance of being an income tax as being the weak points of the measure. Take for instance the first class in the schedule, the maximum of which was a tax of Rs. 200, his hon'ble friend objected to that as being an inadequate assessment on the incomes of the richer classes of merchants, and proposed to fix a rate of Rs. 500. Originally the Government had intended to fix a rate of Rs. 500, and even at one time thought of fixing the maximum at Rs. 1,000. But they rejected it, because they wish to avoid anything which had the slightest appearance of an assessment upon income, involving any inquiry or analysis of a man's profits, though of course the schedule was a very rough form of assessments upon incomes to the extent to which it went; but it was so graded that men could be assessed by one class or the other of the graduated scale without any sort of inquisition. In addition to this, it was found that this higher scale of assessment of Rs. 500 would produce an infinitesimal amount of revenue compared to the revenue which was expected from the lower grades, and would be open to all the objections to inquisitorial proceedings which the hon'ble member raised to an income tax. His Honor was very much surprised to find how little they should get by raising the highest grade from Rs. 200, to Rs. 500, and how very much less they would derive from a grade above Rs. 500. He had not got the figures before him, but he believed his hon'ble friend Mr. Mackenzie would be able to satisfy the Committee that the amount to be obtained in this way would be quite insufficient to warrant such a heavy increase of the rate which would cause great dissatisfaction, and must also lead to much annoyance in investigating the incomes of merchants and others. Practically, as he had already said, his hon'ble friend's objection amounted to this, that the schedule was not an income tax rather than that it was.

Then His Honor would allude to another point which had been referred to, namely, the mode of assessing the license tax in Calcutta and in municipalities generally. His hon'ble friend argued that some allowance should be given to municipalities, on the ground of the expense to which they would be put by the cost of collection, and that it was unfair to them to provide that a certain sum of money should be taken from them without giving them time to collect it. His Honor thought his hon'ble friend misunderstood what was proposed to be done. What they proposed to do with municipalities was very much the same as what the Government of India proposed to do with the several Provincial Governments. They proposed to fix a certain amount which a municipality should have to pay, that sum being very much within what it could collect, and to give it the whole benefit of any sum which it might collect in excess of the minimum sum on which the contract would be based. The sum to be fixed would be a matter of detail, and it would be fixed in concurrence with the municipality itself. So far from having any desire to be hard upon municipalities, they would leave them some little margin of profit for performing these duties on behalf of the Government.

Then as to the question of taxing professions in Calcutta, His Honor thought his hon'ble friend had hardly considered how very few professional men there were with really large incomes outside of Calcutta. Naturally in the centre of commerce and the neighbourhood of the High Court of the country there was a collection of the most busy professional men. But he thought the hon'ble member could hardly believe that pleaders living in mofassil stations were in the same position as pleaders of the High Court in Calcutta. Besides that, these pleaders were already about to be taxed rather severely in connection with the proposed new Stamp Act, and he thought this was hardly the time to apply to them a fresh license tax, in addition to the heavy tax proposed to be imposed upon them under the new Stamp Act. He believed that professional men in Calcutta would be perfectly willing to bear their share of the taxation which was thrown upon the country, and that they would recognise the moderation which had actuated the Government in proposing to secure the amount required in the shape of a very moderate license tax, rather than throwing an income tax upon the whole of the population of the country. The tax was simply an extension of a tax they had all along been paying.

Then as to the question of the mode of application of the money, he believed it was the intention of the Government of India, although he was not aware that the plan had been entirely completed, that in ordinary years and in ordinary times the money thus collected from the various provinces should be spent in reproductive works for the benefit of those provinces. But hon'ble members were aware that in such crises as lately occurred in Madras, any one province was incapable of bearing the whole burden of such a famine from its own resources, and therefore this fund, which would be formed from the contributions of the various provinces, would be held available to meet such famines wherever they occurred. Now that was a principle to which he understood his hon'ble friend had agreed in the early part of his speech, when he said it was right of the Government to lay upon Bengal her share of the cost of the famine, and His Honor thought it was a principle which no one would dispute. He must say he thought that, so long as in ordinary years the money raised under the Act was spent in the province, they could not grumble if, in times of great emergency, the money was expended for the benefit of other provinces, Bengal getting similar assistance from other provinces in return. In speaking of the actual amount mentioned by Sir John Strachey on account of famine expenditure as 9½ millions, and calculating the interest upon it as 40 lakhs, the hon'ble member said that the share of Bengal would be but a small proportion of that sum. But his hon'ble friend did not go back far enough. What Sir John Strachey said was that, although the late famine in Bombay and Madras cost 9½ millions, there would be a further item of 7 millions which had been expended for the relief of the famine in Bengal. Now this should also be taken into account, and as it happened the amount which Bengal was now asked to contribute, and which had been limited to 30 lakhs in the manner which was now proposed, was nearly the interest of the 7 millions which had been expended from the Imperial Revenues upon Bengal alone. Although the amount of 30 lakhs was not mentioned in this Bill, he had received a despatch from the Government of India limiting the payment from Bengal to thirty lakhs for the present at least, leaving the local Government to use for provincial purposes and public improvements in the province under their own supervision, anything in excess of that thirty lakhs which might be raised under this Bill. His Honor thought that that really met very much the views of his hon'ble friend in suggesting that the Government demand should be limited, and the balance credited to the Provincial Revenues, and this was not certainly a condition which the Council could with propriety make on the Bill.

The other questions to which the hon'ble member had alluded were, as His Honor had said before; questions of detail, in some of which he concurred, and the remainder would receive the fullest consideration at the hands of the Select Committee.

The HON'BLE BABOO KRISTODAS PAL enquired whether it would be competent to the Select Committee, to whom the Bill might be referred, to introduce a provision to the effect that in ordinary years the proceeds of the tax should, after providing for a proportional share of the interest upon the loans which had been raised on account of famine expenditure, be appropriated to the construction and maintenance of provincial works of a reproductive character, and that in exceptional years and times of emergency the proceeds of the tax might be applied in such manner as to the Governor-General in Council might seem fit. The insertion of such a provision in the Bill would afford the taxpayers more assurance that the money paid by them would as far as possible be expended for their own benefit.

HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT said it was not in his province to modify the orders of the Government of India; but the despatch on the subject which had been received from that Government would be submitted for the consideration of the Select Committee and published for general information.

The HON'BLE MR. BAYLEY said he had only a few remarks to make in regard to the criticisms to which the Bill had been subjected by the hon'ble member to his left (Baboo Kristodas Pal), these criticisms having already been analysed by His Honor the President. They had all listened with pleasure to the eloquent exordium with which the hon'ble member spoke in the name of the people of India, expressing their earnest appreciation of the labours of the British Government and the generosity of the English people in their endeavour to cope with the famine which occurred during the past year, and for his loyal and healthy criticism of the principle of the Bill of which the President had already expressed his appreciation. There was one point, however, which the hon'ble member first took up on which MR. BAYLEY thought there were still some remarks which might be made. He said that Sir John Strachey had explained that there were two possible ways of dealing with the present difficulty—one of which was retrenchment, and the other was taxation. The hon'ble member said he was in favour of retrenchment. Well MR. BAYLEY had no doubt that the Financial Member of Council would accept the hon'ble member as an able and earnest disciple of his own. Nothing could be stronger than what Sir John Strachey said in Council on this subject. But MR. BAYLEY thought that everybody who was present in Council at that meeting (as his hon'ble friend was) ought to be convinced that all the pains and labour which the Government of India could give to the question of retrenchment had been given. If the principle of the Bill was adopted, the hon'ble member said that as soon as time was given for retrenchment, say in three years, this extraordinary taxation should come to an end. MR. BAYLEY could not concur with the suggestion which had been made by the hon'ble member. If he would allow him, MR. BAYLEY would point out one or two things which the Financial Member said the other day. He said in regard to civil expenditure—

I had the satisfaction of showing, in March last, that, excluding famine relief and loss by exchange—an element practically beyond our control—a reduction of the net civil expenditure had been effected in the seven years from 1869 to 1876, amounting to no less than £1,500,000 a year. This fact justifies me in asking the Council and the public to trust in the determination of the Government of India to spare no pains to keep down the demands upon the public treasury for the Civil Services.

He went on to mention in regard to the Military Service that the control of expenditure was not so much in the hands of the Government of India as they could desire—

The Government of India must certainly endeavour to find the means of meeting the increased military charges, some of which are apparently inevitable, by economies in other departments of the Military Service; this endeavour must be largely dependent for success upon the support of Her Majesty's Government. I do not assert that the whole of the additional expenditure on the Army has not been incurred for excellent objects, or that it could have been avoided; but that the Indian Revenues are liable to have great charges thrown upon them without the Government of India being consulted, and almost without any power of remonstrance, is a fact the gravity of which can hardly be exaggerated.

He then went on to say that in the endeavour to keep down these charges he had the support of the Secretary of State, and finally, regarding the suggestion of a grant to this country out of the British revenues, he said that "in dealing with questions which arise, where the separate pecuniary interests of the two countries come into apparent conflict, as for instance in apportioning the cost of the British Army between England and India, England should be strictly just, may I not even say that she should be generous, to this comparatively poor country." MR. BAYLEY thought that, with these two statements before them, the Council might have sufficient confidence in the earnestness of the Financial Member of Council, not to express an opinion on their part which would simply amount to a vote of want of confidence.

From the question of retrenchment, the hon'ble member went on to criticise the nature of the tax. MR. BAYLEY had very little to add to what His Honor the President said on the question of this tax approximating to an income tax. But his hon'ble friend would allow him to point out that the whole strength of the opposition which had been made to the income tax was on the ground, not of its being unjust or unfair (in his own opinion he thought an income tax was logically and on principle the best), but because the circumstances of the country did not allow it to be carried out without great oppression, and what gave opportunity for this oppression were the inquisition which were necessary to be made in the first instance into the amount of income. This license tax was expressly designed to avoid that. In the detailed criticism he did not propose to follow the hon'ble member. It all amounted to this, that the schedule had been drawn up with too wide gaps—that it should be more detailed and more graduated. MR. BAYLEY thought that if we had a finely graduated schedule, which was no doubt the fairest plan theoretically, it could not but lead to the very inquisition and oppression which all opponents of the income tax deprecated as its fatal element. It was not difficult for an assessor to say whether a man's income fell within the rate of Rs. 100 or Rs. 32; but when you came to minute gradations, it must involve inquisition to place a man's income in the right category. Beyond this he should not go, as the President had already pointed out the apparent inconsistency in the grounds of objection taken by the hon'ble member, first that it was an income tax, and afterwards that it was not an income tax.

Most of the other points which had been raised were points for the consideration of the Select Committee. With regard to the question of appeal, he must say that he thought that the practical inconvenience of giving an appeal would be overwhelming, although on principle he saw no objection. The question relating to stamp fees was clearly beyond the province of this Council. Also in regard to the question of Bengal expending on itself all the money that it raised under this Bill for famine taxation, he would remind the hon'ble member that Sir John Strachey had pointed out that the Orissa famine cost the Imperial Government about 1½ millions sterling, and the Bengal famine of 1874 about 6½ millions—altogether 8 millions. So when the hon'ble member pointed out that if Bengal had to meet a proportion of charge upon the cost of the Madras famine, Bengal would not have to pay 30 lakhs of rupees, he omitted to go far enough; he did not recollect that to the 9½ millions for the Madras and Bombay, the cost of the Bengal famines would have to be added. Anyhow, MR. BAYLEY thought that on general grounds the people of Bengal could scarcely object to pay their quota towards the general Famine Insurance Fund of the Imperial Government of India. He would quote here what was said in Council on this subject by the Viceroy on the same occasion:—

"I am aware that there are already some parts of India where exclusively local interests are practically secured by the bounty of Nature, or the industry of man, from the direct effects of famine. In the nature of things the population of those particular localities may, and probably do, derive some immediate advantage from the periods of scarcity which so fearfully afflict their fellow-subjects in other provinces. But it would be an insult to suppose that their fortunate exemption from the perils and sufferings common to the rest of the community can furnish any argument, they would stop to urge, in favor of exempting them from their fair participation in the support of any general burden imposed for the protection of the whole community from such sufferings and perils. Whilst therefore I do not doubt that the chief cost of protective works ought to be borne by those who must need them, and will chiefly benefit by them, I must maintain that no province of the Empire, and no class of the community, can be legitimately cleared of the national obligation to contribute to the means required for the construction of such works."

The Hon'ble Mr. MACKENZIE said in reply that after the speeches of the Hon'ble President and the hon'ble member who spoke last, there remained very little for him to say with reference to the remarks of his hon'ble friend on the right. He might, however, be allowed to observe that the words "Income Tax" seemed really now-a-days to be used as a sort of bogey to frighten children with. Every direct tax must have some reference to a man's means, and be in that sense an income tax; and in that sense he had no objection to this license tax being called a rough income tax, or designated by any other form of words that expressed a patent and inoffensive fact. But if it was sought to affix to it any stigma, such as attached in the minds of the people to the old income taxes of bygone years, by dubbing it a rough income tax, then he could only say that it bore so rough a resemblance to that finished work as to appear a mere crude block, in which hardly a lineament of those abhorred features could be discerned by the most prying eyes.

Again, there was some inconsistency to his mind between the hon'ble member's remarks with reference to the incidence of the tax in the lower grades and what he said subsequently in praise of the salt tax. He (Mr. Mackenzie) knew of no tax which pressed more unequally than the salt tax upon the poor as compared with the rich. Inequality in a tax such as was now proposed was unavoidable; but it was much less, take it how we would, than was the inequality of incidence under the salt tax.

As regarded the hon'ble member's criticism of details, he might draw attention to the fact that the Collector's subordinates would in their proceedings be subject to his orders. The hon'ble member said he would be satisfied if the Collector of the district were ultimate referee. Practically this would be so, and a simple power of revision by the Collector would probably meet the hon'ble member's views, and do away with the difficulties attending a formal appeal. The other points noticed would be taken up in Select Committee.

The Hon'ble President had thoroughly disposed of the hon'ble member's suggestions for the creation of provincial autonomies. Nothing could be worse for Bengal than the introduction of such a principle, so long as Behar remained an integral part of the province. One consideration had not, however, he thought been sufficiently adverted to in the discussion. The cardinal point in the Government of India's policy in dealing with famine in future was to meet such charges not from loans, but from income. The hon'ble member lost sight of this altogether, and yet it was a principle which seemed to have met with cordial acceptance both in India and England. The local Government was not called on to pay interest on loans, but to help to raise the State income to a point of safety, and to secure a sufficient annual surplus to make it independent of famine loans. However the money might be spent, Bengal must gain. If there were famine awaiting it, Bengal was guaranteed by the Empire. If remunerative protective works were undertaken within the province, and paid for from these funds, Bengal still gained. If debt were reduced, Bengal would profit as much as any other province.

One word before he sat down, as to the incidence of the tax. He was not sure if he had made it sufficiently clear that Government was not contemplating a raid upon the poor and indigent. There were not many rich men in Bengal. Government was able, under the Certificate Tax Act, to find only about 61,000 trade incomes over Rs. 500 in all Bengal. It did not know exactly the number of trade incomes between Rs. 500 and Rs. 200 (the numbers of incomes of all kinds between these limits touched by the licence tax of 1867 was only 150,000); still less did it know the number of trade incomes below Rs. 200. But nearly every mofussil village had its local traders and artizans, well to do in a humble way and according to the standard of comfort prevalent in the country. These people paid nothing to the State at present, though they were as well able to do so as their agricultural neighbours. These were the classes it was intended to touch. Government guarded against taxation of the very poor—as this country counted poverty—by the insertion of the 2 per cent. limit and by requiring the tax to be paid in one instalment. If a man could not pay one rupee, he would not be taxed at all. Even in Calcutta the poor would not be taxed, for in the lower grades it was provided that the Commissioners were to consider the circumstances of each, and in weighing these circumstances, the fact that municipal taxes were heavy would not be forgotten.

The motion was then agreed to, and the Bill referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Reynolds, the Hon'ble Mr. Bayley, the Hon'ble Baboo Ramshunker Sen, the Hon'ble Baboo Kristodas Pal, the Hon'ble Mr. Jennings, and the mover.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 19th January.

	2 Bankoora, .. 5 ..	0.32	Rain, heavy in places, fell on the 31st ultimo and 1st instant, with thunder and lightning. Since then weather very cold; previous to it warm. The rain is reported to have done the growing crops good. Although the winter rice crop is coming into the market, there has been no fall in the price; in fact higher prices are anticipated.
	3 Beerbhoom, .. 5 ..	0.41	The weather is more seasonably cold than it has been hitherto. The cold-weather crops are doing capitally. The harvesting of the late rice crop is now practically over.
	4 Midnapore, .. 5 ..	3.13	Very heavy rain on the 31st ultimo; since then the weather has become cooler. Prospects of the crops are average. Health is improving.
	5 Hooghly, .. 5 ..	1.40	Weather—unseasonably warm and close for the first two days of the week. Rain on the night of the 31st ultimo. Very cold subsequently. The late rice harvest is almost over. The rains have done good to sugarcane, but some injury to rice, mustard, and potato in the ground. There has been a slight change for the better in the state of public health.
	Howrah, .. 7 ..	1.65	Heavy rain on the 31st ultimo; since which the weather has been much colder. The rain did the few cold-weather crops good, and no injury is reported to the rice which is being harvested.
Central Districts
PRESDIDY DIV.	6 24-Pergunnahs, Jan. 5 '78	2.80	Weather—very cold. State and prospects of the crops are good. Amun is still being harvested. Cholera and fever continue in many parts of the district.
	7 Naddea, .. 5 ..	0.15	Rain has fallen everywhere. The weather which had been excessively warm for this season has now become cold again. Great good has been done to the wheat and other cold-weather crops by the rain. The prospects of the crops on the ground are fair. The district has been remarkably unhealthy of late, but it is hoped that the recent change of weather will prove beneficial.
	8 Jessore, .. 5 ..	0.57	Weather—warm till after the rain which fell on the 31st ultimo and 1st instant. Since the rain it has been very cold. The rain has done much good to the crops, the prospects of which are now favourable. Fever is abating.

The prospects of the rubber crops are good. Cholera has somewhat abated, but fever is still prevalent.
	12 Rangpore, .. 5 ..	0.07 Kurigram 0.20. Gajbanda nil. Bostogra nil.	On the evening of the 30th ultimo it became cloudy and warm, and some rain fell that night and the following morning. In the evening the clouds cleared up and all on the 31st a dry westerly wind blew. Since then the weather has become very cold. The paddy crop is almost harvested. The rice outturn seems to be little more than an average one, as though the low land crop was very good, the outturn from the high land rice is only moderate. Cholera still prevails in certain parts of the Gajbanda sub-division, and cases have been reported from the Kurigram sub-division.
	13 Bogra, .. 5 ..	0.02	Weather—very cold. Amun with a good average yield is still being cut. The price of food-grains is gradually rising, owing to exportation now going on. Rubber crops are doing well, and will probably turn out well.

The rain has also enabled ploughing for the bhadoi to be commenced.
	41 Lohardugga, „ 5 „	0.81	There was hard rain at Ranchi on the night of the 29th ultimo, and rain has been reported from all parts of the head-quarters division, except the extreme south and west, and 1.08 has fallen in Palamow. This rain was required for the rubbee crops. Public health is good.
	42 Singbhoom, „ 4 „	0.65	Weather—seasonable. Nothing new to report. The late fall of rain will be very beneficial. Fever, as is usual at this time of year, is prevalent everywhere.
	43 Manbhoom, „ 5 „	0.18	Weather—very cold, the thermometer falling to 40° at night. In the Sudder sub-division there is nothing new to report, but the Sub-divisional Officer of Govindpore reports that the late bad season is driving a number of people away as emigrants to Assam. He anticipates scarcity, but his fears need confirmation. The Deputy Commissioner, who has gone on tour to the sub-division, will see to this matter.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from observations made at 6h., 10h., 16h. and 22h.; the maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard (Newman's No. 86) formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction and movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

NOTIFICATION.

The 5th January 1878.—With the sanction of the Government of India, the following rules are declared to be in force in the Ports of the Lower Provinces of Bengal for the measurement of the tonnage of native craft under section 3 of Act XI of 1850.

Hull. Measure the length along the deck from the after part of the stem to the fore part of the stern post.

Secondly.—The breadth from the broadest part from skin to skin.

Thirdly.—The depth from under the tonnage deck down the pump well to skin.

Multiply these three dimensions together, and divide the product by 130, and the quotient will be the tonnage of hull of such vessel.

If the vessel have a poop or other closed-in space, measure the inside length, breadth, and height of such part thereof as may be included within the bulk-heads, whether enclosed within foremost bulkhead or not.

Multiply these three measurements together, and dividing the product by 92.4, the quotient will be the number of tons to be added to the tonnage of hull of such vessel.

Notes.—In measuring breadth, the skin is the inner side of the inner planking, and if a boat or vessel has no inner planking a thin board laid on or against the inner side of the timbers would represent the inner skin, and in measuring depth, the floor timber, or, in its absence, the upper part of the keelson shall represent the skin.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA,

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

(No. 23.)

Bay of Bengal—Chittagong Coast.

ALTERATION IN POSITION OF THE BEACON LIGHTS AT THE ENTRANCE TO CHITTAGONG OR KORNAFULI RIVER.

THE following information (with slight alteration) is extracted from a Notice to Mariners published in the Calcutta Gazette.

The two beacon lights situated on the southern shore at the entrance to Kornafuli river have been removed 2,417 yards due south of their former position. The lights, 40 yards apart on a S.E. by E. bearing, were exhibited from the new site on the 20th October 1877, the inner or eastern light from a tripod, the outer or western one from a mast, both beacons being painted white.

The inner light is elevated about 5 feet higher than the outer one, and both are visible in clear weather from a distance of 7 miles through an arc of 160° , or, when bearing from S.E. by S., through east and north, to N. by W.

During southerly winds sailing vessels from the southward and westward (especially those at some distance in the offing) should avoid getting to the northward of the lights; but at night, with the outer or western light bearing E. $\frac{1}{2}$ N., should run in and anchor in 5 fathoms at low-water springs, about $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles from the light, to await daylight.

The beacons in line, and the Hill flagstaff bearing N.E., will place a vessel about half a mile southward of the bar buoys; from this position the bar and river buoys will be distinctly seen, and the services of a local pilot are always obtainable. Vessels should not attempt to cross the bar without a pilot, as the channel to Chittagong is long, narrow, and somewhat intricate.

Position of beacons, latitude $22^{\circ} 10' 50''$ N., longitude $91^{\circ} 48' 29''$ E.

[Bearings are magnetic and from seaward; variation 3° easterly in 1877.]

POLITICAL.

No. 1 P.

Fort William, the 1st January 1878.

IN pursuance of HER MAJESTY'S Gracious Command to notify publicly HER high appreciation of the feelings of personal devotion to HERSELF and loyalty to the British Crown which have been expressed in connection with the Proclamation, at the Imperial Assemblage at Delhi and throughout the Provinces and States of India, of HER MAJESTY'S assumption of the title of EMPRESS OF INDIA, the following correspondence which has passed between the Government of India and the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for India, is published for general information:—

From the Viceroy and Governor General of India in Council, to Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India,—No. 24, dated the 2nd February 1877.

In forwarding to us a copy of the Proclamation notifying the assumption by Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen of the Title of Empress of India, Your Lordship requested that this addition to the Royal Style and Titles might be proclaimed throughout the Queen's Indian dominions in a manner suitable to Her Majesty's Gracious intentions.

2. Acting in accord with these instructions, and fully recognizing the political importance of the event to be proclaimed, we resolved, as we informed you in our letter of the 5th of October last, that no effort should be wanting on our part to carry out the wishes of Her Majesty's Government, in a manner befitting the occasion, and consonant with the expectations of the Chiefs and peoples of India.

3. Our letters noted in the margin will have placed Your Lordship in possession of the general views which we formed last autumn as to the nature of the ceremonial, and the acts of grace and favour which might appropriately accompany it. We have now the honor to report that, as proposed in our above-mentioned letters, an Assemblage of the principal Chiefs and Nobles of India was held by the Viceroy at Delhi on the 1st January 1877, and Her Majesty's new Title proclaimed amid great rejoicings, and most gratifying demonstrations of loyalty. On the same date Durbars for the reading of the Proclamation were held in each District or Division throughout British India; the troops in each cantonment were paraded, and salutes of 101 guns fired from all forts and batteries in the three Presidencies. Displays similar in character took place at the capitals of those Chiefs who were prevented from attending the Delhi ceremonial.

4. Since the submission in October last of our proposals on the subject of the Assemblage, the unexpected visitation of famine in Southern India and other unforeseen difficulties induced us to consider very seriously whether it might not be our duty to withdraw them; but, after full consideration of the political importance of the event, and in view of the advanced state of our preparations, as well as the disappointment which the abandonment of the Assemblage would occasion to Native Chiefs and others who had completed arrangements for attending it, we felt satisfied that such a course would be inexpedient. We carefully reconsidered, however, certain details of our general plan, relinquishing, on account of the expenditure they involved, some proposals which we should otherwise have been glad to carry out, and reducing the scale and cost of others within narrower limits than would under other circumstances have been desirable. We, moreover, limited the number of invitations to the Assemblage, and directed that no Native Chiefs, Noblemen, or others should be encouraged to attend it, in any case likely to involve them in expenses which they were not fully able to afford.

5. Notwithstanding these measures, the number of Chiefs, Nobles, and European visitors attending the Assemblage, largely exceeded our anticipations. Of the Ruling Chiefs, no less than sixty-three were present, including the Nizam of Hyderabad; the Maharaja of Mysore; the Gaekwar of Baroda; the Maharajas of Gwalior and Indore, and the principal Chiefs of Central India; the Maharaja of Udaipur, the Maharajas of Jaipur and Jodhpur, and the principal Chiefs of Rajputana; the Maharaja of Jammu and Cashmere and the principal Chiefs of the Punjab; together with Chiefs from Bombay, the North-Western and Central Provinces, Bengal and Sindh. A complete list of the Ruling Chiefs attending, with returns of the area, revenue and population of their States, will be found among the enclosures of this despatch; it will suffice here to mention that the aggregate populations under the direct rule of the Chiefs present at Delhi approach 40 millions, while their united territories exceed the combined areas of England, Italy, and France. The titular Chiefs and Native Gentlemen attending (exclusive of members of the Suites of Ruling Chiefs) were nearly three hundred in number, comprising the flower of the Indian Nobility, and persons of distinction from almost every province of the Empire. Among them were the Prince of Arcot and the Princess of Tanjore from the Madras Presidency; the Maharaja Sir Jai Mangal Singh, and some of the principal landowners and citizens of Bengal; the Maharaja of Balrampur and the principal Talukdars of Oudh; forty representatives of the most distinguished families of the North-Western Provinces; scions of the ex-Royal family of Delhi; descendants of the Saddozai of Cabul, and the Alora Chiefs of Sindh; Sikh Sardars from Amritsar and Lahore; Rajputs from the Kangra Hills; the semi-independent Chief of Amb, on the Hazara border; Envoys from Chitral and Yassin, who attended in the train of the Maharaja of Jammu and Cashmere; Arbabs from Peshawur; Patan Chiefs from Kohat and the Derajat; Biluch Tomandars from Dera Ghazi Khan; leading citizens from Bombay; Gond and Marhatta Nobles from the Central Provinces; Rajputs from Ajmere; and Natives of Burma, Central India, Mysore, and Baroda. In addition to the Feudatories and Nobles of the Empire, His Excellency the Governor General of the Portuguese Settlements in India; the Khan of Khelat; a deputation from the Sultan of Muscat; Ambassadors from His Majesty the King of Siam, and the Maharaj Adhiraj of Nepal; the Envoy from the Amir of Kashgar; the Foreign Consular Body; and a large concourse of English and Native officials and visitors,—were present as spectators.

6. The Chiefs and Nobles, with their followers and most of the visitors present, were accommodated in large encampments, arranged, for the most part, in provincial groups on either side of roads converging to a central group of camps on the north side of the ridge, comprising those of the Viceroy, the Governors of Madras and Bombay, the Commander-in-Chief in India, and the Lieutenant-Governors and Chief

Commissioners of Provinces. We enclose a map of Delhi and its environs, showing the location of the several encampments, and a directory, published for the convenience of visitors, giving further details on this subject. For the multitude thus brought together, which cannot, with the troops, have fallen far short of one hundred thousand souls, besides horses, elephants and camels—thanks to the complete arrangements of the local authorities—ample supplies were available; and the sanitary and police arrangements were excellent.

7. With these preliminary observations, we proceed briefly to record the events connected with the Proclamation from the date of the Viceroy's arrival at Delhi until the day of his departure.

8. Having completed a tour of two months' duration from Simla to Bombay, visiting in the course of his journey Peshawur, Lahore, Multan, Bhawalpore, Jacobabad, and Kurrachee, the Viceroy arrived at Delhi by special train on the afternoon of Saturday, the 23rd December. On alighting from the train he was received by the President in Council and other high Civil and Military Officials. In accordance, likewise, with an invitation addressed to them, the Ruling Chiefs present in camp assembled at the Railway station to take part in the reception. The Viceroy, after short conversations with the Officers of Government present on the platform, turned to the Native Chiefs, and addressing them collectively, expressed his pleasure at meeting them, and his thanks for their attendance at Delhi. This reception formed one of the most interesting events of the Assemblage. Many of the sixty-three Chiefs present had never previously met each other; some had not even before left their own principalities; they, one and all, evinced the greatest eagerness to welcome the Viceroy; they moved about without ceremony or question of precedence, and were most cordial and friendly in their manner towards each other.

9. After conversing with the Nizam, the Maharajas Sindia and Holkar, the Maharaja of Cashmere, the Maharajas of Mysore, Udaipur, Jaipur, and others, the Viceroy mounted his State elephant, and followed by the whole of the British Officials present, proceeded in State through the principal roads and thoroughfares of Delhi to the Viceregal Camp. Along the line of route, from the Railway station to the Camp, a distance of nearly six miles, were disposed in a continuous line the whole of the available British and Native Troops and Volunteers assembled at Delhi, in number nearly 15,000 men, interspersed at varied distances with the troops, followers, and State elephants of the Native Chiefs. Crowds of Europeans and Natives filled the available spaces along the route, and received the Viceroy with every demonstration of cordiality and respect. For the Princes, Governors, Deputations, Ambassadors, and Envoys from Foreign States, the Foreign Consular Body present at Delhi, the titular Chiefs, Nobles, and high Government officials, not taking part in the procession, suitable accommodation was provided in favorable localities from which to witness the procession.

10. From the 26th until the 29th of December the Viceroy received and returned official visits, which collectively occupied nine hours daily, including visits to and from the Governor General of the Portuguese Settlements in India; the Khan of Khelat; the Foreign Ambassadors and Envoys; and seventy-seven of the principal Native Chiefs, ruling and titular, present at Delhi. His Excellency took advantage of these receptions to present to the Ruling Chiefs the Banners and Gold Medals commemorative of the Assemblage sanctioned by Her Majesty's Government.

When presenting the Banners and Medals, the Viceroy addressed each Chief as follows:—

"I present Your Highness with this Banner, on which are blazoned the armorial bearings of your family, as a personal gift from Her Majesty the Queen in commemoration of Her assumption of the Title of Empress of India.

"Her Majesty trusts that it may never be unfurled without reminding you, not only of the close union between the Throne of England and your loyal and princely House, but also of the earnest desire of the Paramount Power to see your dynasty strong, prosperous, and permanent.

"I further decorate you, by command of the Queen and Empress, with this Medal. May it be long worn by yourself, and long kept as an heirloom by your family, in remembrance of the auspicious date it bears."

11. His Excellency likewise announced to the several Native Chiefs and Princes the special concessions and acts of grace which Her Majesty the Queen or His Excellency the Viceroy had been pleased to bestow upon them. Marked indications of pleasure were evinced by them at these announcements, and expressions of gratification at the assumption of the new title, as also of desire to give some tangible proof of loyalty and devotion to the Throne, were reiterated to the Viceroy.

12. The 29th and 30th of December were also occupied by the Viceroy in conferring Banners and Gold Commemorative Medals on the Governors of Madras and Bombay, the Lieutenant-Governors of Bengal, the North-Western Provinces, and the Punjab, and the Commander-in-Chief in India. Gold Commemorative Medals were also conferred upon the Members of the Executive Council, the Chief Commissioners, the Resident at Hyderabad, and the Agents to the Governor General. His Excellency likewise received the Consular Body, as well as the Native Noblemen and Gentlemen, nearly 300 in number, who had been specially invited to Delhi, and presented Silver Commemorative Medals to them. We append a list showing in further detail the manner in which these Commemorative Medals were distributed.

18. During this interval the Viceroy held large evening receptions for the European and Native visitors in Camp, and a Levée which was numerously attended. He also entertained each evening at separate banquets the Governors of Madras and Bombay, the Commander-in-Chief of India, the Lieutenant-Governors of Bengal, North-Western Provinces and the Punjab, and the Members of the Executive Council. His Excellency was thus enabled before the actual day of the Proclamation to receive and make the personal acquaintance of a large number of the European official and non-official visitors in Camp, as well as of the principal Native Chiefs and Noblemen present at Delhi.

14. The Imperial Assemblage itself was held in pavilions, specially erected for the purpose, on a slightly rising ground overlooking an extensive plain to the north of the City of Delhi. The ceremonial was conducted in general accordance with the anticipatory description of it contained in our letter of the 5th October last. The Governors of Madras and Bombay, the Ruling Chiefs present at Delhi, with their principal attendants, and the various High Officers of Government, were seated in a large semicircle 800 feet in extent facing the Viceregal Throne. The arrangement by which the Chiefs were seated in a semicircle and intermingled with high officials of the British Government,—their seats being unnumbered and grouped according to the political Jurisdictions to which they appertained—gave great satisfaction; and we are glad to be able to inform Your Lordship in Council that by the excellence of these arrangements not a single complaint was received in regard to those questions of precedence which had previously prevented many of the Chiefs from meeting each other, and given rise to constant anxiety and embarrassment on all former occasions of the kind. A large concourse of spectators, including His Excellency the Governor General of the Portuguese Settlements in India, His Highness the Khan of Khelat, the Foreign Envoys and Consular Body, and European and Native noblemen and gentlemen from all parts of India, witnessed the proceedings from pavilions erected to the right and left of the Viceroy's dais. The British troops, European and Native, and the troops, followers, and elephants of the Chiefs and Nobles, were disposed in a vast circle on the plain around.

15. The Viceroy arrived at the place of assemblage a little after noon, and, advancing in a State procession to the central dais, took his seat upon the Throne, amidst the usual formalities. His Excellency wore the collar, badge, and robes of the Grand Master of the Order of the Star of India; and his train was borne by two pages—the one an officer of the British Navy, the other a younger son of the Maharaja of Cashmere. The Queen's Proclamation, transmitted in Your Lordship's letter of the 18th July last, was then read in English by the Chief Herald, and afterwards in Urdu by our Foreign Secretary. At its conclusion, a salute of 101 salvos of artillery was fired, interspersed at intervals with feux-de-joie from the combined lines of British and Native Infantry; massed hands played the National Anthem; and the Royal Standard was unfurled and hoisted in honour of Her Majesty the Queen and Empress. We do not attempt any further description of the ceremonial, than to say that it was exceedingly impressive, and passed off with complete success.

16. After a suitable pause the Viceroy rose and delivered an Address, of which copies are enclosed. It will be seen that the main object of His Excellency's speech was to clearly explain the gracious intentions of Her Majesty in assuming the new Title, to describe to the people of India the foundation, growth, and character of British Supremacy and assert its permanency. But His Excellency also took occasion to convey to the Civil and Military Officers of the Crown Her Majesty's grateful and emphatic recognition of their energy, public virtue, and self-devotion in the service of the Empire; he expressed to the non-official classes the Queen's appreciation of their loyalty, industry, and enterprise; and cordially thanked the Army of India for the heroic achievements by which they had upheld on every occasion, side by side, the honour of the country. The Viceroy then proceeded to express the acknowledgments of the British Government to the Native Chiefs and Princes for their continued loyalty and attachment to the Crown of England, and to assure them that the ceremony in which they were taking a part that day was the result of Her Majesty's anxious wish to confirm and perpetuate the intimacy of the relations now indissolubly uniting the British Crown with India.

17. Addressing the Native subjects of the Empire generally, the Viceroy explained to them that it was on their gradual and enlightened participation in the exercise of the mild and just authority of the government of the Queen and Empress, and not upon conquest or annexation, that Her Majesty relied for the development of Her Indian Empire. Finally, His Excellency thanked the Foreign Representatives for their attendance, and before concluding his address announced to the assembled gathering the gracious message of royal greeting which the Queen and Empress had sent that day by telegraph for communication to those present at the Assemblage.

18. No sooner had the Viceroy finished his address, than the Assemblage spontaneously rose and joined the troops in giving repeated cheers; many of the Native

Chiefs engaged at the same time to speak. Amongst others, the following replies are worthy of record:

The Maharaja Sindia was the first to speak. He said:—

"Shah-in-Shah; Padshah,—May God bless you! The Princes of India bless you, and pray that your sovereignty (hukumat*) and power may remain steadfast for ever."

The Begum of Bhopal spoke in a similar sense. Sir Salar Jung likewise rose, on behalf of the Nizam, and spoke as follows:—

"I am desired by the Nizam to request Your Excellency to convey to Her Majesty, on the part of himself and the Chiefs of India, the expression of their hearty congratulations upon Her assumption of the title of Empress of India, and to assure Her that they pray for Her long life and for the enduring prosperity of Her Empire both in India and England."

The Maharajas of Udaipur and Jaipur desired, in the name of the United Chiefs of Rajpootana, that a telegram might be sent to the Queen, offering their dutiful and loyal congratulations to Her Majesty on Her assumption of the Imperial Title. The Maharaja of Cashmere expressed to the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab, who was sitting near him, his great satisfaction at the tenor of the Viceroy's speech, adding that the day would never be forgotten by him or his children; that it would ever be regarded as an auspicious one; and that the shadow of Her Majesty's gracious Empire would for ever be his chief protection.

19. When the Native Chiefs had ceased speaking, the Viceroy dissolved the Assemblage, and left the days with the same ceremonies as were observed on his arrival.

20. We have thus the satisfaction of being able to state, for the information of Her Majesty's Government, that the proclamation of the Imperial Title at Delhi was, partly from the care with which all the arrangements had been carried out by those entrusted with them, and partly from the enthusiasm with which all classes joined in the celebration of the event, a great and gratifying success. As it was found impracticable to announce at the place of assemblage the various acts of grace which formed part of the day's proceedings, these were published immediately afterwards in a Gazette Extraordinary, copy of which we annex. We have reason to believe that these concessions have given much satisfaction, particularly to the Native Ruling Chiefs. In addition to the above, other minor concessions were granted at or in connection with the Imperial Assemblage to individuals or local bodies; a descriptive list of such concessions will be furnished with a subsequent despatch, but two of them may be here referred to as having been received with particular satisfaction by the Mahomedan community of Delhi,—the re-opening to public worship of the Zinat-ul-Musajid, a mosque near the Palace, long closed on military grounds; and the restoration to that community of the precincts of the Fatehpuri mosque, in the principal street of Delhi, which was confiscated in 1857, and had since been used as a Serai.

21. On the evening of the Proclamation day a State Banquet was given by the Viceroy. The occasion was one of considerable interest, as being the first on which the Governor-General of India, the Governors, the Lieutenant-Governors, the Members of the Executive Council, the various Heads of Administrations, and other High Officers of Government, as well as the Governor-General of the Portuguese Settlements, and various Native Noblemen, had ever been present at table at one time.

* This word implies the power of giving to all persons absolute orders which must be obeyed.

The Viceroy, when proposing the health of the Queen and Empress, addressed those present in a speech of which we annex a copy.

22. The three days succeeding to the day of the Proclamation were occupied by the Viceroy in receiving and replying to addresses from Municipal Committees and other public bodies; in receiving farewell visits of ceremony from the Native Chiefs, Ambassadors, and Noblemen present in Camp; and in the transaction of important official business. At the farewell visits each Chief received parting gifts from His Excellency; and some of their Suite, as well as the Political Officers accompanying them, were presented with silver commemorative medals.

23. With regard to the official business transacted by us, we may remind Your Lordship that in our despatch of the 5th October last we stated our intention of endeavouring to take advantage of the presence at the Assemblage of the Governors and Heads of Administrations and Native Chiefs to confer with them personally on a large number of important administrative and financial questions. Thus we were able to effect with great advantage to the general interests of the Empire. The most pressing questions which engaged our attention were those of the famine in Southern India; the various important financial measures connected with the budget for 1877-78; the amalgamation of Oudh with the North-Western Provinces; the arrangements by which, in amicable communication with the Rajputana States, we hope to be able to abolish the Inland Customs line, and ultimately reduce the price of salt through the greater part of India; and the forthcoming negotiations with the Portuguese Government in regard to fiscal and other matters affecting the Settlement of Goa. Other matters of importance were discussed; and in personal conferences with the Governors of Madras and Bombay, we were enabled to settle questions connected with the scarcity which might otherwise have entailed much correspondence and controversy, and to arrange for the deputation of Sir Richard Temple on the special inquiries regarding famine operations separately reported to Your Lordship.

24. A review of Troops on Friday, the 5th of January, concluded the events of the Imperial Assemblage. At noon of that day fourteen thousand of the troops of the three Presidencies, under the Commander-in-Chief in India, passed in review order before the Viceroy in presence of the British and Native visitors at the Camp, the Foreign representatives, and a large concourse of spectators. Nothing could exceed the martial appearance and steady movement of the troops, which elicited universal admiration from those present. We annex a statement of the various corps and regiments present, as well as copy of an address made to them by the Viceroy at the conclusion of the review. Advantage was taken of this opportunity to pass in review the troops and retinues of the Native Ruling Chiefs, and the display was a most interesting and striking one. The proceedings of the Assemblage were formally closed at sunset on the same day, by a salute of 101 guns from the flag-staff tower in the vicinity of the Viceregal Camp; and at 11 P. M. His Excellency left Delhi for Patiala for the purpose of installing the young Maharaja.

25. We have not attempted in this letter to do more than submit for the information of Her Majesty's Government a brief record of facts connected with an Assemblage of which the various scenes will, we feel assured, long live in the memories of those present at it. We earnestly trust that the political importance of the Proclamation of the new title may be increasingly felt as time rolls on, and that the anticipations in connection with it, which we ventured to form in our Despatch of the 5th of October last, will be more than realized, in results fraught with benefit to the interests of the Indian Empire.

26. We desire, in conclusion, to bring to Your Lordship's notice the services of the Officers mentioned in the annexed list, who were charged with the general arrangements of the Assemblage, and to express our warm appreciation of the ability with which they accomplished the important duties entrusted to them. Nothing could exceed the care and solicitude with which these officers, one and all, laboured to bring the proceedings at Delhi to a successful issue. The sanitary, police, commissariat, and other arrangements of the Camp were in every way admirable. We, moreover, received from the Government of the Punjab, which had great responsibilities placed upon it in connection with so large a gathering within the limits of its jurisdiction, the most loyal and able assistance.

27. We propose shortly to submit, for the information of Her Majesty's Government, copies of the various addresses to Her Majesty presented at Delhi, and the congratulatory letters received from Native Chiefs, descriptions of the local durbars held throughout the various provinces of India, and detailed accounts of the expenditure which has been incurred in connection with the Assemblage. We have at present every reason to believe that this expenditure is well within our original estimate of ten lakhs of rupees.

From the Secretary of State for India, to the Viceroy and Governor General of India in Council,—
No. 42, Political, dated London, 29th March 1877.

I have to acknowledge the receipt of Political letter of Your Excellency's Government, No. 24, dated the 2nd February last, reporting the principal events in connection with the Imperial Assemblage held at Delhi on the 1st January 1877, for the purpose of proclaiming the assumption by Her Majesty the Queen of the title of "Empress of India."

2. Her Majesty's Government had previously been informed by telegraph of the general course of the proceedings, but they have perused with interest and satisfaction the detailed report with which they have now been furnished. They desire to convey to Your Excellency personally and to your Colleagues in the Government of India their cordial congratulations on the success of the Assemblage, and they do not doubt that, as anticipated by your Government, the political results, both of the assumption by the Queen of the new title, and of the concessions and acts of grace which have accompanied the notification of that Act of Her Majesty to the Princes and people of India, will be increasingly felt as time goes on, and be beneficial in various ways to the interests of the Empire at large.

3. Her Majesty's Government have much pleasure in recording their entire concurrence in the sentiments expressed by Your Excellency in Council in regard to the value of the services rendered in connection with the Assemblage by the Government of the Punjab and the officers and gentlemen specified in the list accompanying your letter under reply. Upon the Government of the Punjab much responsibility necessarily rested, while any failure in the arrangements at Delhi, however well considered they may have been, would have seriously marred the political success anticipated from the proceedings. That no failure of any kind should have occurred in the arrangements, whether those of a ceremonial character, or those incidental to the gathering together in a limited space of a great and miscellaneous multitude, is a cause for much satisfaction, and is a result highly creditable to the local Government and to the officers immediately concerned.

Governor-General of India in Council, to the Secretary of State for India,—
No. 142, Political, dated 6th August 1877.

In our letter of the 2nd of February last, we had the honour to report the ceremonies with which the assumption by Her Majesty the Queen of the title of Empress of India had been proclaimed at Delhi. We then promised to submit, for the information of Her Majesty's Government, a further communication descriptive of the local Durhars held throughout India in celebration of the event, as well as copies of the various addresses and congratulatory letters received, then and since, from Native Chiefs and others throughout India. In accordance with this engagement we now enclose the papers connected with these subjects.

2. The list of concessions enclosed in the present despatch refers chiefly to minor acts of grace, the arrangements for which were not completed in time to allow of their publication in the Gazette of India of January 1st, 1877. Many of them consist of rewards granted for important services inadequately recognized in the past; as well as of increases to pensions and jaghirs enjoyed by ancient Native families, whose unquestioned loyalty rendered them deserving of assistance on this special occasion in the maintenance of their former position and dignity. These marks of favour, which Your Lordship will find fully described in the abstract of contents attached to this letter, were deeply appreciated by all concerned.

3. Our Resolution regarding the release of prisoners in the various provinces of India was, as Your Lordship is aware, published in the Gazette issued at Delhi on the day of the Proclamation; but we now beg to enclose a Minute since drawn up by Sir Edward Bayley, containing some interesting details on the subject. Under the careful supervision of our Colleague, this particular act of grace, to which the natives of India attach much importance, was brought to a successful issue. After the most careful enquiry into each case, nearly 16,000 prisoners were released, carrying the feeling of rejoicing, with which we desired the day to be marked, to a vast number of individuals in remote districts, who would probably have never heard of the occasion in any other way. Sir Edward Bayley points out that apprehensions were expressed in some quarters lest any indiscriminate order for the release of persons of bad character should lead to a disturbance of the public peace, or to a large increase of crime. We ourselves never shared these apprehensions, and it is satisfactory to learn from our Colleague's Minute that no such result took place. "So far as can be ascertained," he says, "but a very infinitesimal fraction of the large number set free has again relapsed into crime, and only one or two cases have been brought to notice in which persons so released have been again arrested on criminal charges. This fact is very creditable to the judgment with which the sections for release were made, and the present feeling of the native community may safely be said to be one of almost entire satisfaction and approbation. As regards the release of prisoners confined for petty debts, by payment of their liabilities, the feeling has," he adds, "been everywhere one of great and unanimous satisfaction. In the Central Provinces, at Seonee, a rich money-lender, at whose suit a good many debtors were in jail, as soon as he heard that all of them who owed him under Rs. 100 had their debts paid by Government at once sent releases for all the rest, in order to mark his appreciation of the liberality of Government and his own loyal feeling." We desire to take the opportunity of expressing our high sense of the value of our Colleague's labours in a matter which was one of great delicacy, and yet specially calculated to cause the assumption of the new title to be remembered with satisfaction throughout the Empire.

4. The loyal tone which pervades the enclosed addresses and letters, received from Native Chiefs, public bodies, and private individuals, in all parts of India, will, we feel sure, be appreciated by Her Majesty's Government. The addresses and congratulatory poems, herewith enclosed, are written in divers languages and dialects, and many of them are rich in Oriental imagery; but we venture to think that they contain unique and gratifying evidence of the hearty satisfaction with which all races and creeds in this country have regarded Her Majesty's formal assumption of the imperial title. We have not sent separate answers to the several communications herewith transmitted, being of opinion that a general letter from Your Lordship, which we could publish in the various Gazettes throughout India, will afford the most appropriate means of acknowledgment.

5. From the papers enclosed in this letter, Your Lordship will see that the manner in which the assumption of the new title was celebrated throughout this Empire and its dependencies was very gratifying. In the districts and towns under direct British administration, as well as in the durbars of those Native Chiefs who were unable to attend the Imperial Assemblage, the manifestations of loyalty were marked, and the occasion evidently looked upon by the people at large as one of peculiar importance.

6. At the Presidency Towns of Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay, the Proclamation was read by the chief civil officer of the district and the Presidents in Council respectively, in the presence of thousands of spectators and the troops of the garrisons, and was received by all with marked attention and respect. The local rejoicings in the various districts and towns throughout India were not less gratifying, and were remarkable, both for their spontaneous and cordial character and for the care with which the proceedings were conducted by the local officials. We refrain from entering into the details of those proceedings only from a desire not to unduly lengthen this letter. Throughout the whole of the British districts, notably in Madras, Bengal, and the North-Western Provinces, food and clothing were gratuitously distributed to the poor; whilst many of the wealthy zemindars and municipalities gave liberal grants towards works of public utility, in order to commemorate the assumption of the new title in some permanent form. In British Burmah and other outlying provinces, the same loyalty was evinced; whilst at Aden the ships in harbour, including a steamer of His Highness the Khedive, were dressed in honour of the occasion, and much enthusiasm evinced by the mixed population of that Settlement.

7. The durbars held at the capitals of the Native Chiefs and Princes absent from Delhi were equally characterized by demonstrations of cordial loyalty. In Bengal and Northern India, for instance, the Raja of Hill Tipperah personally superintended the arrangements of the durbar held at his capital, and evinced much pleasure at having such an opportunity of testifying his fidelity to the British Government; the Maharaja of Sikkim, unable to hold a durbar in his own capital, sent all his chief officers to attend the reading of the Proclamation at Darjeeling; at Moorshedabad there were great rejoicings on behalf of the Nawab Nazim of Bengal; at Cuttack the residents subscribed a large sum to be spent in building a Town Hall for public use; the Nawab of Rampore proclaimed a general holiday for three days throughout his territories, and brilliantly illuminated his capital; whilst at Tehri, Bustar, and elsewhere, demonstrations of loyalty characterized the proceedings of the day. In the Punjab every anxiety was shown by the States of Puttiala and Kuporthulla to do honor to the occasion; and it is reported that throughout this important province generally, the bearing of the people was exceptionally loyal and cordial. In the numerous and important Hill States of the Himalayas, the Rajas observed the appointed day with the ceremonies usual on the installation of a reigning Chief. In Hyderabad and Berar demonstrations of good feeling towards the British Government were evinced in a marked manner. In Central India and Rajpootana the evidences of loyal feeling shown at the various courts of those Princes who were unable to attend at Delhi, were likewise very gratifying. The Maharaja Holkar gave a special donation of money towards the famine relief in Southern India, and the Nawab Begum of Bhopal placed in the hands of the Political Agent a like sum to be spent in Her Highness' name in any good work that the British Government might select. In Madras, the Maharaja of Travancore, the Rajas of Cochin and Pudukottai, and many of the rich landed proprietors of that Presidency, held durbars at their principal stations in honor of the event; amongst others, those of Chittur subscribed Rs. 10,000 towards providing the district of North Arcot with a district school to be called after the Empress of India; whilst the day was celebrated with equal honor throughout the Province of Mysore. In Bombay the Nawab of Cambay released all his prisoners (which, it may be said, was a measure generally carried out on the day of the Proclamation throughout the whole of the Native States), presented his troops with a day's pay, and left nothing undone to evince his loyalty. The Thakur of Bhaonagar has intimated his intention of constructing, at a cost of a lakh of rupees, a bridge over the Aji River at Rajkote, to be called the Kaisar-i-Hind Bridge. Similarly, the Rao of Kutch, the Maharajas of Edur and Kolhapore, the Nawab of Junjeera, and the numerous Chiefs of Kattywar, celebrated the event at their capitals with every possible mark of honor. Among the latter the Thakur Saheb of Palitana has presented the town of Palitana with a Dhurumsala and clock-tower at a cost of Rs. 9,000 in honor of the occasion.

8. At Zanzibar, Muscat, Bushire, and elsewhere, the importance of the event was equally appreciated. The Resident in the Persian Gulf reports that the Flag Staff of the British Residency and those of the Ottoman and Netherland Consulates at Bushire were dressed; whilst official visits were paid to him by the representatives of Holland and the Porte. The Sultan of Muscat, although represented at Delhi, honored the occasion by firing at his capital a salute of 101 guns, and by paying a personal visit to the Political Agent.

D. We desire, in conclusion, to enclose, for Your Lordship's information, a report submitted to us by Dr. Ross, in charge of the sanitary arrangements of the Assemblage at Delhi, showing the success which attended the important labours of himself and the medical officers associated with him on that occasion; and we also append extracts from our financial statement shewing the net cost of that Assemblage. And we cannot close this letter without expressing to Your Lordship our high appreciation of the cordial assistance of the heads of the local Governments, and the officers under them, in making the assumption of the Imperial title an event brought home to the masses of India, in a manner which we feel assured will long live in the memories of all classes and creeds throughout the Empire.

No. 8, dated the 1st January 1877.

I.—During the year 1878 ninety (90) Officers of the Staff Corps, and Cavalry and Infantry of the Indian army, will be permitted to retire from the service, receiving in addition to the pension to which they may be entitled by length of service under existing regulations, not exceeding the full-pay pension of a Colonel (£456-5-0 per annum), an annuity representing the estimated value of their prospective claim to the Colonel's allowance, or its capitalized value as they may prefer.

II.—This offer is restricted to substantive Lieutenant-Colonels who shall have complete 28 years' service, from the date of first commission, on or before the date from which they apply to retire, who may either, 1st, have been appointed to one of the Staff Corps on or before the 12th September 1866, and can claim the Colonel's allowance under the provisions of G. G. O. No. 804 of the 26th September 1866, or 2ndly, may be entitled, under G. G. O. of the 12th September 1862, to the Colonel's allowance after 12 years' service in the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel.

III.—The number allowed to retire under these conditions will be distributed as follows :—

For Bengal	...	40
„ Madras	...	80
„ Bombay	...	20
Total	...	90

In the event of the whole of the retirements allotted to a particular Presidency not being taken up in that Presidency, those remaining will be distributed in such manner as may be determined by the Government of India.

IV.—Applications to retire will be considered and disposed of successively according to priority of proposed dates of retirement until the number of retirements allotted to the service shall have been accomplished, when retirements under this order will cease for the year. In the event of its becoming necessary to select one from among two or three applicants for retirement on the same day, preference will be given according to seniority from the date of first commission.

V.—Officers wishing to retire under the terms of this order must, whether in or out of India, submit their applications to the Office of the Adjutant-General of their respective Presidencies, naming such prospective dates for their retirements, as will admit of the receipt of their applications by the Adjutant-General on or before the date named, such date not to be earlier than the 1st April 1878.

VI.—Officers whose applications are accepted will be gazetted out from the dates named by themselves, but will continue to perform their duties and receive the pay and allowance of their positions until officially informed of their removal from the effective list, either by direct communication, or by publication of the Gazette at the station at which they may be serving.

VII.—Officers retiring under this arrangement will forego both the good service pension, if they are in receipt thereof, and all claim to bonus compensation under the terms of the despatch of the 8th of August 1866,* No. 160.

VIII.—Applicants to retire must state—

1st, their rank and service;

2nd, their age (supported by certificate of birth, or in its absence, by a formal declaration);

3rd, whether they wish to receive commutation for their prospective allowances in the shape of an annuity, or to capitalise its value. Officers who desire to receive the capitalized value of the annuity must attach to their applications a certificate in the form given in Appendix A. In the case of Officers retiring out of India, the health certificate required will be called for and furnished under instructions from the India Office in London;

4th, whether they desire to receive payment, wholly, or in part, in India, or in England.

IX.—The table given in Appendix B shows the rates at which the expectation of the Colonel's allowance will be calculated in carrying this order into effect in the case of officers of various ages and service.

X.—For the purpose of arriving at the amount payable in each case, whether as an annuity or in a single payment, Officers' ages will be calculated from their birthday next succeeding the date from which they propose to retire, and the number of years they have to serve before becoming entitled to the Colonel's allowance will be calculated from the date of the proposed retirement. When the period to serve contains a fraction of a year, the fraction, if it be six months or under six months, will be excluded altogether; if it exceeds six months it will be reckoned as a complete year.

XI.—Payments of the capitalized value of the annuity made in India under this order will be at the rate of 1s. 10½d. for the rupee.

XII.—Officers who elect to receive an annuity in preference to the capital sum, will not, after their retirements have appeared in the Gazette, be allowed to capitalize such annuity under the provisions of this order; and it is to be understood that no separate applications of individual officers to retire after the present retirements have been allotted will be entertained on the basis of this order.

XIII.—Officers of the half-pay list of the Staff Corps will be permitted, if disposed to retire from the service, to avail themselves of this scheme of retirement, provided they are eligible thereto by the fulfilment, previously to their transfer to the half-pay list, of all the conditions required. The time passed by an officer on the half-pay list of the Staff Corps will not count towards the 12 years in the grade of Lieutenant-Colonel required to qualify for promotion to the Colonel's allowance.

XIV.—No application from officers to cancel their retirement, or to change the date of such retirement will be entertained after it has been announced in the official Gazette of the Presidency to which they belong.

Find in the marginal column to the left of the table the number of years the officer has to serve before becoming entitled to the Colonel's allowance and then in the same line of the table the officer's age—(in column 2).

The figure in the same line to the right of his age—(in column No. 3, "Annuities") shows the annuity, and the figure to the left of his age (under column No. 1, "Values") shows the capitalized value of the annuity offered to him under this order.

EXAMPLE.—Lieutenant-Colonel A applies to retire on the 1st April 1878. He will be 49 years of age on the 4th May 1878. He will become entitled to the Colonel's allowance on the 1st August 1883. For the purpose of making the calculation his age is 49, and the time he has to serve for the Colonel's allowance being five years and four months; the time he has to serve for the purpose of the calculation under paragraph 10 of the orders is five years. The annuity offered to him is £361-8, and its capitalized value is £4,260.

No. 1 of 1878.—The following Notice to Mariners is published for general information :—

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

HINDOSTAN—WEST COAST—BOMBAY HARBOUR.

Position of Middle Ground.

Notice is hereby given that the Middle Ground battery, Bombay harbour, as at present delineated on the Admiralty Chart No. 2621, is upwards of 12 degrees out in its relative bearing from the Dolphin beacon light, being nearly two cables to the northward of its correct position.

The centre of the Middle Ground should bear from the Dolphin light N. 66° E. 1450 yards, instead of, as now shown on the Chart, N. 54° E.

The soundings along the foreshore, extending from abreast Colaba point to Mody bay and to a distance of half a mile from that shore, appear to have been incorrectly reduced on the above Chart, as a further reduction of from 3 to 5 feet is necessary to represent the actual depth in that portion of the harbour.

[Bearings are Magnetic. Variation 0°-55' Easterly in 1878.]

By Direction of the Government of India.

A. DUNDAS TAYLOR, Comdr. (Late I.N.),

MARINE SURVEY DEPARTMENT; }

RESOLUTION ON THE ADMINISTRATION REPORT OF THE CUSTOMS DEPARTMENT FOR THE YEAR 1876-77.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT—MIS REVENUE

Calcutta the 15th January 1878.

READ—

The Annual Customs Report of the Board of Revenue for 1876-77

CUSTOMS REVENUE.

INCLUDING the revenue on imported salt, the administration of which has already been dealt with in connection with the Board's report on the salt revenue, the following statement furnishes a general view of the gross and net revenue derived from customs duties in the whole of Bengal during the past five years:—

Bengal,

	1872-73	1873-74	1874-75	1875-76	1876-77
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Import duty (excluding duty on salt)	61,00,478	76,06,300	88,50,721	88,04,242	80,00,000
Import duty on salt	2,30,38,919	2,30,30,019	2,24,98,706	2,24,15,901	2,30,39,700
Export duty	24,31,765	26,23,807	28,04,967	20,23,002	17,86,006
	27,57,868	21,38,490	20,00,868	21,20,540	21,04,431
Total gross duty	8,50,34,525	8,45,28,676	8,53,57,977	8,51,67,017	8,49,59,129
Refunds and drawbacks	5,37,309	2,74,975	3,16,901	3,06,025	2,50,306
	61,738	69,478	67,551	31,619	30,517
Total	8,00,637	2,44,483	2,00,253	3,37,647	2,30,402
Total net duty	8,00,637	2,44,483	2,00,253	3,37,647	2,30,402

Notwithstanding a considerable increase in the gross duty on imports of salt, the total net amount of duty collected in Bengal fell during the year of report from Rs. 3,48,29,370 to Rs. 3,46,67,644—being a decrease of Rs. 1,61,726. Excluding salt, the revenue from which is based on a constant demand and is comparatively independent of trade fluctuations, the customs duties on imports are mainly derived from cotton goods, liquors, and metals. Under the single head of cotton goods the duty has declined to the extent of Rs. 5,06,295, due for the most part to the prevalence of unfavourable rates of exchange which discouraged importation. Liquors show an increase of Rs. 1,09,188 on account of spirits, and a decline of Rs. 53,279 under wines and liqueurs. The duty on metals has risen by Rs. 53,459 during the year. Apparel, drugs and medicines, silk goods and woollen manufactures also show a slight decrease. Among exports the duty on rice has risen from Rs. 10,04,158 to Rs. 14,47,695, and that on lac from Rs. 2,29,573 to Rs. 3,39,109. This latter increase is stated to be due for the most part not to enhanced exports, but to the raising of the tariff valuations of lac in August 1875. The revenue derived from indigo fell from Rs. 3,46,721 to Rs. 2,84,881. Looking to the results of the entire year, it will be observed that although the net revenue fell by more than eleven lakhs in 1875-76, the further decrease of net revenue in 1876-77 amounted to Rs. 1,61,726, and that the expectations entertained at the time of the revision of the tariff that the customs revenue would speedily recover itself by the natural growth of the import trade have not yet been fully realized.

General trade has been carefully distinguished from Government transactions, and foreign trade from coasting trade between Indian ports, while the movements of treasure are shown separately under each head. In the general trade the imports of merchandise have fallen from Rs. 17,76,71,746 to Rs. 16,69,38,128; the decrease extending both to free and dutiable goods. The rise, therefore, of the total foreign import trade from Rs. 18,84,77,197 to Rs. 19,31,92,793 is solely due to the enhanced imports of treasure, which have more than doubled during the year of report. On the other hand, the imports of the coasting trade have increased independently of the imports of treasure, which in this case also have risen by a hundred per cent.

The exports from the Lower Provinces during the last five years are shown as follow :—

Under the head of general trade the exports of merchandise to foreign ports have risen from Rs. 23,63,95,751 to Rs. 26,44,66,482, there being an increase of more than three crores and a half in free goods and a decrease of nearly a crore in dutiable goods. Including treasure, the exports of which fell from Rs. 74,59,428 to Rs. 10,38,308, the total foreign trade in exports amounted to Rs. 26,69,98,492, against Rs. 24,49,30,024 in the previous year. This total, it should be observed, is also inclusive of re-exports of foreign goods, which rose from Rs. 10,74,845 to Rs. 14,93,702. At the same time the exports of the coasting trade have doubled from causes which will be noticed below.

The foreign trade in treasure both on the export and import side was carried on with Calcutta alone. It is true that in 1872-73 and 1873-74 treasure to the value of Rs. 3,000 and Rs. 11,500 was imported into the subordinate ports of Bengal, and in 1875-76 a small quantity of treasure was sent to Chittagong, but none has been imported during the past year; and it may be laid down generally that the coast ports of Bengal derive their supplies of treasure almost entirely from Calcutta and Madras.

There was a considerable increase in the amount of Government transactions during 1876-77. As compared with the results of the previous year, the imports by Government from foreign countries rose from Rs. 55,14,772 to Rs. 64,20,772, and the imports from Indian ports from Rs. 32,10,612 to Rs. 46,88,156. The total imports, therefore, by Government from foreign and Indian ports increased from Rs. 87,25,384 to Rs. 1,11,08,928. On the export side Government transactions in the foreign trade amounted to Rs. 2,04,395 as compared with Rs. 1,68,246 in the previous year. The exports to Indian ports also rose from Rs. 25,24,534 to Rs. 69,18,402, the grand total of exports by Government thus amounting to Rs. 71,22,797, as against Rs. 26,92,780 in the previous year. These figures are inclusive of treasure.

The Port of Calcutta.

The following table shows the total imports and exports on behalf of Government at Calcutta during the last five years :—

	1872-73.	1873-74.	1874-75.	1875-76.	1876-77.

The imports, consisting of stores, are almost entirely from the United Kingdom, and the exports, which are small as compared with the imports, are sent for the most part to Ceylon and the Straits Settlements. The total amount of Government transactions on the export and import side has risen considerably in the year under report, but still does not show any large increase over the amounts of earlier years.

Excluding Government transactions, the total value of the foreign trade of Calcutta, both in exports and imports, during the last five years was as follows :—

The fluctuations that have taken place in the import trade are in some respects the reverse of those which have occurred in the exports. Under the former head there has been a slight decrease in the imports of merchandise, counterbalanced as regards the total results of the year by a considerable rise in the imports of treasure; while the export trade shows an enormous increase under the head of country produce and a heavy decline in the export of treasure. The total excess of exports over imports amounted to no less than Rs. 7,26,44,210.

The variations which have taken place in the trade with foreign countries are noticed in detail in the Collector's report. The trade with the treaty ports of China, with the Straits Settlements, with Australia, and with Austria, shows a decline; while the transactions with the United Kingdom, Hong-Kong, the United States, France, Ceylon, the Mauritius, and Italy have risen in value during the year. The following statement indicates that year by year a larger proportion of the trade with foreign countries follows the route by the Suez Canal :—

The imports of salt have already been dealt with in a separate Resolution and need no further mention here.

Salt

The last three years have witnessed a progressive fall in the value of the imports of apparel into Calcutta. In 1874-75 these amounted to Rs. 24,87,512, while in the past year they have fallen to Rs. 17,71,633, against Rs. 21,13,131 in 1875-76. This decline may fairly be attributed to the general reduction of personal expenditure, which has been forced upon private individuals by the unfavourable state of the exchange.

Apparel

The imports under this head, nearly all of which are from the United Kingdom, fell from Rs. 3,55,785 in 1875-76 to Rs. 2,40,215 in 1876-77. In particular, the imports of fire-arms and parts of fire-arms have decreased by nearly 50 per cent. It is possible that, as the Collector suggests, the more careful scrutiny bestowed on the importation of fire-arms for natives may have contributed to this result, but the enhanced rate of duty is undoubtedly the chief cause.

Arms and ammunition.

The import of coal, under which head are included coke and various kinds of patent fuel, has risen from 62,993 tons, valued at Rs. 11,77,504, in 1875-76, to 77,375 tons, worth Rs. 14,31,348, in the past year. This is probably to be accounted for by the extension of railways and the increase of steamer traffic during 1876-77. It may also be anticipated that the former cause will tend to stimulate the supply of coal from Indian mines, which will ultimately step in to take the place of that imported from the United Kingdom. This, however, will mainly depend upon the opening out of improved communications with the existing mines; and until that result has been attained no marked decline in the imports of coal can be looked for.

Coal.

Excluding cotton twist and yarn, the imports of which have slightly increased, the total imports of cotton manufactures show a marked decline during the year under report.

Cotton goods.

The sea-borne imports from Bombay show a remarkable increase which is noticed in the sections dealing with the interportal trade. A scheme for introducing a more complete registration of the imports into Calcutta by railway is now under consideration, and it is hoped that in future it will be possible to define accurately the extent to which the coarse cotton goods of Bombay pass into use on this side of India.

The imports of hardware and cutlery amounted to Rs. 19,44,249 in 1876-77, against Rs. 23,11,100 in 1875-76. The Collector of Customs has offered no explanation of this decrease, but up to 1874 these articles were included under the head of wrought-iron, and it is possible that the period during which the imports of hardware have been separately shown is too short to afford a trustworthy indication of the conditions which affect the trade.

Liquors.

The following statement shows the importation of malt liquors, spirits, and wines during the last five years:—

			Ale, Beer, and Porter. Rs.	Spirits. Rs.	Wines and Liqueurs. Rs.
1872-73	15,81,680	24,44,720	23,51,680
1873-74	15,47,680	20,53,000	21,91,650
1874-75	15,92,840	27,22,390	24,06,000
1875-76	12,57,720	20,80,840	25,50,880
1876-77	12,80,994	23,61,094	19,55,127

The fluctuations in the import of malt liquors and spirits appear to have followed much the same course. Both attained their maximum in 1874-75, and fell rapidly in the following year in consequence of the unfavourable exchange on England. During the year under report some reaction against the former reduction of consumption seems to have set in, for in both cases the import has increased. On the other hand, the marked decline in the import of wines and liqueurs may probably account for some proportion of the increased consumption of spirits.

The decrease in the import of machinery is peculiarly marked, though, as the Collector observes, this may be due in the case of steam-engines to the fact that up to 1876-77 engines for use on railways were included under the general head of machinery. It is well known that the demand for machinery fluctuates rapidly from year to year, and that a fair estimate of the trade can only be formed upon a view of the average imports of a long series of years, but the imports of 1876-77 appear in any case to be exceptionally low. Probably, however, this is due to temporary causes, and does not indicate any serious check in the local manufacturing industries. Some portion of the decrease is also probably due to the reaction in the jute trade against the over-speculation and premature extension of mills in previous years.

Copper, which was imported in almost equal proportions from the United Kingdom and Australia, and to a less extent from Japan, has risen from Rs. 61,48,371 to Rs. 77,22,652, and the trade appears to be in a thoroughly flourishing condition. The very considerable increase which has taken place in the import of iron during the last two years is somewhat obscured by the recent classification, which shows hardware and cutlery under a separate head. If these are included for the sake of comparison, it will be seen that in 1874-75 an amount of iron valued at Rs. 55,46,798 was imported into Calcutta. In the following year the imports, including hardware and cutlery, amounted to Rs. 74,55,198, while in 1876-77 the total imports were no less than Rs. 82,76,322. There is also an increase in the imports of lead, unwrought tin, and zinc or spelter, and a heavy fall in the import of quicksilver.

Railway plant

The imports, on private account, of railway plant and rolling-stock during the last five years are as follow:—

		Rs.			Rs.
1872-73	...	26,41,201	1874-75	...	16,19,695
1873-74	...	23,87,231	1875-76	...	10,74,724
1876-77	Rs. 34,26,776	...

It is stated, however, that the increase is only apparent, and is caused by the inclusion under this head of wooden sleepers and locomotives, which were formerly shown as wooden manufactures and as machinery.

The imports of silk manufactures show a fall in value from Rs. 12,99,217 in 1875-76 to Rs. 10,29,865 in 1876-77. Very large consignments were made in the previous year, and some decline in the trade was to be expected. The bulk of the imports came from Marseilles and the United Kingdom, small supplies being also received from Hong-Kong, Italy, Port Said, and the Straits.

Silk.

Woollen goods show a decrease of two lakhs, due to a heavy fall in the import of piece-goods and shawls, and a considerable rise under braids and other sorts.

RE-EXPORTS OF FOREIGN MERCHANDISE.

The re-exports of foreign goods from Calcutta during the last five years were as follow :—

		Rs.			Rs.
1872-73	...	18,24,778	1874-75	...	12,54,553
1873-74	...	11,42,086	1875-76	...	10,70,069
	1876-77	Rs. 14,93,562

These are consigned for the most part to the Straits Settlements, Mauritius, and Ceylon; but there is also some re-exportation to the United Kingdom. The trade has increased by nearly four lakhs in the year under report, although it has not yet reached the level it attained in 1872-73.

Export trade.—The following statement illustrates the export of the most important articles of Indian produce during the last two years :—

Dyes.

Under this head indigo is the chief export. The figures for the last five years are as follow :—

	Cwt.	Rs.		Cwt.	Rs.
1872-73	85,491	2,69,94,200	1874-75	54,428	1,98,16,099
1873-74	73,703	2,62,80,103	1875-76	84,228	2,35,25,774
	1876-77	...		Cwt. 69,379; Rs. 2,35,66,023.

The bulk of the export is taken by the United Kingdom, France, America, and Austria. Although the quantity of indigo exported in 1876-77 was only 69,379 cwt. against 84,228 cwt. in the previous year, the total value rose from Rs. 2,35,25,774 to Rs. 2,35,66,023, indicating a marked increase in the selling price of the dye. This is believed to have been due to the crop shipped in 1875-76 being unusually large, while the demand for indigo in the home market was slack. Prices therefore stood at a low level, and it is possible that consumption may have been slightly stimulated by the cheapness of indigo. When prices were still low, a failure of the autumn rains in Tirhoot threatened to reduce the outturn of the crop destined for export in 1876-77; a re-action set in in Europe, and prices consequently rose about 16 per cent. for fine, and 28 per cent. for middling indigo. It may be added that the average export of indigo from Calcutta during the last thirty years is 74,438 cwt., while the average for the last eight years, during which period the value has risen considerably in proportion to the quantity, is only 73,970 cwt.

Rice not in the husk is at present the most important item under the heading grain and pulse. The exports of rice husked during the last five years were as follow :—

	Cwt.	Rs.		Cwt.	Rs.
1872-73	5,779,058	1,68,51,709	1874-75	2,724,232	1,04,85,569
1873-74	3,687,611	1,35,22,900	1875-76	3,873,854	1,34,67,712
	1876-77	...		Cwt. 5,243,704; Rs. 1,99,88,737.

The large increase shown in the quantity of rice exported was mainly due to the enhanced demand from Ceylon. It appears from the figures given at page 432 of the annual statement of the sea-borne trade of Bengal that the exportation of rice from Calcutta to Ceylon rose from 402,321 cwt. in 1875-76 to 2,167,837 cwt. in 1876-77. In ordinary years Ceylon draws its supplies of rice from the southern ports of the Madras Presidency, but the scarcity in Madras stopped all exportation during the past year, and the merchants of Ceylon were compelled to import rice from Calcutta. It may be expected, therefore, that the exports of rice to Ceylon will return to their ordinary level as soon as the present scarcity is at an end. Large exports were also made to Mauritius, Demerara, and the West Indies, to meet the demand for rice by the Indian emigrants settled there.

A still more conspicuous increase, bearing greater promise of lasting development in the future, occurred in the exports of wheat as shown below:—

		Cwt.	Rs.			Cwt.	Rs.
1872-73	...	144,411	4,88,007	1874-75	...	279,280	11,89,013
1873-74	...	489,443	18,84,748	1875-76	...	1,330,822	39,89,703
		1876-77	...

1876-77 ... Cwt. 3,882,218; Rs. 1,23,36,374.

In the present state of European politics it is impossible to forecast with any certainty the prospects of any trade that is concerned with the East; but it appears not unlikely that one result of the present war may be to give a permanent stimulus to the wheat trade of India.

Hides and skins.

The following statement shows the course of the trade in this important staple during the last five years:—

	Raw hides.		Tanned hides.		Raw skins.		Tanned skins.
	No.	Rs.	No.	Rs.	No.	Rs.	No.	Rs.

In the two items of tanned hides and skins the exports show a large increase, due to the abolition of the export duty in 1875.

Jute, raw.

The steady decline which has taken place in the exports of the raw jute fibre is well illustrated by the following statement:—

		Cwt.	Rs.			Cwt.	Rs.

1876-77 ... Cwt. 1,532,148; Rs. 2,63,60,880

During the last five years the fall both in quantity and price has been progressive, and there is some reason for believing that it may continue. The Collector explains that the fall is due to the "increased consumption of jute in the local mills," and appears to consider this a complete account of the altered conditions of the trade. Taken literally, the Collector's explanation would seem to imply that the stock of jute fibre in Bengal is a fixed amount, which has been so reduced by the extended operations of the Calcutta mills that the residue cannot meet the demand for export. The fact, however, appears to be that the Indian jute-mills now command a practical monopoly of the Asiatic and a large portion of the American and Australian markets, and have in the past years largely extended their exports to China. This has deprived the Dundee manufacturers of some of the main outlets for their trade, and their demand for raw jute has consequently fallen. It is out of the question to suppose that the supply of a fibre which pays the cultivator so well as jute is at all likely to fall short, and any such prospect would at once result in a rise of prices, which would have an immediate effect in stimulating production. The progress of the trade in gunny-bags during the last five years has been as follows:—

YEAR	Gunny-bags		Gunny-cloth		Rope and twine.		Other kinds.		Total.

Out of the 32,568,261 bags shipped in 1876-77, 29,003,559 were power-loom bags and 3,564,702 hand-woven. The United States took 10,861,329 power-loom bags, Australia 5,682,210, Hong-Kong 5,120,973, the Straits 3,302,000, the United Kingdom 1,854,866, and Egypt 1,169,649 bags. Of the hand-loom bags, 1,906,750 were sent to the United States, 1,302,000 to Australia, and 210,750 to Hong-Kong. The average price of exported bags shows a continuous fall from Rs. 29 per 100 bags in 1874-75 to Rs. 23 in 1875-76 and Rs. 19-10 in 1876-77.

A considerable increase has occurred in the quantities of shell-lac, button-lac, and lac-dye exported from Calcutta, accompanied in the case of the two former by an appreciable decline in value. It is believed that the trade in shell-lac is tending to recover itself, and that a considerable portion of the surplus stock of lac-dye, which is said to be on hand in the European market, is really of inferior quality.

Silk is stated to show signs of recovering from the depression which affected it in 1875-76, but the trade appears to be a stagnant one, which may revive at intervals when the yield in France and Italy fails, and when there is no effective competition on the part of China and Japan. In the long run, however, the competition of these latter countries will tend to become continually stronger, while there seems to be no prospect of such an improvement in the quality or reduction in the price of the Bengal article as will enable it to command a steady market in Europe.

The exports of sugar have risen from 83,865 cwt., valued at Rs. 8,08,669, in 1875-76, to 637,090 cwt., worth Rs. 68,52,573, in 1876-77. Most of the exports were consigned to the United Kingdom. It is believed that this extraordinary expansion of the Indian trade was mainly due to the failure of the beet-root crop in France, and the consequent stoppage of one of the chief sources which ordinarily supply Europe with sugar.

The following statement shows a steady increase in the quantity and value of tea exported from India during the last five years :—

Some reduction of value is probably to be expected in the current year.

No explanation of the marked fluctuations which have occurred both in gold and silver is offered by the Collector of Customs. It is believed, however, that the enormously enhanced imports of silver of the past year represent a considerable reduction in the stock of silver thrown on the European market by the demonetization of that metal in Germany.

Interportal Trade.—The imports into, and exports from, Calcutta during 1875-76 and 1876-77 are shown in one view in the following statement:—

It will be seen that the imports from Indian ports have risen from Rs. 1,71,35,714 in 1875-76 to Rs. 1,79,44,876 in 1876-77. The Bombay imports increased from Rs. 18,10,325 to Rs. 49,48,170, but this increase was counterbalanced to a great extent by a decline in the imports from Madras and British Burmah. On the other hand, the increase in the exports from Rs. 4,68,91,171 to Rs. 8,86,51,992 extended to all branches of the export trade, although the exports to Madras rose in a far higher proportion than the exports to other ports of British India. In the case of Madras and the Indian ports not under the British Government the trade was abnormally stimulated by the scarcity prevailing in Southern and Western India, and the bulk of the increase in the export trade occurred under the head of grain and pulse. A large proportion of the apparent increase in the trade with Indian ports not British is due to changes in the classification of Indian ports. Two ports formerly assigned to Bombay and three entered as belonging to Madras are now classed as non-British.

Imports of the Interportal Trade.

Raw cotton is imported largely for manufacture in the local mills, but the imports during 1876-77 show a decline from Rs. 34,48,665 to Rs. 28,68,334. There has also been some change in the sources of supply. In 1875-76 most of the imports were from British Burmah, but in the past year Bombay sent Rs. 13,39,788 and Madras Rs. 6,58,087, while the Burmah imports amounted only to Rs. 8,70,459 as compared with Rs. 19,57,640 in the previous year.

The value of the imports of cotton twist and yarn rose from Rs. 2,04,713 in 1875-76 to Rs. 16,32,700 in 1876-77, while the imports of grey goods increased in the same period from Rs. 1,49,882 to Rs. 7,25,184. In the case of twist and yarn nearly the whole of the imports came from Bombay, which sent no less than Rs. 16,27,861 out of the entire amount imported. For cotton piece-goods only the total of the imports is shown, and the Collector has confined himself to the remark that the imports are chiefly from Bombay. In this instance again the Lieutenant-Governor has to observe that the Collector of Customs has failed to furnish any intelligent comment upon fluctuations which bear upon the question of the development of the Bombay trade in cotton goods of local manufacture.

The value of the mineral oil imported from Rangoon has risen from Rs. 6,260 in 1875-76 to Rs. 1,05,546 in the year of report. It is stated that Rangoon oil has begun to compete effectively with American oil, and the Lieutenant-Governor hopes that the competition may be maintained.

Under this head the imports rose from Rs. 1,04,988 in 1875-76 to Rs. 1,32,856 in 1876-77. Coconada supplied cigars to the value of Rs. 1,01,939, and Burmah Rs. 26,380. The returns of the imports of cigars from foreign countries show a continuous decline during the last three years, which is probably due in some measure to the increasing demand for the cheap cigars of Madras and Burmah. With the gradual improvements which are now being effected in the processes of manufacture, it may be expected that this demand will increase.

Exports of the Interportal Trade.

The scarcity in Bombay and Madras produced its natural results in an enormously increased export under the head of grain and pulse. The exports of grain rose in value from Rs. 74,395 in 1875-76 to Rs. 15,96,165 in 1876-77; the bulk of the export being sent to Madras. Wheat increased from Rs. 9,235 to Rs. 3,02,210, and pulse from Rs. 1,59,314 to Rs. 13,02,861. In both these cases the larger proportion of the export was consigned to Madras. The following statement taken from the Collector's report shows the exports of rice (not in the husk) for 1875-76 and 1876-77, the last three months of the latter year being given separately as forming a period of peculiarly high pressure:—

	1875-76.		1876-77.		January, February, and March 1877.

The inaccuracy of the export statistics as hitherto recorded has formed the subject of a separate correspondence with the Government of India, and measures will now be adopted to ensure that relands and short shipments shall be duly recorded in future. The figures given above are subject to some deductions on this account; but even allowing for this, the enormous increase in the exports of grain furnishes a satisfactory proof of the readiness with which private trade may be trusted to meet a real demand, provided that it is left to conduct its operations without hindrance.

The exports of power-loom gunny-bags show a satisfactory increase from Rs. 51,46,330 in 1875-76 to Rs. 64,05,875 in 1876-77. The chief demand was from Bombay and British Burmah. Unmanufactured tobacco also rose from Rs. 11,49,864 to Rs. 24,91,949. Tobacco in the leaf is sent almost entirely to Burmah for manufacture into cigars. The crop is a highly profitable one to the cultivators, and it is hoped that the marked development of the exports in the past year may be due in some measure to an improvement in the quality of the leaf by more careful cultivation than has hitherto been practised.

The Port of Chittagong.

The gross duty collected on imports and exports at Chittagong during 1876-77 amounted to Rs. 6,81,660. Deducting the duty on salt, which realized Rs. 6,30,782, the gross duty on general merchandise amounted to Rs. 50,878, showing a decrease of Rs. 63,491 on the results of the previous year. This is undoubtedly due to the destructive cyclone and storm-wave of October 1876, which brought all commercial operations in the district to a standstill.

Examining the returns in detail, it will be seen that the imports from foreign countries have fallen in value from Rs. 2,74,304 in 1875-76 to Rs. 2,61,989 in the year under report—being a decrease of Rs. 12,315. This decrease is accounted for by the falling off in the imports from the United Kingdom, the Straits Settlements, and the Maldives. The imports from the United Kingdom consist chiefly of salt, and it appears that the stock in hand at the close of 1875-76 was sufficient to meet the local demand. There was some increase in the trade with Ceylon, owing partly to the enhanced importation of cocoanuts and cocoanut-oil, and partly to the fact that some of the Maldivé trade passed through Ceylon and was entered as belonging to that place. This latter circumstance accounts also for some portion of the decline in the imports from the Maldives, the remainder being due to the diminished import of fruits, vegetables, shells, and cowries. The fall of Rs. 7,065, or 43 per cent. in the value of the goods imported from the Straits Settlements, occurred in cabinet-ware, cotton piece-goods, earthenware, fireworks, pitch, tar, and dammer, and sugarcandy. There was, however, an appreciable rise in the imports of pepper.

The value of the export trade of Chittagong fell from Rs. 13,30,729 in 1875-76 to Rs. 6,07,247 in 1876-77. This was the natural consequence of the damage done by the cyclone and storm-wave, which seriously injured the crops in the interior of the district and destroyed many of the native vessels lying in the port. Trade was further hampered by the outbreak of cholera which followed shortly after the cyclone and disorganized the system of rural markets by which country produce finds its way to the centres of export trade. The decline is most marked in the case of Ceylon and Mauritius. It is understood that in ordinary years Ceylon imports rice largely from the southern ports of the Madras Presidency and from Chittagong. In the past year both these sources of supply were cut off—the one by the failure of crops in Madras, and the other by the cyclone. But for the cyclone, it is obvious that a large proportion of the enhanced demand from Ceylon would have been met by Chittagong, and this development might have been maintained even after Madras had recovered from the effects of the present scarcity. As it was, Ceylon was compelled to draw her supplies from Calcutta.

The value of the coasting trade of Chittagong during the last two years is shown thus—

			Imports.	1875-76.	1876-77.

Indian ports not British	3	...
Total				26,00,168	26,55,585

The total imports have risen considerably in spite of a decline in the supply of earth-oil from British Burmah, which is attributed to the straitened circumstances of the inhabitants of Chittagong. The increase in the Madras exports, which is stated to arise from the large shipments of grain, appears to conflict with the remarks made in the last paragraph on the fall in the exports to Ceylon. It should be noted, however, that rice exported to Ceylon pays duty, and that the exports are consequently accurately recorded, while in the case of the free exports to Indian ports the returns are notoriously based, not on the amounts actually shipped, but on the amounts for which passes are taken out.

The exports of tea from Chittagong during the last five years are shown as follow :—

Year.						Value.
						Rs.
1872-73	2,79,778
1873-74	3,01,477
1874-75	3,41,894
1875-76	477,703	4,79,353
1876-77	601,931	6,12,697

Chittagong tea is said to be of excellent quality, and to show some promise of becoming the most important staple of a direct trade with Europe. It is to be hoped, however, that the increase in quantity is not the result of the excessive plucking of leaf which has proved so detrimental elsewhere.

In the Resolution on the Port of Chittagong, the Lieutenant-Governor has already expressed an opinion adverse to the proposal to declare Narain-gunge a port. It is possible, however, that the Commissioner may be able to bring forward fresh reasons in support of the scheme, and his report on the subject will be awaited.

For the whole province the values may be shown thus—

In Pooree and Cuttack there were no imports from foreign ports of either dutiable or free merchandise, while in Balasore the only foreign imports were 10,600 gunny-bags from Ceylon, valued at Rs. 1,792. A small quantity of claret was imported into Cuttack from Pondicherry.

Among the exports from Cuttack to foreign ports the chief were rice, wheat, and oilseeds. The trade in oilseeds is stated to have declined of late, partly in consequence of the greater attention bestowed on the export of rice, and partly because the firm which used to send sesamum to France have now left the district. The exports of rice rose from 91,196 cwt., valued at Rs. 2,59,661, in 1875-76, to 177,189 cwt., valued at Rs. 5,12,110, in 1876-77. Mauritius, Arabia, and Ceylon take the bulk of the Cuttack export. The foreign exports from Pooree show a decline, and the increase in Balasore is due to the large consignments of rice to Mauritius, Ceylon, and the Maldives.

Turning to the coasting trade of the Orissa ports, it will be found that the imports into Cuttack, excluding treasure, have fallen by about three lakhs in consequence of the diminished import of cotton piece-goods. If treasure be included, the decline amounts to a little more than two lakhs. At Pooree the imports have risen enormously, owing to gunny-bags received from Bombay and treasure from the Madras ports. At Balasore the increase, though less marked than at Pooree, was considerable. It occurred chiefly in treasure brought to pay for the purchases of rice from the cultivators, and also in cotton twist, metals, and gunny-bags.

In all of the Orissa ports the rise in exports to Indian ports was enormous, occurring chiefly in rice, the export of which is shown as follows:—

The accuracy of these figures is open to some doubt, as has been observed above, but they prove that the resources of Orissa have been made available to relieve a famine-stricken country at the time of its extreme need. It is hoped that a permanent development of the Orissa trade may result from the operations of the past year. Balasore shows an amount of exports which appears to be disproportionately large, but it has already been observed in the Resolution on the general administration report of Orissa that this is due to the shipment of Cuttack rice through the port of Chandbally, which lies just within the western boundary of the Balasore district.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

H. J. REYNOLDS,

Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

RESOLUTION ON THE GENERAL REPORT ON PUBLIC INSTRUCTION FOR THE YEAR 1876-77.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT.—EDUCATION No. 43.

Calcutta, the 4th January 1878.

READ—

The General Report on Public Instruction for the year 1876-77.

THE financial position of the Government of Bengal at the opening of the year 1876-77 compelled the Lieutenant-Governor not only to impress on all heads of departments the urgent need for the exercise of strict economy in the administration of the revenues, but also to make considerable reductions in the budget grants which it was originally proposed to assign under the several heads of provincial expenditure. During each of the years which followed the introduction of the system of provincial finance established in 1871, the local Government had at its disposal accumulated balances which were available to meet any surplus of expenditure over receipts, and charges were consequently admitted on a scale which the current income of the Government would not have justified. These balances, however, were surrendered to the Government of India in partial liquidation of the liabilities incurred by Bengal during the scarcity of 1874, and the Government found it necessary, in settling the provincial budget for 1876-77, to keep the sanctioned expenditure strictly within the amount of the expected income of the year.

2. The Department of Education, in common with the other departments of the provincial administration, suffered under these necessary retrenchments. The grant originally intended to be assigned was Rs. 25,38,333; but this sum was successively reduced, first to Rs. 24,92,236, and eventually to Rs. 24,67,236. The actual expenditure of the year was Rs. 24,61,599, of which Rs. 4,71,814 represent departmental receipts, and the balance, Rs. 19,89,785, is the net Government expenditure. The gross expenditure in 1874-75 was Rs. 25,11,830, the sanctioned grant for 1875-76 was Rs. 26,14,010, and the actual expenditure of that year amounted to Rs. 26,32,444. The figures are not quite accurately given in the opening paragraphs of the Director's present report; but it will appear, from what has been said, that the expenditure of 1876-77 from the Education Budget was about half a lakh below that of 1874-75, and nearly 1½ lakhs below that of the year 1875-76.

3. The officers of the department exerted themselves loyally and strenuously to carry out the orders of Government, and to prevent the diminution of the grant from injuriously affecting the progress of education. But it was inevitable that so serious a reduction in the available funds should not only arrest development, but should in some cases result in an actual decrease in the number of schools and pupils; and this decrease has occurred in middle schools generally, and in primary schools in the great majority of districts. There was also a considerable decrease in the number of schools for special instruction, but this did not arise from the reduction of the grant, but from the closing of several normal schools of the second and third grades—a measure which was carried out by Government upon grounds independent of financial considerations.

4. Under these circumstances, the Lieutenant-Governor regards it as a satisfactory proof of the general soundness and vitality of our educational system that, notwithstanding these disadvantages and drawbacks, the number of schools and colleges under inspection, and the pupils attending them, showed a marked increase during the year. The figures are given in the following table:—

CLASS OF INSTITUTIONS.	1876.		1877.
	Schools.	Pupils.	Schools.	Pupils.
For general instruction—
Government institutions	259	24,208	267	24,595
Grant-in-aid ditto	1,872	87,379	1,842	88,109
Primary and Circle Fund Institutions	13,270	363,166	13,665	361,648
Unaided institutions	2,268	68,111	5,420	120,517
For special instruction*	91	4,940	78	4,398
Total	17,550	535,804	31,478	689,361

* Schools for special instruction are all Government institutions, except 15 aided normal schools with 862 pupils, and one unaided technical school with 255 pupils.

5. An examination of this table shows that the increase in the number of Government schools has not been accompanied by a corresponding increase in the number of pupils; that though grant-in-aid schools have diminished by 30, the number of pupils in them has increased; that schools supported from the primary fund show an increase in numbers, with no increase in pupils; that a large additional number of unaided pathshalas have been brought under inspection; and that, notwithstanding the decrease in the number of schools for special instruction, the pupils attending them have not very greatly diminished. If the unaided institutions, which are of course unaffected by the finances of the department, are excluded from the returns of both years, it will be seen that while in 1875-76 there were 15,492 schools with 469,693 pupils, in 1876-77 the number of schools rose to 15,849, but that of pupils diminished to 468,834.

6. If the schools are classified, not according to the budget grant from which they are supported, but according to the character of the instruction imparted in them, the results of the year are as follow:—

CLASS OF INSTRUCTION.		1876.		1877.		Average number of pupils at each school.
		Schools.	Pupils.	Schools.	Pupils.
SUPERIOR	Colleges	18	1,404	20	1,793	90

	Middle	623	34,072	511	30,072	59
SECONDARY	Middle vernacular	1,289	59,304	1,045	51,718	50
	Intermediate English schools			113	4,328	39
	Ditto vernacular schools			1,501	52,430	35
PRIMARY	Primary schools	13,216	344,510	12,273	302,480	25
	Female	427	11,831	480	12,027	25
SPECIAL		91	4,940	75	4,393	58
Total		15,807	492,090	16,196	491,492

* In the report for the previous year, all schools aided from the primary fund were classed as primary schools. The figures have been corrected in this table.

Unaided primary schools are not shown in this table, the standard of instruction in these not being accurately defined. Intermediate schools appear as a new class in the returns of 1876-77; in the previous year intermediate English schools did not exist, and intermediate vernacular schools were included in the primary class. The falling off in middle schools, and especially in middle English schools, is very noticeable, the number of middle English schools in 1875-76 being the same as that of middle English and intermediate English together in 1876-77. In the middle vernacular schools the loss is not so great, as the majority of the intermediate vernacular schools have not come down from the middle class, but have risen from the primary class. But it is estimated that of the 214 middle vernacular schools which have disappeared from the returns of the year, about 40 or 50 have been entirely closed, and the rest have fallen to a lower class. Primary schools show a decrease of nearly 1,000. This means that, in round numbers, 1,300 of these schools have been raised to the intermediate class, and 1,200 have disappeared from Bengal generally, while no less than 1,500 new schools have been added to the list in the two districts of Midnapore and Balasore.

7. In all this there is no ground for apprehension, and but little cause for regret. Some of the weaker schools, which possessed little vitality independent of the Government grant, have been closed; while a more careful classification has shown that some schools were unable to maintain the standard under which they were previously ranked. But the colleges and higher English schools at one end of the scale, and the primary schools at the other, have in general stood the test of financial reductions in a manner which shows the soundness of the basis upon which they are established. The lesson to be deduced from the experience of the year appears to be that the middle schools are the weakest part of our educational system, and that special efforts should be made to strengthen and improve them.

8. The favourable inference which may be drawn from these returns is confirmed by an examination of the figures which show the proportion of the total educational expenditure contributed by Government and by the people themselves. Including the charges of the Medical College and schools, which are not shown in the Education Budget, the total expenditure on organized education was Rs. 42,34,000, of which Rs. 22,52,000 were paid by Government. In the previous year the Government contribution was Rs. 24,03,000, and the total expenditure Rs. 41,89,000. An increase of nearly half a lakh of rupees in the total expenditure, combined with a decrease of more than a lakh and a half in the payments by Government, shows that during the year the private funds expended upon education increased by about two lakhs of rupees. The Government share of educational expenditure has decreased during the year from 57 to 53 per cent., and this decrease in the rate is found in the schools of every class. The contributions from the public were Rs. 16,68,000 in 1874-75, Rs. 17,86,000 in 1875-76, and Rs. 19,82,000 in 1876-77. These figures appear to the Lieutenant-Governor to afford a convincing proof that the people are willing not merely to accept the instruction imparted in our schools, but to take their share in supporting it; and it is especially satisfactory to find that, in a year in which the Government was compelled to enforce measures of the strictest economy, the schools suffered no pecuniary loss, the deficiency being supplied, and more than supplied, by increased contributions from the public.

9. The primary schools supported or aided by Government showed a decrease during the year of nearly 1,000 schools and 46,000 pupils. But this decrease is owing, as has already been explained, to the elevation of about 1,300 of the best primary schools to the intermediate class. There has therefore been a real increase of about 300 schools; and as it appears that 1,500 pathshalas have been newly brought on the returns in the two districts of Balasore and Midnapore, it follows that about 1,200 schools have disappeared in other districts. Some of these continue to exist as unaided schools, but it is to be feared that the greater number have been closed. The unaided schools brought under inspection have increased from 2,043 schools with 43,714 pupils to 5,282 schools with 96,859 pupils. In the whole number of schools aided from the primary fund there are above 338,000 pupils, of whom it is estimated that about two-thirds, or 225,000, are in the lowest stage of instruction; 110,000 are able to read, write, and understand easy sentences out of a book, while at least 3,000 have reached a higher stage than this.

10. The report contains some suggestive and interesting paragraphs on the character of the instruction imparted in the indigenous schools of the country, the effect of the impulse given to primary education by the orders of 1872, the further degree of success which may reasonably be hoped for, and the dangers which have to be guarded against in extending and developing the present system. Such questions as these do not admit of proper and sufficient discussion within the limits of a Resolution, and the Lieutenant-Governor, while expressing his general concurrence in the Director's views, would rather commend these paragraphs to the perusal of those interested in the subject, than attempt to enter upon a detailed examination of the facts and arguments advanced in them.

11. Some remarks, however, appear to be called for upon the tendency which exists in some districts to raise the pathshalas to a standard unsuited to the requirements of those classes of the people for whom these schools were originally intended. Jessore, Moorshedabad, and Burdwan are noticed in the report as districts in which this tendency is specially conspicuous. It must be distinctly understood that it is not the policy of the Government to convert the pathshalas into cheap middle schools; and that the success of a pathsala is to be tested, not by the proficiency of the three or four boys who go up for the scholarship examination, but by the average progress of the general body of pupils.

12. The adoption of a system of payment by results is the best means of securing this end, while at the same time it allows a larger number of schools to be aided from the district grant. It is therefore satisfactory to find that this system, in one form or another, is now being very generally introduced. In some districts the plan adopted is that of rewards after examination; in others, that of the payment of remuneration according to the classification of schools; in others, again, the payment is made to depend on the result of the inspecting officer's report. In several of the Behar districts the supervision of the village punchayets has been employed with very successful results. The Lieutenant-Governor would by no means desire to pass any orders tending to reduce these diversities of practice to one uniform standard. It is for the local officers to determine, in consultation with the circle inspectors, the system best adapted to the conditions and requirements of their respective districts. The present report affords abundant evidence of the attention which District Magistrates have devoted to the subject. The Magistrate of Bankoora, Mr. Larminie, deserves honourable mention for the elaboration of a scheme under which Bankoora has a larger proportion of school-going children to population than any other district in Bengal. The system, however, though it works admirably in Bankoora, is inapplicable to a large district. The plan originated by Mr. Harrison in Midnapore has continued to give excellent results during the year, and has been successfully introduced into the Balasore district. In the 24-Pergunnahs Mr. Wilson has adopted a system, based upon a scheme of the late Mr. Woodrow, of rewards for the attainment of certain educational standards. The Magistrates of Noakhally and Balasore, and the Deputy Commissioner of Manbloom, have exerted themselves in various ways for the promotion of primary education, and the differences of system which prevail in these and in many other districts are really a measure of the intelligent appreciation given by the respective officers to the varying circumstances of their districts and to the special difficulties which have to be overcome.

13. The standard for the primary scholarship examination was considerably raised this year, and the test is said to have been very strictly enforced. In all, 3,110 schools sent up 11,462 candidates, and of these 5,246 passed and 386 obtained scholarships, the rest receiving certificates of merit according to their proficiency. It is noticeable that this year girls competed for this scholarship for the first time, and that in Jessore one girl obtained a scholarship, while in Tipperah three girls passed and one obtained a scholarship, standing first on the whole list. In Bhagulpore the scholarships appear to have been awarded without examination, a circumstance which calls for explanation from the Commissioner, as the omission to hold an examination in that district was noticed in the Resolution upon last year's report. On the whole, the Director thinks it is certain that the results of the year show a great advance. But there seems some reason to fear that these scholarships, which were intended to assist gifted boys of the lowest social classes in prosecuting their studies to a higher standard, are in many cases awarded to candidates who were simply attached to the pathshalas by the prospect of a scholarship, and who would otherwise have studied in a middle school. It is thought worthy of special notice that in one case the son of a weaver, and in another case the son of a milkman, obtained a scholarship; whereas instances of this kind should have been the rule, and not the exception. The Director will be invited to consider whether any regulations can be devised to restrict a practice which tends to defeat the object which the Government had in view in establishing these rewards.

14. The area of secondary instruction, which reaches from the standard of the primary schools to the standard of the University Entrance Examination, was enlarged during the year by the establishment of the new class of intermediate schools. The present returns include 1,501 intermediate vernacular schools with 52,650 pupils, and 112 intermediate English schools with 4,328 pupils. These intermediate schools are principally improved pathshalas; in some cases they are reduced middle schools, and in a few instances they are newly-founded schools. But it is generally agreed that the vernacular schools of this class have been much more useful than those which attempt to give instruction in English. While the vernacular schools have in general risen from a lower grade, the English schools have, with scarcely an exception, been brought down from a higher class. This result, indeed, is the natural consequence of the low standard which at present prevails in the middle English schools; and it may be confidently asserted that until the teaching, and especially the English teaching, in schools of this class shall have been generally improved, no room will be found for the establishment of an intermediate class between the middle and the primary schools. After full consideration, the Lieutenant-Governor has lately determined to discontinue the award of the special scholarship for intermediate English schools, and this will no doubt be followed by the disappearance of this class of schools from the returns.

15. As the examination for intermediate scholarships was held for the first time during the year, the Lieutenant-Governor thinks it sufficient to notice, rather than to censure, the laxity with which the rules upon the subject were enforced. It was the intention of Government that primary schools should be allowed to elect whether they would compete for the primary or for the intermediate scholarship. But it appears that these orders were generally interpreted to mean that any school which pleased might send up candidates for the intermediate scholarships, and the natural result was that the majority of these scholarships were awarded to students from middle schools—a class of pupils for whom the scholarships were not designed, and to whose attainments the prescribed standard was not adapted. For the intermediate vernacular scholarship 723 schools sent up 1,645 candidates, of whom 867 passed and 185 obtained scholarships: for the English scholarship the number of schools was 76, and that of candidates 201. Of these, 146 passed and 39 obtained scholarships. The Director has since issued a circular calling attention to the true meaning of the Government orders on this subject, and it is hoped that all possibility of misapprehension will now have been removed.

16. The number of middle vernacular schools decreased during the year from 1,259 schools with 59,304 pupils to 1,045 schools with 51,718 pupils. The causes of this decrease have already been explained: some schools have been abolished in consequence of the reduction of the grant, and others have fallen to the intermediate standard. The decrease was in the aided and private schools: the Government schools maintained their numbers, but showed no appreciable increase. The results of the vernacular scholarship examination, which is the recognized test of the education given in these schools, contrast very unfavourably with those of the preceding year. In 1876, 824 middle schools sent up 3,003 candidates, of whom 1,359 passed and 218 obtained scholarships. In 1875, 2,521 candidates passed out of 4,062 who presented themselves for examination. It is suggested in the report that this is due in some measure to the recent modifications introduced into the scholarship course. But this explanation is insufficient to account for so serious a decline, and the fact that more than one-fifth of the schools failed to send up any candidates at all affords a proof that middle school teaching requires to be actively stimulated and carefully supervised.

17. The returns for middle English schools point to a similar conclusion. In 1875-76 these schools numbered 623 with 34,072 pupils: in 1876-77 the numbers fell to 511 schools and 30,072 pupils. The progress in these schools is tested by the minor scholarship examination; and it appears that in the year under report 292 middle English schools sent up 923 candidates for this scholarship, and that of these 486 passed and 108 obtained scholarships. It follows that only three schools in every five compete at all for the scholarship, and that there are 220 schools shown in the returns as middle English schools which are unable to send up any candidates for the examination which is the recognized standard of their class. In the previous year there were 1,140 candidates for the minor scholarship, and of these 816, or 72 per cent., passed; whereas in the present year the proportion of successful candidates is only about 53 per cent. The returns do not show what proportion of the competing schools succeeded in passing any of their candidates; and the Lieutenant-Governor would ask that this may be stated in future reports, as regards both vernacular and English middle schools.

18. It is easy to trace the causes of this decline both in the numbers of middle schools and in the character of the instruction given in them; but it is a matter of more difficulty to suggest a remedy. The fact appears to be that, though the middle vernacular schools in many cases retain much of the stamp of excellence originally impressed upon them, they have in general ceased to be popular institutions. To a promising or ambitious boy, vernacular education, however excellent, seems to hold out little prospect of a successful career. He feels that, even if he obtains a scholarship, he will compete on disadvantageous terms in the struggle for the coveted prize of Government service with rivals who began the study of English at an earlier age. But if, in the vernacular middle schools, the decline is owing to the falling off of pupils, the low standard of English middle schools arises from the deficiency of the teaching staff. The Director remarks that schools of this class are very popular; it must be added that in general they are also very worthless. The teaching which they give is in no sense education, and can scarcely even be called instruction. Its prominent feature is the attempt made by untrained masters, themselves very imperfectly acquainted with English, to impart a smattering of English to boys who have never studied their own vernacular, and have never been grounded in any useful branches of learning. In his recent tours of inspection, the Lieutenant-Governor noticed with much concern the waste of time and money expended in producing these unprofitable results, and the social mischief of encouraging lads to aim at a class of education which was only within their reach in a very inefficient form, and which certainly exposed them to the probability of heavy disappointments when their school career is finished.

19. The policy which the Government desires to adopt in reference to this matter has been explained in orders which have recently been issued. In all Government middle schools it is intended that sound vernacular training shall be made the preliminary to English education, and in aided schools the acceptance of a similar principle will be a condition of the receipt of a Government grant. With this object, candidates for the minor scholarship examination will be required to pass the full vernacular tests, and, if the necessary books shall be forthcoming, it will also be required that English grammar shall be taught in the vernacular. It is also intended to increase the number of Government middle schools, as it is found that a Government school usually serves as a model to aided and private schools in its neighbourhood. The Government vernacular middle schools at the sudder stations of districts are for the most part of excellent quality, and similar schools will now be established in subdivisions. The working of these orders will require to be very carefully watched by the inspecting officers of the department, and it must be clearly understood that the Government has no desire to prohibit, or even to discourage, the study of English in middle schools, but only to require that the teaching shall conform to the object with which the schools were founded—namely, the imparting of sound vernacular instruction.

20. The vitality of the higher English schools, teaching up to the standard of the Entrance Examination, is shown by the fact that, under all the difficulties of the year, they increased both in number and pupils, the figures for the last two years being as follows:—

			1875-76.		1876-77.
			Schools.	Pupils.	Schools.	Pupils.
Government schools	45	11,952	48	12,235
Aided schools	85	9,550	88	10,365
Private schools	43	11,027	44	10,357
Total			...	173	32,529	180	32,957

It is also worthy of notice that, whereas a large proportion of middle schools are unable, as already shown, to send up candidates for middle scholarships, the number of higher schools which send up candidates for the Entrance is actually greater than the whole number of schools shown in the returns. Candidates were sent up by 175 schools in 1875-76 and by 185 schools in 1876-77. The explanation of this of course is that some private schools, which do not appear in the returns, send up candidates; but the general result is a striking proof that a fairly high standard is maintained on the average in all schools of this class.

21. The system of net grants to zillah schools, originated by Sir George Campbell in 1872, has produced excellent results, and the term of five years, for which the grants were originally made, having expired, the grants have been renewed for three years with such modifications as experience has shown to be required. Schools have been arranged in three classes, the number of pupils in the school being taken as the basis of classification, and a standard scale of establishment has been fixed for each class. The system of net grants possesses a double advantage: it tends at the same time to promote private liberality, and to check injudicious expenditure, and the steady improvement which Government schools of the higher class have shown during the last few years in numbers, popularity, and efficiency, may in great part be ascribed to the working of this system under the superintendence of the local committees.

22. For the Entrance Examination of December 1876, 185 schools sent up 1,849 candidates, and 1,005 of these passed, 18 per cent. of these being placed in the first division, 57 per cent. in the second, and 25 per cent. in the third. The total percentage of successful candidates was 54.3, against 31 in the previous year. In the Government schools 65·4 per cent. of the candidates passed, the Hindu and Hare Schools in Calcutta taking, as usual, the highest place. The report suggests reasons for thinking that the marked improvement shown this year may fairly be attributed, not to any relaxation of the standard, but to better preparation on the part of the candidates. Next to the Calcutta schools, the Dacca collegiate school occupied the most honourable place, and among the zillah schools the two schools of Burrisal and Mymensingh. The position taken by the schools at Berhampore, Chittagong, Arrah, Pubna, and Balasore calls for some departmental inquiry into the causes of their want of success.

23. The Government colleges teaching up to the B.A. standard are now six in number, the Kishnaghur and Cuttack colleges having opened 4th-year classes during the year. There are also six Government colleges of the second grade, in which instruction is confined to the standard of the First Arts Examination. There are six aided colleges and three unaided, of which last class the Metropolitan Institution in Calcutta is the only one which contains any considerable number of college students. The large proportion of candidates who passed the Entrance Examination had the natural effect of raising the number of students in the colleges; but the increase was greatest in the aided and unaided institutions. The numbers in the Presidency and Dacca colleges remained stationary. There was some increase at Hooghly and Patna, and a large increase at Kishnaghur, owing to the popularity of the college from the restoration of the B.A. classes. The infant college at Cuttack, which was founded only two years ago, also shows a considerable accession of students. The total number of under-graduate pupils in the Government colleges was 1,001, and in the aided colleges 556, or a total number of 1,557, against a total of 1,249 in the previous year and 1,213 in 1874-75. The numbers in unaided colleges cannot be accurately given.

24. The expenditure upon college education is shown in the following table:—

		Government fund.	Fees and private funds.	Total.
		Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Government colleges	...	2,00,335	88,805	2,89,140
Aided colleges	...	24,197	83,631	1,07,828
		2,24,532	1,72,436	3,96,968

The figures differ little from those of the preceding year, and the increase is attributable to the larger number of students. The average annual cost of the education of each student is Rs. 407 in a Government college and Rs. 308 in an aided college.

25. For the First Arts Examination, which takes place at the end of two years from matriculation, 330 candidates appeared and 151 passed. The Kishnaghur and Hooghly colleges were specially distinguished, while among the Dacca students there was a general failure. It is observable that a large majority of the successful candidates elected the course in science for their studies for the B.A. degree. For the B.A. examination there were 242 candidates and 115 passed, the general result being thus much better than those of the previous year. From the Government colleges 57 per cent. of the candidates satisfied the examiners, and the results would have been much better even than these had it not been for the failure of the students from Dacca and Patna. For the M.A. examination there were 23 candidates for honours in Arts, of whom 15 were successful, while eight candidates out of 17 obtained the ordinary M.A. degree.

26. In the Resolution upon last year's report, the paucity of those who take degrees in the University, in comparison with the number who matriculate, was noticed as a serious blot in our educational results. It was pointed out that the graduates in Arts are only about one-tenth of the number who matriculate. The Lieutenant-Governor is therefore glad to observe that the results of the year under review show a marked improvement in this respect. The 702 candidates who matriculated in 1874-75 were eligible this year for the First Arts Examination, and, as has already been remarked, 330 presented themselves and 151 passed. Similarly, in 1874-75 144 candidates passed the First Arts and were eligible this year for the B.A. degree, which 115 students actually obtained, or, in other words, the graduates in Arts this year were 80 per cent. of the whole number who passed the First Arts standard two years before. Such results as these cannot fail to exercise a marked influence, at no distant date, on the character of the educated classes, and, through them, on that of the people at large. It rests, indeed, with the University, rather than with the Government, to direct the course of college study, and to ensure that the distinction of a degree shall imply the possession of those mental qualities which generally distinguish men of sound and solid education. These qualities, the Director thinks, are now found in the successful candidates at the examinations for honours; the Lieutenant-Governor hopes that he is right, for it is a matter of deep interest to the Government that education of this type should be extended to a larger circle of students.

27. The department of special instruction includes the subjects of law, medicine, civil engineering, surveying and industrial schools, and the School of Art in Calcutta. There are five Government colleges to which law classes are attached, but the number of students has steadily declined for some years past. The civil engineering department of the Presidency College and the English department of the Medical College show a similar falling off, and for the present there seems reason to think that these professions are overstocked. But if this is really the case, the evil is one which may be trusted to work its own remedy. The vernacular medical and survey schools, which draw their pupils from a lower social stratum, and qualify for a less ambitious professional career, are working successfully. In the School of Art the students decreased from 134 to 119, but there was an increase in the Government expenditure which calls for explanation. The industrial school at Dacca is in a languishing condition; while the school recently opened at Ranchi is doing useful, if humble, work under the management of Mr. Herzog of the Chota Nagpore Mission. The industrial school at Dehree, though expensive, is an excellent and efficient institution with 78 pupils on the rolls, partly Europeans and partly Natives. The funds raised for the proposed industrial school at Bankipore have fallen very far short of the amount originally expected, and the scheme is for the present in abeyance. The Lieutenant-Governor is disposed to think that, with the consent of the subscribers, it might be desirable to utilize this money by founding additional studentships at Dehree, where there are already a qualified staff of instructors and all appliances for teaching.

28. On a general review of this province of the department of education, the Lieutenant-Governor is compelled to express his regret not only that so little has actually been done, but that the native community show so little desire to take up the important question of technical instruction in an earnest and practical spirit. Of the two Associations in Calcutta which were referred to in last year's report as having been founded for the promotion of technical education, it is understood that one confines its efforts to the delivery of occasional lectures, and that the other has made no progress at all towards effecting its object. The question of industrial schools has been very fully discussed: the advantages of an independent career have been theoretically admitted; the Government has announced its readiness to give all the assistance in its power. What is now required is not the advocacy, but the example, of those classes of society which, in spite of all warnings and all disappointments, continue to overcrowd the public service, and to expend, in competitions for ill-paid clerkships, energies and abilities which might ensure a prosperous and lucrative career in other walks of life. It has occurred to the Lieutenant-Governor that something might be done to establish scholarships from selected schools in various parts of the country tonable at Dehree, or the new Public Works School being established in Calcutta. Some of these scholarships might be reserved for European and Eurasian schools, and possibly persons interested in technical education might be found willing to endow such scholarships at all events for a term of years. Such workshops as those at Dehree are far more efficient for the purpose of technical instruction than any schools likely to be established by private persons.

29. The following figures show the progress in female education during the year. Schools for native girls increased from 403 with 9,690 pupils to 464 with 10,492 pupils, and the number of native girls studying in boys' schools rose from 7,186 to 9,794. Altogether there were 20,286 girls under instruction, against 16,876 in the previous year. Besides these, there were 17 schools for European girls, with 1,339 pupils. The success of some girls in the competition for primary scholarships has already been noticed, and the progress made in girls' schools in the mofussil is reported to be satisfactory; the schools under the management of the Utterpara Hitakari Sobha being specially efficient and successful. In Calcutta, a large proportion of the Government expenditure on native female education is incurred in aiding the missionary zenana agencies, and, from the reports furnished by Mrs. M. Wheeler, the Deputy Inspectress of Schools, it seems doubtful whether any adequate return for this outlay is received. The Bethune School in Calcutta shows some increase in the number of pupils, and a lower school has been added to it for the benefit of the poorer classes; but the school cannot be considered successful, and its reorganization on a wider basis is under the consideration of Government.

30. The necessity for devoting a special section of the report to the subject of Mahomedan education arises not so much from the absence of Mahomedans from the general schools of the country, as from the fact that a separate fund (the Mohsin Endowment) is assigned to the promotion of education among this class of the community. This endowment is expended partly in the maintenance of five madrissas for instruction in oriental learning, partly in the award of Mohsin scholarships to deserving Mahomedan students, and partly in the payment at ordinary colleges and schools of a portion of the fees of Mahomedan pupils of the poorer classes. The madrissas are reported to have worked successfully during the year, especially the Calcutta Madrissa, which has shown a steady increase in numbers for several years past. But, on the whole, the number of Mahomedan pupils in all Government and aided schools showed a diminution from 91,223 (or 19·4 per cent. of the whole number of boys at school) to 81,585, or 17·2 per cent. This is attributable to the decrease in the number of primary schools in those districts which have a large Mahomedan population, as Mahomedan boys attend the pathsalas more largely than any other class of schools. It is observable that in schools of special instruction, as law and medicine, Mahomedans are scarcely found, except in Behar. In the Patna Medical School they form a large majority of the students. In the B.A. examination of the University the Mahomedan candidates did well, four passing out of ten who presented themselves, and three of these in the first division.

31. The reductions made during the year in the number and cost of normal schools were due to the carrying out of the policy explained in the Resolution upon last year's report. It is intended that a first grade normal school shall be maintained in each Commissioner's division, and that schools of the second and third grades shall be confined to backward districts, in which schools of secondary instruction are few. During the year under review there were seven Government schools of the first grade, four of the second, and 14 of the third, and from these schools 718 gurus received certificates of qualification as teachers of primary schools, and 163 candidates passed the examination for masterships in middle and higher schools. The Director thinks that the stipend allowance in normal schools is too small, and that the schools at their present strength cannot supply a sufficient number of pundits. But the Lieutenant-Governor remarks that hardly any effect has yet been given to that part of the orders of 1875 which provided that normal schools of the first grade should be examining as well as teaching bodies. The purport of these orders should be generally explained, and uncertificated masters should be encouraged to attend the examinations with the object of obtaining certificates. It is impossible for the Government to undertake to give stipends to all those who adopt the profession of pundits; and the full benefit of the normal school system can only be realized by a general application of the principle that these schools are institutions for testing results as well as for imparting instruction.

32. The following statement exhibits the details of schools and pupils, and the distribution of funds under the grant-in-aid system, during the last two years :—

	1875-76.	1876-77.
Number of aided schools and colleges	1,889	1,833
Number of pupils	88,112	88,059
Receipts from Government	Rs. 4,30,128	Rs. 4,37,564
Total receipts	„ 13,17,286	„ 14,09,410

There has thus been some decrease in the number of schools, while the number of pupils is nearly the same, and the expenditure, both of Government money and of private funds, shows a considerable increase. As was the case last year, the largest share of Government expenditure was for middle English schools and for female education. Complaints of irregularities in the mode of keeping the accounts of aided schools, and of the imperfection of the present system of checks, have from time to time been brought to the notice of Government. The present report discusses in some detail a scheme proposed by the Inspector of the Presidency Circle for simplifying the accounts, and ensuring the maintenance of an efficient teaching staff in schools of this class. The annual report, however, is not the proper place for bringing forward proposals of this kind; and any suggestions which the Director desires to offer on the subject should be separately submitted.

33. The question of the education of European and East Indian children was discussed at length in last year's report, and it was then remarked that sufficient school accommodation had been provided for this class of the community. Accordingly, no increase in the number of these schools was found necessary during the year, but some additional aid was given, in the form of capitation grants, to several of the Calcutta schools. From the census returns of Calcutta, it appears that there are about 3,500 European and East Indian children of school-going age in the town; and the returns show that 2,942 children were actually attending schools aided by Government on the 31st March 1877. Adding to these the children at unaided schools, there appears no reason to think that any considerable want remains to be supplied.

34. The strength of the inspecting staff, though considerably increased under recent orders, is reported to be still very insufficient for the number of schools which are now under the supervision of the department. Including two special officers, the number of Deputy Inspectors and Sub-Inspectors of Schools is 202, and there are no less than 21,532 schools under inspection, giving each officer an average of above 106 schools to supervise. Proposals are under consideration for re-distributing the present inspecting circles and for appointing assistant inspectors. But it is evident that, if every school is to be locally visited, the present inspecting agency ought to be doubled; and this would involve an expenditure which it is entirely beyond the power of the Government to incur. The only practicable solution of the difficulty is that suggested in the report, viz. to bring the primary schools, which far outnumber the schools of all other grades, under a system of payment by results, which will in a great measure dispense with the necessity for local visits.

35. A general summary of the results of the year, as gathered from the foregoing paragraphs, shows that, while the work of the department has been conducted under some difficulties and disadvantages, considerable progress has been made, and a still further measure of success may be hoped for in the future. In particular, the educational history of the year is characterized by two circumstances which appear to the Lieutenant-Governor to afford special ground for satisfaction—the large increase in the funds contributed by the people themselves to schools of every class, and the marked success of the candidates from Bengal schools and colleges in the examinations of the University. The former of these shows that the present system of public instruction is founded upon a secure basis; that it is not merely a Government department, but a national institution. The latter affords a proof that this confidence is not misplaced; that the contributions, both of Government and of the community, are usefully expended; and that, while the basis of education in Bengal is broad, the superstructure also is high. These are results upon which, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, both the officers of the department and the people at large may justly be congratulated.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from observations made at 6h., 10h., 16h. and 22h.; the maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard (Newman's No. 86) formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction and movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

METEOROLOGICAL OFFICE, INDIA, the 12th January 1878.

The results of the observations at the Alipore Observatory are not rigorously comparable with the registers of past years (at the Park Street observatory). The barometer is about 3 feet higher at Alipore, and, other things being equal, reads therefore ·003 lower. The diurnal range of temperature is also greater at Alipore, and the mean temperature apparently from 1° to 2½° lower; and finally, the thermometer which has furnished the record of temperature at the Surveyor-General's Office during the last twenty years and upwards is found to read 0·6° higher than the Kew standard thermometer, which is the standard of reference at the present observatory.

F. T. HAIG, Col., R.E.,
Joint Secy. to the Government of Bengal, in the P. W. Dept., Irrigation Branch.

The 4th January 1878.

Reports of Fluctuation of Traffic on the Eastern Bengal Railway for the Month of November 1877.

EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY COMPANY, TRAFFIC SUPERINTENDENT'S OFFICE.

Report on the Traffic for the five weeks ending the 1st December 1877.

Dated Calcutta, the 21st December 1877.

From—C. F. CHADBURN, Esq., Acting Traffic Superintendent,

To—The Agent, Eastern Bengal Railway, Sealdah.

The quantity of goods carried during the above period amounted to 7,23,343 maunds as compared with 8,50,949 maunds carried during the same period last year, shewing a decrease of 1,27,606 maunds.

This decrease is chiefly owing to the stoppage of the rice export to the famine districts, and the smaller quantity of jute being sent down from the growing districts as compared with the same period last year.

The staples showing the greatest decrease are grain including rice, gunny bundles, hides bundles and bales, jute drums and bales, foreign railway materials, sugar, tea, and tobacco.

Those showing an increase are cotton bundles and bales, gunny bales, piece-goods, salt, seeds, turmeric, twist, and miscellaneous goods.

Decreases.

Grain, including rice ... Mds. 83,704
The decrease in this staple is owing to the stoppage of export to Madras.
Gunny, bundles ... Mds. 6,986
The decrease in this staple (which showed a small increase last month) is owing to the smaller demand for gunny bags in the interior.

Hides, bundles and bales ... Mds. 1,159 306
The quantity of this staple fluctuates according to the demand for export, and though showing a large increase in October, it has declined this month.

Jute, drums and bales ... Mds. 33,492 1,00,206
This staple, which showed a small decrease last month, has fallen considerably, and shows the large decrease of 1,33,698 maunds, owing to the supply being small and the prices in Calcutta market being higher than in London.

Railway material, foreign ... Mds. 27,838
The decrease in this article is owing to the smaller quantities of material sent up for the N. B. S. Railway this year as compared with the same period of the previous year.

Sugar ... Mds. 16,968
This decrease is on account of there being no demand for the home or foreign markets, owing to the high prices current here.

Tea ... Mds. 1,782
The quantity of this staple sent down fluctuates, the bulk of the produce of the tea districts being sent down by the river steamers.

Tobacco, bundles ... Mds. 12,341
This staple continues to show a decrease owing to the small demand in the market.

Increases.

Cotton, bundles and bales ... Mds. 307 513
This staple shows a small increase from Narayanganj, and also in the quantity of raw material sent to Dunbar Cotton Mills, Shannagar, for manufacture.

Bales of gunny ... Mds. 81,484
This increase is very satisfactory, and is caused by the larger outturn of the Serajgonje Jute Mills, and deducting the 6,980 maunds decrease of gunny-bags for local use, leaves an actual increase of 24,498 maunds.

Piece-goods ... Mds. 2,378
This staple continues to show a satisfactory increase, principally in upward traffic for the interior.

Salt ... Mds. 5,621
This increase verifies my anticipation of a rapid improvement in the quantity forwarded.

Turmeric ... Mds. 4,482
This staple shows a satisfactory increase owing to a greater demand in the market according to which the supply fluctuates.

Twist ... Mds. 2,658
This increase is also satisfactory, being chiefly for imported but also for manufactured yarns from the Dunbar Cotton Mills, Shannagar.

Miscellaneous ... Mds. 81,425
This shows a very large increase in upward as well as downward and intermediate goods.

I attach the usual statement of increases and decreases.

NOTE.

Barometric Pressure.—The pressures in column 2 of the above table for all stations below 500 feet are reduced from those given in column 3 of the table on the previous page, by adding the weight of a column of air of the temperatures given in column 18. For stations above 500 feet elevation the reduction is made by Captain Allan Cunningham's table, "Prof. papers on Indian Engineering, No. OXIII." The temperatures at the sea-level are taken from column 3 of the above table.

Temperature.—The temperatures in column 3 are reduced from those in column 18 on the preceding page, by adding 1° Fahrenheit for every 450 feet.

Wind Resultant.—The resultant wind direction and its comparative predominance are calculated from the whole number of wind observations recorded during the month. The relative predominance in the direction of the resultant is given as a percentage of the whole number of observations. The direction is computed in the usual way by Lambert's formula.

Cloud.—This column gives the average proportion of clouded sky, a cloudless sky being indicated by 0, and one completely overcast by 10.

The above, being all comparable, afford the data for constructing a meteorological chart for the month which will show the isobaric and isothermal lines and the resultant wind directions, which last may be represented by arrows of varying length, proportioned to the prevalence of the wind. To these may be added the rainfall from the previous tables.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from observations made at 6h., 10h., 16h. and 22h.; the maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard (Newman's No. 86) formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction and movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

The 18th January 1878.

Reports of Fluctuation of Traffic on the Eastern Bengal Railway for the Month of December 1877.

EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY COMPANY, TRAFFIC SUPERINTENDENT'S OFFICE.

Report on the Traffic for the four weeks ending the 20th December 1877.

Dated Calcutta, the 12th January 1878.

From—C. F. CHADBURN, Esq., Acting Traffic Superintendent,

To—The Agent, Eastern Bengal Railway, Sealdah.

THE quantity of goods carried by the Eastern Bengal Railway during the above period amounted to 5,65,432 maunds. This, as compared with the corresponding period of 1876, shows a decrease of 1,39,525 maunds. This decrease is accounted for mainly by the large importations of food-grains into the Calcutta market in 1876 for exportation to the famine districts.

The staples showing a decrease are food-grains, gunny bundles, bundles hides, bales, jute and sugar; those showing an increase are bales and bundles cotton, bales gunny, drums jute, piece-goods, salt, seeds, bundles tobacco, turmeric, twist, and miscellaneous goods.

Decreases.

Grain, including rice Mds. 1,93,003

This decrease is owing to there being no export to the famine districts as there was last year during the same period.

Gunny, bundles of Mds. 4,282

This staple shows a large decrease, which is owing to the small demand in the interior, but I anticipate an improvement as the season for sugar, seeds, &c., advances.

Hides, bundles Mds. 6,813

This staple shows a large decrease again this month, the supply being influenced by the fluctuations of the demand in the market.

Jute, bales Mds. 72,549

This staple again shows a large decrease in bales, which is, however, lessened by an increase of 23,699 maunds in drums.

Sugar Mds. 9,770

This decrease is owing to the season having commenced later than last year, but will improve as the season advances.

Increases.

Cotton, bundles and bales Mds. 461 Bales. 2,816

This staple shows a steady increase in both bundles and bales.

Gunny, bales Mds. 1,988

I am glad to say this staple also shows a small increase.

Jute, drums Mds. 23,699

This shows a considerable increase, but it is counteracted, however, by the large decrease in the quantity of bales carried.

Piece-goods Mds. 8,683

This staple continues to show a satisfactory increase.

Salt Mds. 21,579

This is a very satisfactory increase and promises to continue.

Railway materials, foreign Mds. 496

This shows a small increase in Northern Bengal State Railway stock forwarded.

Seeds Mds. 9,281

The season is just commencing, and this staple will, I trust, continue to show a satisfactory increase.

Tobacco, bundles Mds. 2,391

This staple shows a marked increase, which indicates a growing demand in the market.

Turmeric Mds. 17,121

This staple also shows a satisfactory increase.

Twist Mds. 1,333

This staple continues to show an increase.

Miscellaneous Mds. 56,607

This shows a large increase in upward as well as downward and intermediate goods, which is satisfactory. I attach the usual statement of increases and decreases.

Short title.

It shall extend to such local areas as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, from time to time direct;

- (a) the cultivation of the poppy;
- (b) the manufacture of opium;

Provided that no duty shall be levied under any such rule on any opium imported and on which a duty is imposed by or under the law relating to sea customs for the time being in force or under section six.

6. The Governor General in Council may from time to time, by notification in the Gazette of India, impose such duty as he thinks fit on opium or on any kind of opium imported by land into British India or into any specified part thereof, and may alter or abolish any duty so imposed.

7. The Governor General in Council may, by order notified in the Gazette of India, warehouse opium.

(a) authorize any Local Government to establish warehouses for opium legally imported into, or intended to be exported from, the territories administered by such Local Government, and warehoused under section seven; the levy of fees for such warehousing; the removal of such opium for sale or exportation; and the manner in which it shall be disposed of, if any duty or fees leviable on it be not paid within twelve months from the date of warehousing the same.

9. Any person who, in contravention of this Act, or of rules made and notified under section five or section eight,

Penalty for illegal cultivation of poppy, &c.

- (a) cultivates the poppy, or

11. In any case in which an offence under section nine has been committed—

- (a) the poppy so cultivated;
- (b) the opium in respect of which any offence under the same section has been committed;

(b) detain and search any person whom he has reason to believe to be guilty of any offence against this or any other such law, and, if such person has opium in his possession, arrest him and any other persons in his company.

16. All searches under section fourteen or section fifteen shall be made in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

All warrants issued under this section shall be executed in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

20. Every person arrested, and thing seized, under section fourteen or section fifteen, shall be forwarded without delay to the officer in charge of the nearest Police-station; and every person arrested and thing seized under section nineteen shall be forwarded without delay to the officer by whom the warrant was issued.

Every officer to whom any person or thing is forwarded under this section shall, with all convenient despatch, take such measures as may be necessary for the disposal according to law of such person or thing.

21. Whenever any officer makes any arrest or seizure under this Act, he shall within forty-eight hours next after such arrest or seizure make a full report of all the particulars of such arrest or seizure to his immediate official superior.

22. In the case of alleged illegal cultivation of the poppy, the crop shall not be removed, but shall, pending the disposal of the case, be attached by an officer superior in rank to a peon or constable, who may in right of his office be authorized by the Local Government in this behalf; and such officer shall require the cultivator to give bail in a reasonable amount (to be fixed by such officer) for his appearance before the Magistrate by whom the case is to be disposed of, and such cultivator shall not be arrested unless within a reasonable time he fails to give such bail:

Provided that, wherever Act No. XIII of 1857 (An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to the cultivation of the Poppy and the manufacture of Opium in the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal), or any part thereof, is in force, nothing in this section shall apply to such cultivation.

23. Any arrear of any fee or duty imposed under this Act or any rule made hereunder, and any arrear due from any farmer of opium-revenue, may be recovered from the person primarily liable to pay the same to the Government or from his surety (if any) as if it were an arrear of land-revenue.

24. When any amount is due to a farmer of opium-revenue from his licensee, in respect of a license, such farmer may make an application to the Collector of the District, Deputy Commissioner or other officer authorized by the Local Government in this behalf, praying such officer to recover such amount on behalf of the applicant; and on receiving such application, such Collector, Deputy Commissioner or other officer may in his discretion recover such amount as if it were an arrear of land-revenue and shall pay any amount so recovered to the applicant:

Provided that the execution of any process issued by such Collector, Deputy Collector or other officer for the recovery of such amount, shall be stayed if the licensee institutes a suit in the Civil Court to try the demand of the farmer and furnishes security to the satisfaction of such officer for the payment of the amount which such Court may adjudge to be due from him to such farmer:

Provided also that nothing contained in this section or done thereunder shall affect the right of any farmer of opium-revenue to recover by suit in the Civil Court or otherwise any amount due to him from such licensee.

N.B.—The periods taken in the Statement represent, with the distribution of rainfall most necessary to the agriculturist. The fall to the end of April may be called 'the ploughing fall,' that to the end of June 'the sowing fall.' The fall between June and August matures the arroz, and is essential to the transplantation of the arroz. The fall in September matures the arroz, while that after September fills out the ear of the arroz rice and determines the prospects of the arroz.

The mean pressure of the seven days Inches. 30.071

The average pressure of the corresponding period for 25 years 30.007

The mean temperature of the seven days ° 65.3

The average temperature of the corresponding period for 25 years 65.3

The extreme variation of temperature during the seven days 27.8

The maximum temperature during the seven days 79.8

The mean relative humidity during the seven days % 71

The average relative humidity of the corresponding period for 25 years 71

The total fall of rain from 20th to 26th January 1878 Inches. Nil

The average fall of the corresponding period for 25 years 0.08

The total fall from 1st to 26th January 1878 Nil

The average fall of the corresponding period for 25 years 0.30

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from observations made at 6h., 10h., 16h. and 22h.; the maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard (Newman's No. 86) formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The direction and movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

Reports of Fluctuation of Traffic on the East Indian Railway from 25th November to 31st December 1877.

EAST INDIAN RAILWAY TRAFFIC MANAGER'S OFFICE, JAMALPORE, THE 18TH JANUARY 1878.

Remarks on Traffic of East Indian Railway from 25th November to 31st December 1877.

The approximate figures for the period are as follows:—

	Coaching.		Goods		Total.
	Nos.	Rs.	Mds.	Rs.	Rs.
1877	662,494	10,90,848	72,77,711	27,78,258	38,67,104
1876	596,513	12,59,240	70,74,098	20,04,625	42,63,865
Increase	66,971		2,43,623
Decrease		1,48,394		1,89,167	3,36,561

The decrease in passenger earnings is of course explained by the very heavy special traffic towards Delhi in December 1876 in connection with the Imperial Assemblage of 1st January 1877.

MERCHANDISE.

With a very considerable increase in weight lifted, there is, it will be seen, a decrease of a little under two lakhs (or about 6½ per cent.) in the receipts from merchandise traffic as compared with December 1876.

It will be remembered, however, that that month was one of very exceptional traffic.

The principal changes are—

Coal.	Iron.	Increases.	Piece-goods and twist.	Stone.
Hides.	Other metals.		Foreign railway material.	Timber.
Indigo.	Opium.		Seeds.	Tobacco.
Commissariat Beer.	Grain.	Decreases.	Salt.	Saltpetre.
				Sugar.

Increases.
Coal—Upward	...	Mds.	1,14,007	Rs. 48,285
Downward	...		3,03,820	" 31,459

The increase in upward coal is entirely at Kurhumbali, the upward despatches from the other fields having considerably fallen off.

In down traffic the increase is almost entirely from the Seetarampore and Burrakur field, where a better quality of coal is coming forward than the old Kaneeungunge fields can afford.

Hides	...	Mds.	35,168	Rs. 31,509
-------	-----	------	--------	------------

There has been a good demand in Calcutta for North-Western Provinces hides

Nearly the whole of the increase lies with Cawnpore and Delhi.

Indigo	...	Mds.	21,741	Rs. 19,595
--------	-----	------	--------	------------

A very good crop in Tirhoot this season, which has come into the market freely throughout December

Iron	...	Mds.	7,420	Rs. 1,656
Other metals	...		5,798	" 6,132

This is an increase in the quantity of raw metals sent forward from Calcutta to the manufacturing marts of the North-Western Provinces

Piece-goods	...	Mds.	19,033	Rs. 14,720
Cotton twist	...		3,177	" 3,206

These are small increases of no particular moment.

Seeds	...	Mds.	2,30,175	Rs. 65,239
-------	-----	------	----------	------------

To this increase—

Patna contributes	...	Mds.	1,00,000
Cawnpore ditto	...		45,000
Mitzapore ditto	...		20,000

and other North-Western stations most of the balance

The weight of seeds cleared from the port in December was 26,000 tons, whereas it will be seen we carried altogether over 27,000 tons.

Tobacco	...	Mds.	11,270	Rs. 6,127
---------	-----	------	--------	-----------

A continued increase in the despatches from Tirhoot, where all crops have been good this season. The failure of crops in Rohilkund has also naturally affected this traffic

DECREASES.

Cotton ... Mds. 89,165 Rs. 1,29,915
Only 1,200 bales of scrowed cotton reached Howrah during the whole month hardly a wagon-load a day: and with "good fair" priced at over sixpence a pound in Calcutta, this is not surprising

As before remarked, in most of the cotton-growing districts there has been very serious failure through long dearth, and it is probable that the area under cotton will be a good deal restricted for some time to come.

Salt	...	Mds.	63,265	Rs. 17,406
------	-----	------	--------	------------

The salt exports from Rajpootana were much restricted during December, traders holding back in expectation of a reduction of the frontier duties

There was also a slight falling off in the weight sent up from Calcutta

The earnings is, however, considerably better than that of December 1875.

Saltpetre	...	Mds.	6,718	Rs. 3,328
-----------	-----	------	-------	-----------

This is a slight fluctuation of but little moment: in some weeks of the month there has been an increase, in others a decrease, and this is the balance which probably the first week of January would throw on the other side.

The total weight carried in December 1875 was only 24,000 maunds, so that the weight this month, 71,500, is really unusually large, although less than in December 1876.

Sugar	...	Mds.	1,12,278	Rs. 66,065
-------	-----	------	----------	------------

The export of sugar, which was so active in December 1876, has almost entirely ceased: it arose from exceptional causes—the failure of the French beetroot crop among them; and the districts which exported most freely are themselves this season suffering from serious failure.

We now come to—

Grain with a net decrease of...	...	Mds.	1,70,883	Rs. 1,97,070
---------------------------------	-----	------	----------	--------------

Made up as follows—

	Increases.			Decreases.
	Mds.	Rs.		Mds.	Rs.
Common grains	2,07,084	87,449	Oats	11,829	4,076
Pulses	2,03,031	10,864	Rice	2,90,718	13,021
Barley	91,475	9,768	Wheat	2,69,925	2,88,064
Total	5,01,590	1,08,081	Total	6,72,472	3,06,151
Net decrease as above	1,70,883	1,97,070

Common grains (jowar, jowara, and the millets) show a large increase, owing to the rush of grain traffic into Rajpootana, Oodh, and Rohilkund, owing to the failure of the autumn crops.

Of the 2,07,000 mounds shown above, 1,27,000 mounds of increase was shown in the traffic to the North-Western Provinces from the Jubbulpore line, Behar also contributed largely, as also the loop line, so far as we were able to supply wagons for the traffic.

In pulses there is a large increase in weight also, some 80 per cent., while the earnings have only risen 10 per cent.

The bulk of this increase is in pulses from the Scinde, Punjab, and Delhi Railway going into Rohilkund and Ghazeebad and Allyghur, with a lead of 66 miles only over this line, which will account for this feature.

Barley, again, is very noticeable.

It is not a grain in which there is usually any large traffic, but of late it has been flowing out of the Punjab in large quantities and in the same direction as the pulses.

* Decrease.
Rice Mds. 3,90,718 Ra. 13,021

This traffic was in December 1876 entirely abnormal; the demand for rice in Madras had become very heavy, and in one fortnight of that month (7th to 20th December) 51,000 tons of rice were exported from Calcutta, while in the whole of December 1877 the export was under 38,000 tons.

To show more clearly how exceptional this traffic was in 1876, I give the figures for 1875 in connection with it, thus:—

December 1875	Tons.	21,100	Ra.	1,10,000
" 1876	"	81,100	"	2,02,000
" 1877	"	26,700	"	1,26,000

so that there has been an increase in weight of 25 per cent., and in earnings of nearly 80 per cent., in 1877 as compared with 1875.

In fact, in the month under review, a slack demand in Calcutta and food rising in price up-country, every effort has been made to get rice away upwards.

Wheat.—This decrease is really the important feature in the statistics of the month under review.

Of the 9,900 tons decreases shown above, 8,800 tons lies with Cawnpore and 1,100 tons with the traffic via Cawnpore; thus this one mart and its feeder explain the whole decrease in weight.

The failure of crops in the North-Western Provinces has greatly restricted the export of rail-borne wheat, and such export demand as there is being to a large extent from the Bengal districts on the north side of the Ganges.

The timely rain which has fallen throughout Northern India has, however, averted all danger of a failure of the spring crops, and I hope we may see the wheat export renewed.

I may here compare with December 1875 as well as December 1876, as the circumstances of the latter period were so very exceptional.

The weight of wheat was—

December 1875	Tons.	3,400
" 1876	"	18,400
" 1877	"	11,800

the latter month, thus showing more than three-fold traffic as compared with 1875.

The train mileage for the period has been —

	Coaching.	Goods.	Total.
	Mds.	Mds.	Mds.
1877
1876	256,278	629,081	785,359
	268,373	625,874	794,247
Increase
Decrease	12,075	3,207	8,588

Earnings per train mile.

	Coaching.	Goods.	Total.
	Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.
1877
1876	4 4 1	6 3 11	4 14 0
	4 9 10	5 10 2	5 4 8
Increase
Decrease	0 5 0	0 6 3	0 6 11

The earnings per train mile in coaching traffic are lower than in 1876, of course because there were so many special trains in 1876 in connection with the assemblage, and also a heavy first and second class traffic; while in goods traffic the remarks made under the heads of grain traffic will account for a falling off in average results.

Instead of having return loads for wagons running up-country under coal and imported goods, we have had those running up, besides loaded grain wagons; instead of wheat from Cawnpore to Howrah, with a lead of 681 miles, we have had grain from Kutnee to Cawnpore with a (main line) lead of 120 miles; instead of wheat from the Punjab to Calcutta, a lead of 912 miles, we have had barley from the Punjab to Rohilkund, 66 miles, and so on.

The actual earning on all train mileage fully up to the average of the last seven years—

JUBBULPORE LINE TRAFFIC.

	Coaching.		Goods.		Total.
	Mds.	Rs.	Mds.	Rs.	Rs.
1877
1876	41,193	1,40,301	10,94,072	2,43,567	8,24,898
	43,001	2,28,506	11,10,959	2,45,654	8,16,039
Increase
Decrease	1,808	88,194	1,02,947	41,027	1,24,171

The decrease in coaching earnings on this as on the main line merely the result of the unusual rush of traffic in December 1876 consequent on the Delhi Assemblage.

The earning in 1875 was only Rs. 1,17,376, and thus there is an advance in 1877 of Rs. 23,000, or nearly 20 per cent. over the figures of a corresponding period two years previously.

In like manner, the merchandise traffic compares—

December 1876	Mds.	3,70,000	Ra.	84,000
" 1876	"	11,11,000	"	2,56,000
" 1877	"	10,08,000	"	2,43,000 and the extraordinary rush of famine traffic and wheat for export in 1876 has almost been equalled by the traffic of the month under notice.

GENERAL REMARKS.

Tirhoot State Railway.

Through-booking with this line has now been fully organized, and about 2,000 tons of goods came through from it in December, including 1,000 tons of seed, 300 tons of nitre, and 420 tons of indigo; there is every reason to expect, a good traffic here.

Half-year's Traffic.

As this is the last report for 1877, I may say a few words as to the gross results of the half-year's working as regards merchandize.

The figures given will not be quite accurate no doubt, but are sufficiently approximate, and may be interesting pending the submission of the more accurate returns which will follow.

The main line totals for the half-year may be taken at merchandize only—

	1876	1877	Tons.	£
	635,000	1,419,000
	1,278,000	1,864,000
Increase	813,000	245,000
and those for the Jubbulpore line—
1876	111,000	119,000
1877	203,000	169,000
Increase	92,000	50,000
or a total increase for the two lines of some	435,000	295,000

In the main line traffic the principal increases and decreases have been in—

Increases.				Decreases.
	Tons.	£		Tons.	£
Pulses	100,000	63,000	Wheat (weight increased)	...	32,000
Common grains	91,000	82,000	Piece-goods	700	10,700
Seeds	61,000	63,000	Sugar	5,600	8,000
Coal	51,000	42,000	Cotton	5,900	20,000
Rice	10,000	19,000
Total	328,000	269,000	Total	12,200	70,700

and these few figures will, I think, give a good idea of the way in which the large increase, both in weight and money has arisen.

As regards the decreased earning in piece-goods, it may be remarked that both the two next preceding half-years showed an increase under this head.

Sugar has been fully remarked on in the body of this report, as have also cotton and wheat.

The latter staple shows an absolute increase in weight carried during the whole half-year of some 13,000 tons, but with a shorter lead, as prospects grew gloomy in the North-Western Provinces.

J. C. BATCHELOR,
Traffic Manager.

Orders and Notifications by the Government of India, &c.

[Reprinted from the Gazette of India.]

The following order, issued by the Government of India in the Legislative Department, is republished for general information :—

NOTIFICATIONS.

Fort William, the 24th January 1878.

No. 3.—The Governor General in Council has been pleased to issue the following amended Rules for the preparation and publication of the Indian Law Reports :—

- I.—A staff of Reporters shall be maintained for such Courts of Law as the Government of India from time to time direct, consisting of one Reporter for each Court and as many Assistant Reporters as the business is found to require.
- II.—The Law Reports shall be published under the authority of the Government of India in the Legislative Department.
- III.—Each Reporter shall have the general supervision and control of his assistants, and shall distribute their work among them.
- IV.—Each Reporter is, from the materials collected by himself and his assistants, to select all the cases he thinks it useful to report, to reduce them into the shape of reports, to prefix a head-note to each report, to have them printed, and to transmit the proof to the Legislative Department.
- V.—No case shall be reported if the Judge or Judges who decided it desire that it should not be reported.
- VI.—If the Court desires that the Reporter shall consult it, or any committee appointed by it, on any case or matter, it shall be his duty to do so.
- VII.—The Government of India in the Legislative Department will authorize the publication of such cases as are finally determined on.
- VIII.—If the Court or the Chief Justice desires that any case decided by the Court or any division or Judge thereof shall be reported, and signifies such desire to the Reporter, such case shall be reported and published.
- IX.—Arrangements shall be made for the separate local publication of reports relating to local laws when such local publication may be deemed advisable.
- X.—In framing reports regard shall be had to the following general rules and principles :—
 - (a). Every report ought to contain a statement of all facts necessary for a due understanding of the decision.
 - (b). Reports ought not to state any facts which are clearly unnecessary for a due understanding of the decision.
 - (c). In judging whether to insert or to omit a statement of facts, it is better to err on the side of overstatement than of understatement.
 - (d). It is not meant that the Reporter must state the facts over again if there is a clear, full and consecutive statement of them in the judgment.

- (e). As a general rule, cases for which a full statement of facts cannot be obtained are not to be reported.
- (f). As a general rule, every report ought to contain a statement of the arguments of counsel, sufficient to show what points were pressed upon the Court.
- (g). The Reporter should note any material bearing which the decision may have on other decisions or on any principle of law, and which is not otherwise apparent on the face of the report.
- (h). Every report ought to contain a full copy or account of the judgment delivered by the Court and by each Judge thereof, or of so much of the judgment as bears on the point for which the case is reported.
- (i). As a general rule, cases turning upon evidence or inferences of fact, cases relating to the construction of private documents, and, generally, cases which do not illustrate some principle of law or some important bearing of an enactment in a way not covered by previous decisions, ought not to be reported.
- (j). In selecting cases for report, the Reporters are to be guided by the weight and importance of the decision, and the existence of materials for a satisfactory report, and are not to abstain from reporting a case merely because they may think the decision to be erroneous, or to be in conflict with other decisions.
